Before the bonds are ever submitted to the electorate for a vote, they are discussed with the Local Government Commission for tentative approval. The Local Government Commission, which serves all North Carolina cities and counties, has offices in Raleigh, and is the organization which actually sells all bonds. This advisory group knows the bond market inside and out, and, when asked for advice, necessarily is conservative in its evaluation of any bond proposal. The Commission acts carefully, first determining the need for bonds and then looking carefully at the city's financial condition. Very few people seem to realize that the amount of bonds a city can issue is limited by law and by economic factors.

It was reported that a special student assembly was held at the Durham high school Wednesday, and that Hillside students were warned against seeking reprisals on visiting Raleigh students and fans. Holmes also said he felt reports growing out of the affair had been exaggerated.

Old World Spirits Popular

Relska, a famous name in Europe since 1721, has become a top favorite in this market and everywhere because of its quality as the truly "diplomatic drink." Relska has no liquor taste (it mixes smoothly in all cocktails and is light and clear, when served straight—ice cold). Relska also leaves no tell-tale after breath.

Millions are learning that Relska, the "World's Most Honored Vodka", in the familiar square-shouldered bottle, is the answer to today's demand for a quality liquor with a prestige background.
