

Gastonia Girl Among Nine At Spelman Named In Who's Who

ATLANTA, Ga. — Nine Spelman College students will be listed in the forthcoming issue of Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Six members of the senior class and three juniors were elected to this honor by their fellow students from a list of twenty-seven candidates prepared by the registrar and approved by the faculty. They were chosen on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character and service to Spelman College.

The students are: Juliet Dobbs Blackburn, Jackson, Mississippi; Ray Francis Chatman, Atlanta; Pauline Evangeline Drake, Atlanta; Willie Dolle Glover, Macon, Georgia; Rebecca Gordon, Atlanta; Prethania Joyce Kent, Statesboro, Georgia; Mamie Gray Russell, Gastonia, North Carolina; Jeanell Stovall, Atlanta; Delo Elizabeth Washington, Beaufort, South Carolina.

New Faculty Members Named

GREENSBORO — Addition of one new faculty member was announced at Bennett College as the second semester began on Monday. Roger L. Askew, of Kansas City, Kansas, has been added as an instructor in drama and speech. Mr. Askew, an A. B. from Flak University, earned his M. A. in dramatic arts at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

(Continued from page 5) to send the game into overtime. In two previous contests the Bulldogs had dropped 75-38 and 73-59 decisions to the jet-propelled Tigers.

It doesn't take much imagination to understand that the Tiger headman was happy when this affair was over. But with Coach Fred Hobdy's Grambling Tigers moving in the following night, the Tiger master's reprieve was only short-lived as the Louisiana cagers picked up where the Bulldogs left off.

The Jackson State squad eked out a hard earned 76-72 win and never led by a margin larger than nine points. The score was tied 15-15 at the end of the first quarter and the visitors trailed by only three points at the half.

-Vote-

(continued from page 1) after the trial that the case rested largely on the defense contention that Faison was not a resident of his precinct, which the jury later sustained.

They maintained during trial after the residence question had become an issue that it was an afterthought of the defense and was not an original issue in the matter.

R. E. Giles, an assistant North Carolina attorney general who was one of Mrs. Taylor's defense attorneys, persuaded the jury, by use of a map, that the Faison home was not located in the Seaboard precinct at which Mrs. Taylor refused him registration.

In his argument, Atty. Taylor pointed out that all the Faisons live in the same house and that Faison's brother and father had registered at the Seaboard precinct.

-Scheidt-

(continued from page 1) According to Lynn Nisbet, columnist in a North Carolina daily, Scheidt was given the assignment of representing the state in hearings on the civil rights proposals some days ago by North Carolina's Governor, Luther Hodges.

Rev. Cannady is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Parham Cannady; three daughters, Mrs. Alma C. Rowland of Henderson; Mrs. Amnye C. Buck of Charlotte; and Mrs. Lucille C. Pinkett of Washington, D. C.; two grandchildren, Vernon Buck and James Rowland; a sister, Mrs. Mollie Peace; and a brother, Warner H. Cannady, both of Oxford.

Funeral services were held at St. Joseph AMEZ Church in Oxford on February 2. The eulogy was delivered by Rev. L. C. Asbury, Presiding Elder, Concord District, West Central

N. C. Conference, Monroe. Interment was in the Cheatham Memorial Cemetery in Oxford.

-Editor-

Phillip Jefferson, senior Psychology major, admitted Taylor had a perfect right to his opinion, but felt that he shouldn't try to belittle athletics if he felt scholastics needed improving. "You don't make the American league better by tearing down the Yankees. You should build up the White Sox," he asserted.

There were some students on Taylor's side, however, though pitifully few in comparison to the total student population.

Barbara McLendon, Washington, D. C. commerce major, said, for instance, "I don't see anything wrong with Taylor's peice." Horace G. Dawson, faculty advisor of the student newspaper, said that the paper has always maintained a policy of press freedom consistent with responsibility.

In answering critics of the newspaper policy which permitted Taylor to voice an unpopular opinion, Dawson said, "I don't think that any paper should restrict itself to an expression of popular opinion. Because of his position, the editor always has an obligation to express what seems to him, in the light of his own judgement, to be correct."

figures in the controversy, appeared to be unimpressed by the whole thing. Unavailable for comment, his coach, L. T. Walker, said he shrugged it off as "one of those things."

Folks, we would like to do more business than we do, but we just don't believe in paying you to trade with us at YOUR EXPENSE. We could give away free stamps, cash, or a dozen other tricks to get you in our store, but if you are old enough to buy food you know that the customer pays the total cost from beginning to end. In fact, the small ads we put in this paper cost four thousand a year and you know who pays for it, and a store that does 50 thousand a week and gives you so-called free stamps pays six thousand dollars a month for them and if they can be given away free, in my opinion there is too much profit to start with. In fact, a while back when you saw those carnival sales, that was a good name for them — but who ever won anything at a carnival?

(This might sound like sour grapes but I have a Meat Market in another state that does over a quarter of a million dollars a year, same location for 30 years, and I give away free prizes. The people demand it. I make a nice profit, but I don't sell as low as I do in Durham.)
