Supreme Court brought to an end one phase of a two and one-half year effort by attorneys in her behalf. Handling the case was the Taylor-Mitchell firm of Raleigh. They were assisted by John Rennick of Wadesboro.

Attorney Samuel Mitchell said that actions against individuals involved in the case would also be instituted now that this phase of it has been settled.

The case resulted in the abandoning of gags by the prison system to quiet unruly

Now's The Time For Steak Quality And Supply Good

By Nancy Carter

Thick, juicy, sizzling broiled steak with onions is just about a favorite food with every American. Now's the time to enjoy them, too, for good quality mature beef is coming on the market in plentiful supply.

There are six or more cuts of beef ideal for broiling. So choose the cut you like best. If you want to serve a steak for each person then choose beef tenderloin, club, boned-in loin, or even small T-bone steaks. For family or for company choose a big sirloin steak weighing 1 1/2 to 2 pounds. The most important thing to remember when buying steaks for broiling is to buy top quality meat. In most supermarkets you'll find U.S. Choice beef also labeled with the store's brand and the money back guarantee for satisfaction. If you're in doubt about choosing a particular cut ask the meat man to point out each cut so you can judge which is best for your family. In self service markets the labels have the grade, brand, name of cut and cooking directions on them so read them carefully.

PERFECT BROILED STEAK

There's no trick to broiling a perfect steak. Slash the fat edges so the steak won't curl. Rub seasoned broiler lightly with fat. Lay steaks on broiler and adjust rack so top of steak is 2 to 4 inches from heat source. Broil until one side is brown. Season. Turn steak with tongs. Broil other side. Season and serve at once. If you'd like a time table for broiling steaks write to me, Nancy Carter, P. O. Box 4353, Atlanta, Ga. and ask for "Free Meat Book."

prisoners. Also, I. B. Hinton, superintendent of Women's Prison at the time of the incident, was moved to what is generally described as a lesser job at Caledonia Prison farm.

Judge R. Hunt-Parker wrote a dissenting opinion in the Supreme Court verdict, declaring that the Rush girl was guilty of contributory negligence which contributed to her death.

North Carolina law was not wholly unconstitutional it is not necessary for Negro plaintiffs to pursue remedy in the state courts provided for by the assignment acts before going into federal court.

According to this ruling, once a Negro plaintiff has applied for assignment from his school authorities and his request has been acted upon, he is then free to go to the federal courts to seek relief.

The idea behind setting up the procedure requiring relief in the state court is to permit a hearing before a jury. A unanimous decision would have to be returned by a jury for relief.

However, Judge Parker's ruling that application to the state court was not necessary in effect destroys the teeth of the North Carolina pupil assignment act.

Speculation-

It listed Secretary of State Thad Eure and Atty. Gen. George B. Patton, Jr., as co-defendants in the causes of action.

However, the high court ruled that Patton could not properly be listed as a defendant in the second cause of action involving registration of organizations influencing public opinion or legislation.
