

CALHOUN WINS IN OLYMPICS

Lovely Martha Flowers, seen as "Bess" in the recent adaptation of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" which played 29 countries of the world including Russia, will be heard in a concert in Winston-Salem at the Winston-Salem Teachers College gymnasium on Monday night, Dec. 10.

A Winston-Salem native, Miss Flowers got her start in the Twin City singing to the accompaniment of her father, Rev. Thomas Flowers who says he is "right proud" of his daughter. Since embarking on a serious career in music, she has won the Marion Anderson Award, a John Hay Whitney Fellowship and the Walter W. Maumburg Award. Her appearance in Winston-Salem will be sponsored by the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity.

Winston-Salem Husband Beats Mate To Death

WINSTON-SALEM
A 54 year old factory worker who admitted to beating his wife with his fists, kicking her and then hitting her several times with a steel chair, is being held for murder in connection with her death here last Friday.

Charged with murder as result of the death of Margie Transou, alias Margie Transou McCollum, is her common-law husband Melvin William McCollum of 305 East Eighth St. McCollum was arrested Saturday morning.

McCollum admitted to police that he beat the Transou woman in a fight which started Friday as the result of an argument between the two over another woman.

The wild death struggle which raged back and forth through all the rooms of the house and which finally ended in the yard, left the dwelling a shambles.

Members of the Transou woman's family said McCollum beat the woman into unconsciousness on the outside of the house and then took her back inside, threw her down, locked the house and left.

Bus Boycott Turns To Nationwide Non-Violence Call

Top National Leaders Meet On Idea Dec. 3

MONTGOMERY, Ala.
A move to turn the force which sustained the near year-long boycott of buses here by Negroes into a nationwide passive resistance movement was seen this week in the scheduling of an institute on non-violence by the organization which sponsored the boycott.

Officials of the Montgomery Improvement Association, the group formed and headed by Rev. Martin Luther King to direct the boycott, announced this week that Rev. King will lead an institute on "Non-Violence and Social Change" here from December 3-9.

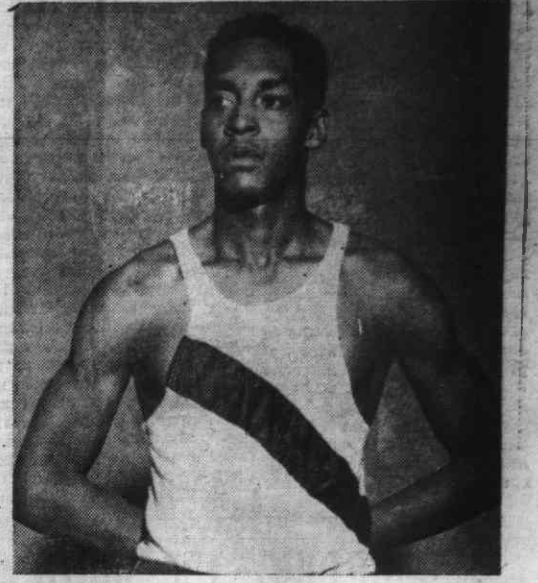

At the same time, it was revealed that Rev. King issued an appeal to the 50,000 Negroes of Montgomery to "rededicate themselves to non-violence in their struggle for dignity."

Some of the country's most outstanding liberals and leaders from many fields are expected to participate in the institute, according to the association's statement. Among them are Lillian Smith, noted southern author, Rev. Gardner Taylor, Miss Nannie Borrowings, and Rev. Glenn Smiley.

Sometime before the end of the bus boycott here, the feeling had been expressed by many especially liberals who came to see the boycott in action, that the passive resistance principle behind the boycott should be extended into other areas on a national scale.

Rev. King, boycott spokesman who travelled all over the country speaking on the boycott, was insistent in his belief that the passive resistance technique should be employed in all areas of the struggle by Negroes.

Grid Race Ends In 3-Way Tie

The race for the football championship in the CIAA ended in a three way tie, according to unofficial standings computed at the close of the conference's season.

North Carolina College, Morgan and Delaware wound up with identical Dickinson ratings of 24.16 to claim a share of the crown.

The NCC Eagles posted a 5-0-2 (won, lost, tied) record for the season. Delaware and Morgan had identical 5-0-1 records.

It is believed that this is the first time in the history of the conference that a football title has been shared three ways.

There has been no official reports from conference statisticians Leroy T. Walker as to final outcome of the conference race as it concerns the top three teams. However, standings of the rest of the conference is pretty well settled.

Defending champion Maryland State wound up in fourth place, St. Augustine's fifth; Bluefield, sixth; and Virginia Union, seventh, to round out the first division.

Second division teams, in order of their rankings, include A and T, Shaw and Fayetteville (tied for ninth); Winston-Salem, Hampton, Howard, J. C. Smith, Virginia State, Lincoln and St. Paul.

Sources close to CIAA offices in Durham say that there is the possibility that an interpretation of the rules may be applied which would give North Carolina the title. Walker, conference statistician, declined to speculate on this possibility.

Already, North Carolina College, Morgan and Delaware have laid claims to the title through their publicity offices.

In deciding games on Thanksgiving Day, North Carolina College defeated arch-rival A and T, 20-0 in Durham; Morgan stopped Virginia State, 25-8 in Petersburg, Va.; and Union mauled Hampton, 31-0 in Hampton, Va.

Plan To Tax NAACP In Georgia Hit

NEW YORK
The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as a non-profit organization, has been exempt from the payment of federal and state income tax, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary, observed in commenting on action by the Georgia state revenue officials who, on Nov. 21, instituted legal action to collect such taxes from NAACP units operating in the state.

