Scared Winston-Salem Teacher Names Durhamite

WINSTON-SALEM
Dr. James P. Hightower, naturopathic physician, 49, of 2223 Manchester Street was arrested here Tuesday, January 15, and placed in City Jail under $5,000 bond, being charged with giving treatment to a 21 year old unmarried, pregnant school teacher, with instruments and drugs to induce the young woman to have a miscarriage.

Although police refused to identify the woman at the time of this writing, they did, however, say she is a native of Winston-Salem and had been employed as a teacher at a school near Edenton.

City detectives reported that they began investigation of the case Monday, January 14, after Edenton police chief G. I. Dial notified them that the young woman had given birth to a dead, premature baby, Sunday, January 13, at a home in Edenton where she was a tenant.

Chief Dial stated that the woman evidently became frightened at the time of delivery and contacted a doctor to treat her. This brought about investigation of the matter.

The teacher told detectives during questioning, that she decided to have an abortion because she and her boy friend, (also unidentified) broke up. She said her boy friend lives in Durham.

DR. EDMONDS

NCC Professor

Edmonds Going Back To Europe

Dr. Helen G. Edmonds, Graduate Professor of History, North Carolina College, will be on leave this semester with the United States Department of State. She was contacted by the State Department in November, 1955, relative to this assignment, the complete arrangements having been concluded in September, 1956.

North Carolina College was exceedingly happy that the services of one of its professors were to be utilized in our Foreign Program, requested by the Leadership-Specialists Division of the International Educational Exchange Service.

She will depart the United States in early February for Denmark, Sweden, West Germany and Austria where she will participate in the cultural programs of the United States. The experience will not be new to this scholar, professor and lecturer. In 1954-55, she pursued post-doctoral historical research on "Die Begriffe von Leopold von Ranke's Weltgeschichte Konzeptionen" at the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

The demands upon her platform ability as a lecturer were made by many German groups. She volunteered her services without compensation and joined the lecture program of the Information Agencies and the Women's Division of Cultural Affairs. During the months of May, June, July and early August, 1955, she lectured in every major West German city, made radio broadcasts and was interviewed over the same.

Aside from her assets of having a charming personality and being well-versed in the art of human relations, she speaks the German language fluently. She delivered her addresses in that language. Innumerable press conferences were held.

When queried about her forthcoming venture, Dr. Edmonds said, "I hope to continue to be one of the best roving ambassadors for the United States who ever left these shores."

Prior to her departure from the United States, she attended the Presidential Inaugural ceremonies and activities as the special guest of President and Mrs. Eisenhower. She states that this personal letter of invitation from the President and the First Lady is just about the most thrilling invitation she has ever received.

It stands alongside her signal honor of having been the first Negro woman in history to second the nomination of a President, when she seconded the nomination of Mr. Eisenhower in San Francisco, Calif., August, 1956.

Dr. Edmonds is a native of Lawrenceville, Virginia. She attended St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute in her hometown; received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Morgan State College, Baltimore, Maryland; and both Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

History is her field of specialization and she has taught the same at Virginia Theological Seminary and College, St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute, and since 1941, at the North Carolina College at Durham.

Dr. Edmonds is author of THE NEGRO AND FUSION POLITICS IN NORTH CAROLINA, published by the University of North Carolina Press, 1951, and listed in the October, 1956 re-

Robinson On Fund-Raising Tour, Says Country Needs The NAACP

NEW YORK
The work of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People benefits not only Negro citizens but the entire nation, Jackie Robinson, national chairman of the Association's 1957 Fight for Freedom Fund, said here today prior to leaving on an 11-city tour for the NAACP.

"In the present world crisis," Robinson told newsmen at a press conference, "the colored peoples of the world have their eyes on America to see how Negroes are treated here. We are expending huge sums in giving assistance to some of these people abroad but their real attitude will be determined in large measure by their reaction to the way in which the race problem is handled here at home. We need the support of these people."

The NAACP, the former National League baseball star said, by helping to improve conditions for Negroes in this country strengthens the prestige of the nation among other countries. Accordingly, he asserted, "white people need to support the NAACP as strongly as do Negroes because it means as much to them as to colored people. The NAACP is an asset to the nation." He expressed appreciation for "the contributions of the Spingarns and other white persons to the NAACP cause."

First stop on Jackie's tour is Baltimore where he will address a mass meeting on Jan. 26.

Man Had Buried Wife, Daughter Under House

CHARLOTTE
A woman's hand sticking up out of the ground led police to a grisly discovery here this week which resulted in murder charges against a 33 year old warehouse worker.

James Thomas Jackson is being held without bond on charges of murdering his wife and 15 year old daughter.

The grim murders were uncovered Saturday morning. Police found the bodies of Mrs. Ruth Nelson Jackson, 37, and her daughter, Bernice, buried in shallow graves beneath the apartment house where they lived.

An unidentified man who was helping Jackson move furniture from the basement of the apartment house noticed a woman's hand protruding from the ground and this led to the police investigation and the discovery.

Jackson confessed to police that he killed his wife and daughter on the morning of January 10.

According to police reports, Jackson said that his wife struck him with a piece of iron as he lay in bed. He said that he then struck her with an iron mallet. As she fell, Jackson said he was attacked by the step-daughter with a bayonet. He was quoted as saying that he struck the step-daughter and then "blacked out."

Medicos' Unit Nixes Partial Memberships

The executive committee of the Old North State Medical Society voted in its interim meeting in Durham recently to refuse limited membership in County Units of the Medical Society of North Carolina.

In voting for the recommendation, the committee pointed out that acceptance of limited membership would label the members as a second class physician and that such membership would not meet requests made from the N. C. Medical Society for full memberships.

The committee also voted to commend the action of the High Point-Greensboro Medical Society for their action in refusing to accept limited membership in the Guilford County unit of the State Medical Society.

Also, the committee approved the outlined program of chairman of the program committee, Dr. George Evans, for the 70th annual meeting set for A and T College in June.
