

Jones County Farm Youth Is New President Of State 4-H

GREENSBORO — A Jones County farm youth was elected president of the State 4-H Club Council at the 28th annual 4-H Club Week celebration held at A&T College, June 25-30.

Richard Barbee, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barber, Trenton, won out in the elections conducted at three college Thursday afternoon. He defeated Yvonne Brown, Yanceyville college student, by a close margin, and Glenwood Cooper of Nashville.

Barber, a junior in Jones High School, has been president of his local 4-H Club for the past six years. He was corn, forestry and gardening champion for his county in 1953 and was delegate from Jones County to the Regional 4-H Camp in Washington, D. C., last summer.

He is one of nine-children and the family owns a 60 acre farm producing tobacco, corn and some truck crops.

Other winners in the election of State officers included: Bobby Hardy, Greenville, vice president; Agatha Ricks, Elm City, secretary; Lincoln, Charlotte, treasurer and Evelyn Shaw, Kinston historian.

The officers were installed at a brilliant outdoor candlelight service at the closing session on Friday night.

Nearly 800 farm youngsters had the time of their lives during the five-day meet which featured an array of prominent speakers, leaders in education, business and agriculture, demonstrations and lectures on the latest trends in farm and home developments and competed for state championships in a variety of projects sponsored by the North Carolina organization.

Among the speakers were: W. T. Gibbs, president of the A&T College; Rev. Cleo M. McCoy, director of religious activities at the college; Wayne Corpening, manager, Agricultural Department of a Winston-Salem banking concern; Dr. Willa B. Player, president of Bennett College; P. H. Stone, assistant to the administrator, Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Dr. W. E. Reed, dean, School of Agriculture, A&T College and Mrs. Minnie Miller Brown, assistant state home agent who addressed the annual banquet.

Winners in district eliminations in several areas of competition from all over the state competed for state championships.

Winners in the state finals included: (Girls)—Breadmaking team) Dorothy Barfield and Bertie Carter, both of Trenton; breadmaking (individual), Minnie Mae Wade, Wooddale; Dairy foods (team) Willie Mae Myrick, Como and Mary Lou Britt, Murfreesboro; breadmaking, individual, Della Anna Burnette, Mebane, RFD and dress revue, Yvonne Brown, Yanceyville, (first), Gwendolyn Nelson, Roxboro (second), Sandra Jones, Tarboro (third) and Ruby Battle, Tarboro and Vivian Carey, Williamston, both honorable mention.

Winners in the demonstrations for boys included: Forage crops (team)—John C. Lawrence, Halifax and Herbert McNeil, Scotland Neck; Cotton production (team) James W. Mask, III, and Charles H. Chapman, both of Greenville, RFD and electric usage—George Mainor and Carl Joyner, both of Magnolia.

Dewey Clayton Gets Medical Degree From Meharry College

Dewey Monroe Clayton, III, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Clayton, Jr., received his M. D. degree at commencement exercises celebrating the 80th anniversary of its founding at Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee, on June 6, 1956.

A native of Person County, Dr. Clayton received his preliminary education in the Person County Schools and at Mary Potter High School, Oxford. He then entered the Army, seeing fourteen months action overseas with the Quartermaster Corps during the height of the European campaign in World War II.

He completed his pre-medical training at Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, where he received his B. S. in 1948. After his graduation, and prior to entering Meharry, Dr. Clayton taught for four years in the Person County High School's Veterans Program and at Henderson Institute, Henderson, N. C.

He is married to the former Miss Christine Arrington, of Rocky Mount. They are the parents of two daughters, Dawn Maria, age 2 and Cassandra Laverne, two months.

At present Dr. Clayton and his family are enjoying a short holiday with his family and friends in Roxboro and Rocky Mount. He will leave shortly for Reading, Pennsylvania to begin his internship at Community General Hospital.
