STRONG CIVIL RIGHTS PLANK SEEN —

GOP To Back Court Ruling

Republicans will write a strong civil rights plank into their platform when the party meets in its national convention next week at San Francisco, according to views expressed by Alexander Barnes, long-time Republican and candidate for the state senate.

Hodges, Tom Pearsall, W. B. Rodman and the rest of that ilk at the recent debate in Raleigh. These men and their actions are characteristic of the Democratic party, he asserted. Barnes dismissed Tenn. Gov. Frank Clement's keynote address to the democratic national convention Monday as "just another case of a floundering demagogue trying to catch at any straw."

Two Negro students will be admitted to Women's College at Greensboro this September. They are Bettye Ann Davis Tillman, 19, of Wadesboro, and Elizabeth Jo Ann Smart, 17, of Raleigh. They are the first Negroes to be admitted to this branch of the consolidated University of North Carolina. Both will live on the campus. Seven Negro students had applied for admission to Women's College, but two did not complete their credentials and three failed to meet scholastic requirements, it was revealed by Miss Mildred Newton, director of admissions. Miss Newton said letters informing the two girls of their acceptance were sent out shortly after their applications had been completed. Earlier this summer, it was revealed that two Negro students had been accepted as undergraduates for the first time at North Carolina State College in Raleigh. Last year, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, accepted its first Negro undergraduates. Mrs. Tillman, who is presently in Washington, is a resident of Wadesboro where she lives with an aunt. She is a graduate of Anson County school where she was active in the school

Walker Case To Be Appealed To High Court

JACKSON Attorney James R. Walker was convicted of assault on a female here last week in what many have termed a "Mack Ingram verdict." Walker was convicted of the charge on the strength of testimony which showed that he argued and pointed his finger at Mrs. Helen Taylor, a Seaboard precinct registrar. In 1951, Mack Ingram, a Caswell county farmer, was convicted of assault on a female on evidence which proved that he "leered" at her from a distance of 75 feet. The case attracted international attention, and Ingram was subsequently acquitted by the State Supreme Court in 1953. Mrs. Taylor and her husband, W. H. Taylor, only witnesses for the state in the day and a half trial which ended here last Wednesday, testified that the extent of Walker's actions was to argue, at times loudly, and point his finger at Mrs. Taylor. At one point, it was brought out that Walker pointed to the floor and declared that he would not move from that spot, a distance, all witnesses agreed, of approximately four feet from Mrs. Taylor. Notice of appeal of the verdict to the State Supreme Court was filed immediately by Attorney Samuel S. Mitchell of the Raleigh law firm of Taylor and Mitchell, handling Walker's defense. Mitchell first sought to have the case dismissed, on the basis that 1, it was contrary to evidence, 2, it was contrary to law, and 3, that a new trial should be ordered. Each appeal was denied by Judge Henry L. Stevens, who, in his charge to the jury had stated that "the fact that the defendant in this action is of Ethiopian heritage and the prosecuting witness of Caucasian heritage should not be taken into consideration. The trial here last week was the result of an appeal from a Recorder's Court decision which had found Walker guilty of trespass last May. The first court action grew out of a dispute which Walker had with Mrs. Taylor over the qualification of Negroes seeking to register for the May Democratic primary. When Walker and his defense

BABY'S LIFE PAWNEED FOR CAR

Couple Blame Each Other In Child Slaying

ATTY. JAMES R. WALKER another "Mack Ingram?"

OXFORD A common law united couple accused each other here last week of taking the life of their seven months old baby. Both have been formally charged with murder, pending indictments. Arthur Hunt, 32 year old sawmill worker, and his common law wife, Hertie Mae Hunt, were arrested shortly after the death of their daughter Nannie Hunt last June 27. Police made the arrests after their suspicions had been aroused when attending physicians refused to sign a death warrant. Miss Hunt has signed a confession, blaming her mate for the death of the child. The infant died of repeated blows to the skull with blunt instrument, an autopsy showed. Police theorized that the Hunts planned to use insurance money collected on the baby's life to pay for an automobile. It was pointed out that the Hunts were shopping around for a used car shortly before the child's death, and allegedly told one dealer that they would be able to make a down payment on a car in a few days when they got some money. When questioned about this statement, Hunt admitted that his wife must have been talking (Please turn to page 8)

Action Sought To Get Judge To Issue Ruling

Writ Of Mandamus Plea Filed Against Jurist In Old Fort Case

RALEIGH Action seeking to have a State judge render judgement in a case in which Negro parents are seeking to have their children admitted to a white school was filed Wednesday. Attorneys Herman Taylor and Samuel Mitchell of Raleigh, counsel for a group of plaintiffs in Old Fort seeking to have their children admitted to the only school in the town, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus against State Judge Wilson Warlick, seeking to have him render a decision in the case. Judge Warlick deferred any judgement in the case when it was argued before him in July. He ordered a stay in the proceedings until plaintiffs had exhausted state administrative remedies as prescribed in the North Carolina Pupil Assignment Law. The petition filed by Attorneys Mitchell and Taylor this week requests the court of appeals to "compel Judge Warlick to permit plaintiffs to file sup-

A. M. E. ZION CHURCH SEEKS NEW MEMBERS

CHARLOTTE Dr. W. S. Dacons, Director of the Bureau of Evangelism of the A.M.E. Zion Church, outlined an extensive plan whereby he hopes to increase the membership of the denomination here this week. Dr. Dacons pointed to the fact that he was going to point to the fact that those who say the church is losing ground is in error. He says that the trouble is that the real tenets of the Christian religion are not being told and explained to the people as they were in years past.

Alabama High Court Leaves Fine Intact

MONTGOMERY, Ala. The $100,000 fine levied on the NAACP by an Alabama court remained intact this week after the State's highest court refused to touch the lower court decision. Alabama State Supreme Court Monday rejected an appeal by NAACP attorneys to review a contempt of court charge and the fine levied against the organization by a lower court. Circuit Court judge Walter B. Jones issued an injunction against the NAACP's operations in the state at the request of state attorneys and later cited the NAACP for contempt when it refused to turn over membership lists to the state and levied the fine as a result of its contempt citation. Before a courtroom packed to overflowing here Monday, NAACP special counsel Robert Carter of New York argued for the Supreme Court to issue a writ of certiorari, or a review of the lower court decision. Carter argued in support of a brief previously filed by the NAACP which pointed out what it termed legal errors in Judge Jones' conduct of the trial. State Attorney General John Patterson contended that the NAACP brief was insufficient to warrant a review of the decision. The Supreme Court held in brief and unanimous opinion that grounds were insufficient for reopening the case.
