No "Booze" With Bible

NEW YORK — The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court ruled in effect last week that it "would not serve the public advantage" to open up a liquor store "in the midst of a nest of churches." It was revealed by the Rev. John H. Johnson, pastor of St. Martin's Episcopal Church and the Rev. O. Clay Maxwell, pastor of Mount Olivet Baptist Church.

The ruling was considered a victory for St. Martin's and Mount Olivet Churches and for four other churches located in the vicinity of 121st Street and Lenox Avenue where owners of a liquor license have been seeking to remove their liquor store.
