600 Attend Fiftieth Anniversary Of Winston Mutual Life Insurance Co.

WINSTON-SALEM — Over six hundred persons jammed the auditorium of First Baptist Church here Sunday to hear Val J. Washington, director of minorities of the Republican National Committee.

The occasion was the observance of the 50th anniversary of the Winston Mutual Life Insurance Company. Washington giant strides it has made during the last two decades, having achieved a total of $12,008,519 of insurance in force.

The GOP executive urged the firm to lead the community in providing leadership and manpower to aid in the eradication of "bigotry, ignorance and intolerance" in America. Mr. Washington challenged Negroes to have a "fundamental and durable sense of values" and the proper leadership if we are to make the transition from segregation to integration a success. He suggested that we use as a guide to the solution of the race problem, the following maxims: Self discipline; acceptance of all responsibilities that go with the privilege of first class citizenship; a strong aggressive leadership; guidance and education; preparation to contribute to the nation and to the race; be better than just average. Sidney T. James, Jr., well-known drug store manager here, has been charged in Durham Civil Court, by his wife, Mrs. Vivian James, with beating, failure to provide the necessities of life and making "life burdensome" and "intolerable" for she and the children of the marriage.

The couple was married June 2, 1944 and to them were born six children, ranging in age from eleven years to eight months.

Mrs. James charged that her husband "has been a consistent drinker and for many months has been abusive" to her, "offering her such violence that her life has become intolerable and she fears for her life when he is about, and the bodily safety of her children."

It is alleged that "several months ago" James left his wife "and their six children and has not returned to live with them since," and "that with some small exceptions, the defendant does not furnish his family with any of the necessities of life."

"He had an arrangement with a small third-rate grocery store to let his wife have a few groceries which are not sufficient for his family of seven to subsist on," it is stated.

The court action also cites that "on or about June 12, 1956 and after he (James) had abandoned his family, he concealed himself in some shrubbery near the home of the plaintiff and when she arrived, he jumped and assaulted her, beating her" (Please turn to page 8)

Baby Killed To Get Insurance To Buy Auto

OXFORD

A couple who had apparently planned to use their baby's life insurance to make the down payment on a used car have been formerly charged with murder in connection with the death of the four months old infant.

Arthur Hunt, 32 year old saw mill worker who is being held in jail here, denied that he had anything to do with the death last June 27 of his daughter, Nannie Hunt.

The infant died of a fractured skull and multiple head wounds. Hunt said he saw his common-law wife, Miss Herite Mae Hunt who is free under $500 bond, strike the infant with her shoe. Miss Hunt swore in a signed confession that Hunt killed the child and had abused it on a number of occasions.

Assistant police chief N. E. White said the couple had shopped around for a used car and had bargained with a dealer whom they had promised to make the down payment when they got some money "in a few days."

NAMES OF CONTRIBUTORS TO GOVERNOR'S SCHEME SOUGHT

Despite the fact that Governor Luther H. Hodges refuses to confirm or deny recent reports that he has asked Tar Heel Industries to contribute to a campaign fund to pass the Pearsall Bills, the appointment of Warren Williams, former state senator of Sanford, in charge of contributions is seen as a tacit confirmation.

The CAROLINA TIMES is making every effort to get a full list of contributors to the Governor's scheme to circumvent the United States Court's Decision. We are interested in the contributors associated with the big business and especially interested in any industry holding a government contract.

Legal opinion is divided as to whether the application of the law which requires candidates to reveal their contributors can also be applied to a constitutional amendment.

NEW YORK — Undaunted by the Alabama Supreme Court's rejection of an application to stay execution of the $100,000 contempt of court fine levied against the Association by Circuit Court Judge Walter B. Jones for failure to produce its membership list, attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People prepared this week-end further legal action to avert payment of the fine.

As a first step, Robert L. Carter, NAACP assistant special counsel, said, the return to the Alabama Supreme Court with a petition for a writ of certiorari asking for a review of the lower court's ruling against the Association. Meanwhile, he asserted, the attorneys are exploring other legal avenues to secure a stay of the execution of the $100,000 judgment.

The decision to withhold the names of the 14,566 NAACP members in the State of Alabama followed a telephone poll of the Association's National Board of Directors. By a margin of three to one, the directors who could be reached indicated to Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins that he should decline to submit the names to the Alabama court for the inspection of the state's attorney general.

In a statement issued following imposition of the fine on July 30, Mr. Wilkins charged that the sum demanded was "punitive, even confiscatory. Obviously, this amount is beyond our ability to pay out of regular income," he said. "We intend to use every possible legal step to contest this excessive fine."
