Major D. T. Lambert, said recently more than 75 thousand of the colorful leaflets had been handed to cross state tourists and distributed to restaurants, motels and tourist stops along U. S. Highway 301.

Major Lambert planned the project to acquaint tourists first with North Carolina traffic regulations and second to make their stay in the state as pleasant as possible. In addition to several paragraphs of precautions, the leaflet also says state troopers are on the roads to offer "friendly service and roadside assistance."

The leaflets invite comment from out of states in an attached coupon.

A dozen or so, mostly from northern states, have reached the patrol office bearing complimentary remarks. A random selection includes one from a North Windham, Connecticut lady driver. She says: "The friendly greeting by your state trooper at the state line was a welcome gesture. My first trip driving from Florida to Connecticut and I found North Carolina one of the most pleasant states for driving."

From Illinois, a traveler wrote, "My hearty congratulations for your highway regulations. I wish all states would follow your excellent highway controls."

Another New Yorker enjoyed his trip over Tar Heel roads and concluded his comments by asking, "Kindly inform me what Tar Heel means?"

ATTEND JACK AND JILL MEET—A group of women representing various branches of Jack and Jill of America, Inc., are shown at the ninth annual convention of the organization held in Durham last week.

An operetta given by the children of the organization, was presented in Duke Auditorium to mark the opening of the convention. The Saturday meeting featured Dr. Gelo McHugh of Duke University and several consultants who discussed topics pertinent to today's youth.

Other features of the convention were a banquet at the Algonquin Club House, an informal dance in the Women's Gymnasium at N. C. College, and a final business session at the college Sunday morning.

and the first time the Wondering Souls Quintet has been presented in the city of Charlotte.

GOING TO CHURCH WITH NED DAVIS

The Pipe Organ drive ended last Sunday at Clinton Metropolitan First A.M.E. Zion Church. The members reported over $500 which brought the month's effort to $800. The work is being done by Professor Lindsey, a man we call a pipe organ specialist. Our regular organist left the city last week to attend summer school at N. C. College in Durham for six weeks. She is Mrs. Elsie Matthews.

The singers gave a banquet in observance of their anniversary and yours truly was toastmaster. Visiting guests were, Mrs. Ned Davis, Mrs. Susie Payne, Mrs. Maggie Thompson and Mr. Squirwell.

The Rev. Mrs. Mildred Caldwell will direct our vacation Bible school this season. Rev. Mrs. Caldwell will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Scott. Both of these young women recently returned to the city after attending the State Vacation Bible Institute at Winston-Salem Teachers College. Mrs. Scott is a member of the choir.

Officers of the group are, Mrs. Mable Jones, president; Mrs. Lillian Singleton, vice president; Mrs. Annie Beaty, secretary; Mrs. Emma Poe, treasurer; Mrs. Bertha White, chairman of the sick committee, and other members are, Lonnie Odum, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Haskins.

The singers have taken a tip from Mrs. Mary J. Cherry by selling the Carolina Times Newspaper to benefit their organization.

The North Charlotte District of the Western North Carolina Conference of the A.M.E. Zion Church presided over by Dr. J. S. Nathaniel Tross, closed its Sunday School Convention last Friday at Greenville Tabernacle A.M.E. Zion Church on Stateville Avenue. Host pastor was the Rev. M. R. Cuthbertson.

We have received a lot of inquiries about the Quartet Union, and now we are taking applications from all types of singing groups desiring to enter the Singing Contest at the Piedmont Negro Fair which will be October 19-23. Any singing organization that is interested may write to this address: P. O. Box 2151, Charlotte, for full details. This year's exhibition will include bicycle racing among school children. Any prospective contestants may also write for full details.

Last Sunday evening this reporter was a special guest at the tenth anniversary of the Charlotte Singing Club at the Third Ward Recreation Center. Music was by the Macedonia Gospel Chorus of Vanwyce, S. C., directed by James Howie. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Kennedy of Salisbury who is pastor of Bethel Baptist Church near Wadesboro. W. S. Clyburn was in charge of the offering.

Sunday, June 28, at 8 p.m., Madam Thelma Hawkins and daughter, Sister Victoria Westbrook from Detroit, Mich., will meet the "Wondering Souls Quintet" also from Detroit in a battle of songs at Clinton Metropolitan Church. This is Madam Hawkins' first trip South plled much of the lumber out of which quite a few Durham houses are built.

Granville R. Barnes, 82, died in his sleep at his home on Fayetteville Street, here early Tuesday morning June 15 as the result of a lingering illness.

He had been a resident of the Pearstontown section for about 30 years, having moved here from Cumberland County where he had engaged in the farming industry. He was a familiar figure on Fayetteville Street, having been a huckster through the busy thoroughfare for years.

On coming to the city he operated a saw mill with his brother, Ed Barnes, and supported much of the lumber out of which quite a few Durham houses are built. He was a constant member of the A.M.E. Zion Church, joining St. Mark when he came here. He, along with Rev. I. H. Wilcox, Dr. W. W. Long and Ed Barnes, organized Kyles Temple, in the late twenties and had served as an officer ever since in that church.

Although in failing health for a long time, he had been able to aid in the operating of a store in Pearstontown and his condition did not become alarming until June, when he lost the use of his left side and had to take his bed.

He grew continuously worse until the end. At his bedside at the time of death were his three daughters.

Mrs. Georgia Currie, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Armelia Mills, New York City, and Mrs. Daisy Turner. Aside from his brother, who resides here, there is another brother, Arthur, Norfolk, Va. There are two sons, Walter M. of Baltimore and Robert Lee, New York City.

Out of respect for the services rendered Kyles Temple Church the officers and pastor suspended regular services and funeralized him at the church Sunday morning in a brief service at 10 o'clock. The Rev. George T. Tharrington was in charge.

The body was carried to Willis Creek A.M.E. Zion Church, near Fayetteville for final rites.
