 Commenting on the $1,000 check, Mr. White noted that it bore the printed inscription: "South Carolina Conference NAACP, Determined to Secure at Home What America Would Guarantee Abroad."
 These words, Mr. White said, are "indicative of the absence of any fear whatsoever on the part of the South Carolina conference of NAACP branches despite the threats of Governor Brynes."
 The meeting, attended by N. A. A. C. P. delegations from throughout the state, was held on June 20. A delegation of 40 members from the Clarendon County branch of the NAACP received an ovation from the crowd, which packed the university's auditorium including standing room.
 One of the five Supreme Court cases which resulted in the recent decision outlawing school segregation was brought by a group of Negro parents in Clarendon County.

-Jackson-

 When police arrived, Jackson said he showed them his gun and officers found Penny's knife on the front seat of Jackson's car.
 Probable cause in the case was found by Judge Wilson after hearing the testimonies of several witnesses. According to Mr. McCoy's testimony, he was in his service station reading a newspaper when the collision between the two cars occurred. He said he saw Penny approaching Jackson's car "working his hands." He said he did not actually see a knife in Penny's hand.
 James Carpenter told the court when he took the witness stand, that he saw Penny get out of his car, go to Jackson's car, and saw him with his head and arm in the window of Jackson's car while he cut at him. He also said that he heard three shots and saw Penny fall to the street.
 Police Officer E. E. Haithcock testified that when he and Officer Joe Durham arrived at the scene, Jackson met them and said, "I'm the man that did it." Several character witnesses in Jackson's defense said that he had a good reputation, and according to other testimonies, this was his first time in court.

 to be in the best interest of both races, and that they expect their state government to do everything proper and reasonable to preserve this system."
 When the Supreme Court issued the ruling in May, Stanley announced plans to put a committee in operation "to consider the matter and work toward a plan which will be acceptable to our citizens and in keeping with the edict of the court." However, at the time, he also said the state would maintain segregated schools next year awaiting a final decree from the Court on how integration should be instituted.
 Unlike the Governor of Georgia, Stanley said, "It is not my thought to do anything to destroy the public school system, but rather to enable the legislature to deal with all phases of the complex problem now confronting us."

Shaw Appoints New Grid Coach

RALEIGH
 Announcement was made Tuesday that Robert Duke Brown, the "miracle man" of Morris College, will begin at Shaw University as its head football coach next fall. Mr. Brown will replace Coach Brutus Wilson, who piloted the Shaw teams until recently when the university failed to renew his contract.
 The new Shaw coach acquired the nickname, "Miracle Man", in light of the stellar achievements Morris College made in athletics under his guidance. Upon going to Morris in 1949, the team there had only won one game the previous season in nine starts and had scored only 12 points.
 The following season, under Coach Brown, and his split-T system, the team won eight games and lost one, scoring 222 points with the opposition getting 67.