The NAACP, Wilkins declared, "is not a profit-making organization, is so recognized by the federal government, the governments of New York State and other states. Not until the action against our organization in Texas last month was this question ever raised. Georgia had not previously requested payment of such taxes. Nor do we believe that the state levies income taxes against the Boy Scouts, the YMCA, the Red Cross and similar non-profit organizations. We doubt very much that Georgia requires payment of this tax by the White Citizens Councils and

Quakers Reveal Plan To Aid Desegregation

GREENSBORO
The American Friends Service Committee announced Monday the appointment of a committee to guide its recently established program on the public schools.

Members of the committee, announced by B. Tarrt Bell, Executive Secretary of the Service Committee's Southeastern Regional Office in Greensboro are: G. McLeod Bryan, Winston Salem, Professor of Philosophy, Wake Forest College; Marc Friedlaender, Greensboro, Professor of English, Woman's College of the University of North Carolina; Joseph S. Himes, Durham, Professor of Sociology, North Carolina College; Mrs. David D. Jones, Greensboro, wife of the late president of Bennett College; James Matlocks, High Point, attorney; W. I. Morris, Burlington, Field Representative, N. C. Teachers Association; W. Carson Ryan, Chapel Hill, Professor Emeritus of Education, University of North Carolina; and David Stanfield, Minister of Springfield Friends Meeting, High Point.

The new program, Bell said, will work with those individuals and organizations in North Carolina communities who are seeking constructive compliance with the Supreme Court decision making school segregation illegal.

"The program will try to help local communities work toward community supported desegregation," he said. "We start with the assumption that local interracial efforts must be cooperatively undertaken as first steps toward this goal."

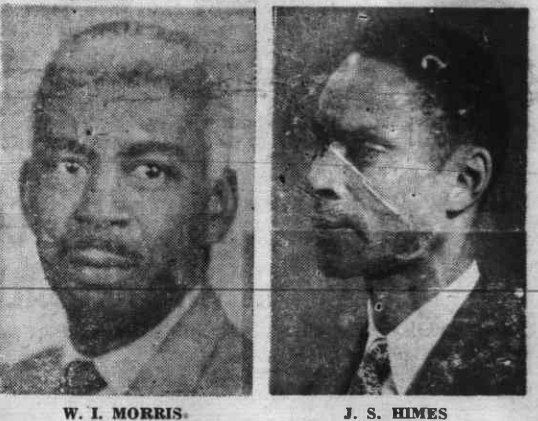

John W. Alexander of Chapel Hill, former teacher and businessman, will direct the program.

During the next five years the program will make available to North Carolina communities a service of information and counselling on school integration, Bell said.

"The committee appointed today will seek to draw on the experience of other areas that have faced the same problems. Our focus will be principally on local areas since each must make its own decisions on school integration based on knowledge of special local conditions."

Bell emphasized, however, that because of the finality of the Court decision and changing world conditions all communities would sooner or later have to face up to the issue.

NCC Star Blazes To New Games Mark

Special to the TIMES—Melbourne, Australia
Lee Calhoun, gazelle sprinter from Gary, Indiana, blazed to a new Olympic games record here Wednesday as he won the finals of the 110 meter high hurdles.

Calhoun broke the tape in the time of 13.5, an eye-lash ahead of the favorite, Lt. Jack Davis of the U. S. Navy. Joel Shankle, Duke University graduate student, placed third to give the American team a complete sweep in the event.

Calhoun's winning time of 13.5 broke the previous Olympic mark of 13.7, established at Helsinki by Harrison Dillard and Jack Davis.

The North Carolina College junior thus became the second tan athlete to win a gold medal. Charles Dumas, world record holder in the high jump, won that event on the opening day of the games here last week.

Word was received in Durham this week that Asa T. Spaulding, member of the United States delegation to the UNESCO conference in New Delhi, India, has been appointed to serve as temporary chairman of the delegation in many instances.

According to information received this week, Spaulding has substituted for the chairman of the delegation during four of the plenary sessions of the general conference.

In addition, he represented the delegation in the debate on the right of Nationalist China to vote in the conference. The vote was 33 for, 19 against, and 7 abstentions. Eighteen representatives were absent from the meeting. During the month long conference, Spaulding has voted for the delegation on four other occasions and serves as spokesman for the United States in the Technical Assistance discussion in the Program Commission.

The conference opened on Nov. 5 and is scheduled to end Dec. 5.

Spaulding is expected to return to the country between Dec. 10 and 15. His wife accompanied him.

Spaulding Acts As Chairman Of U. S. Delegation

"An overwhelming desire and the ability to lift himself up for the 'big' races is the real reason for Calhoun's victory," Leroy Walker, coach of the Olympic star said in Durham after receiving news of his pupil's surprising win in the Olympics.

"Lee wanted to win, and he has the knack of putting out his best efforts for the important races," Walker said.

The head track coach at N. C. College said that he was not overly surprised at Calhoun's victory over Jack Davis, who himself has a time of 13.3 in the 110 hurdles up for consideration as a world's record.

The fact that Davis had come close in the 1952 Olympics, was

Prizes for the winners in the Carolina Times first college Scholarship Contest were scheduled to be presented at a formal ceremony at the Roxboro elementary school auditorium Thursday night, Nov. 29.

First three prize winners, in order, are Glovenuia Bass, Alexander Brandon and Frank Bradsher.

Speakers for the program include L. E. Austin, publisher of the Carolina Times, and Jesse W. Gray, contest manager who will award the prizes. Ministers from the surrounding area are also expected to participate.

Miss Bass won a $250 award to be applied to expenses at the college of her choice. Brandon won $150 and Bradsher, $100.

The program was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the school auditorium.
