rietta Penny of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Carrie Elliott, and Mrs. Robena of Fayetteville; and one brother, Milton Penny of Portsmouth, Va.
Mrs. Penny is well-known in Durham and for the past fourteen years has worked as a maid at the First Presbyterian Church (white) here. She is well thought of by her employers. At the filling station where Jackson worked, located across the street from the church, he is well thought of and trusted. Jackson has no previous police record.
The pistol Jackson used in the slaying was not registered. He told police he had taken it in pawn and did not leave it home for fear it would be stolen.

forcefully and unequivocally declared segregation in Public Education to be unconstitutional and in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution; and
WHEREAS, many persons and groups of persons are now rushing to the fore-front in an effort to claim the credit for having provided the basis on the local level for this historic pronouncement of the United States Supreme Court; and
WHEREAS, because of this fact the record is about to be confused, and with the intent of avoiding this confusion and any further discrepancies in the record, we wish the following facts to be known in the City of Durham, in the State of North Carolina, and in these United States of America:

That prior to April 27, 1933, at a time when the NAACP was deemed radical by all but its members and almost subversive by others and at a time when many Negroes avoided association with NAACP members and failed to support that organization because of its militant approach to the race problem; and at a time when life and limb of NAACP members were threatened by mob violence, C. O. Pearson and Cecil A. McCoy, Attorneys of Durham, together with the active aid and support of L. E. Austin, publisher of the Carolina Times, all being then members of the NAACP, and with the legal assistance of W. H. Hastie, now a Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, instituted the first educational suit engaged in by the NAACP, the purpose of which was to gain admittance into the School of Pharmacy of the University of North Carolina;

AND WHEREAS, it is our belief that in time of victory, credit should be placed where credit is due, and it being our firm belief that to C. O. Pearson, Cecil A. McCoy and L. E. Austin this credit is due; NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that we, here assembled, for the purpose of furthering and supporting the Fighting Fund for Freedom, publicly do recognize, commend, and acclaim the part played by these three men, products of our local community, in the inception of this long and difficult struggle for equal educational opportunities; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be sent to each Local Branch of the North Carolina Conference of NAACP Branches, and to the NATIONAL Office of the NAACP, with the request that the same be retained in their respective archives years old when he fatally shot John E. Stephenson, a vice-president of the Atlantic National Bank at Jacksonville in his home on Kiver Road on the night of Aug. 26, 1951, it was pointed out that Bashlor drew a first degree murder conviction in the slaying of the banker but a mercy recommendation was made by the all-white 12-man jury trying Bashlor, which automatically gave him a life sentence.

the order would be put into effect that the school system would remain the same for the coming school year, but the Board would continue to make plans to convert as soon as possible, under the law.

Persons throughout the south are prone to receive the poll of the news agency as authentic, due to the fact, that many of the border states, and the District of Columbia, have already set up the machinery whereby the order would be effective immediately.

The situation in Alabama was aggravated further when Clarence Poe, editor and chairman of the Board of the Progressive Farmer, widely read farm magazine, came up with the idea that schools should be segregated as to sex.

He advocates that all boys of both races be sent to one school and all girls to another. This points out clearly what the ruse about the whole matter is in the state of Alabama, and many others where the issue is causing much concern.

stated that two police officers came into the coach at the invitation of the conductor and one of them took her up bodily and carried her to the Negro part of the coach.

The case has been turned over to the Louisiana branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People with Attorneys H. T. Tureaud and Dave Perry representing Miss Fisher.

The Dillard University teacher is well-known in Lynchburg, where she was born and reared. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Fisher of that city.
