

Grant Robbins' fellow employees at the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company plant in Durham gave Robbins a testimonial dinner recently on the occasion of his retirement from the firm after 55 years.

Robbins, 72 years old, was officially retired by the company last Wednesday after he had served for nearly half a century. He started to work for the firm in Wilmington in 1902, was transferred to Durham in 1926 where he has worked in various capacities, including masonry, carpentry, coal passer, fireman and "sample mixer." Seen in the above picture, in clockwise order, are Jesse Shepard, Evander Burwell, June Sumter, John Holliday, Robbins (standing), George Hatcher (standing), James Alston, Albert Allen and Al Bynum.

Planning for the event here has gone along largely through the efforts of the Convention committee, chaired by Mrs. Estelle Bates, and the Program committee, headed by Mrs. Viola H. Robinson.

about $800,000 being split equally for the two.

The whole situation and plans for the new school, it is reported, is well known to a Negro school committee of Merrick-Moore, one of the units serving pupils in the Bragtown area. However, parents not on the school board and whose children must travel up to 25 miles per day are becoming impatient at what many of them term gross discrimination which has existed for the past eight or 10 years.

-Duke-

president was quoted as saying: "Last summer we conducted a special course in radiation biology at our Marine laboratory at Beaufort under contract with the Atomic Energy Commission, and a Negro high school teacher was among those who received training."

The teacher was identified as Joseph Parker of Durham, who teaches at Merrick-Moore High School.

Mrs. Herring, one of the three teachers scheduled to attend the special Science and Mathematics Institutes at Duke this summer, is a graduate of Hampton Institute and Chicago University. She entered the teaching profession in 1924 in Asheville, where she makes her home currently. She has held various positions in teaching and administration.

For the past 11 years, she has directed a reading Workshop in North Carolina College's Summer School. She is also scheduled to conduct the workshop again this year.

The organization making the grants to the teachers, the National Science Foundation, is a government-supported agency whose program of study grants for teachers of Science and Mathematics was set up some five years ago.

In addition to the workshop at Duke, one will also be conducted in this area at North Carolina College during the summer session. Dr. W. H. Robinson, chairman of the N. C. College Physics Department, will conduct the Institute. Dr. Robinson told the TIMES this week that this will be the first year that the foundation has opened its scholarship program to high school teachers. The program was developed, he said, because of the belief that "maintaining scientific and technical leadership is of vital importance to progress and security of our nation."

study; $1,500 for the second nine months, and $2,000 for the third year. The awards are made to students who plan to make careers in college teaching.

Willoughby, 24 year old Navy veteran, is married and father of three children. Additional allotments will be made for his dependents.

Taylor, 21 year old English and social science major, is managing editor of the "Campus Echo" student newspaper, and an honor student.

Willoughby is a chemistry major.

Dr. Browne, a native of Memphis, Tenn., received the B.S. degree at Howard University, and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Michigan.

Before coming to NCC in '49, she taught at Wiley College in Marshall, Tex., and at the University of Michigan.

As a graduate student, the NCC mathematician received study grants from the General Education Board and from the University of Michigan Graduate School and the Engineering Research Institute.

Mitchell, commerce major and an honor student, is scheduled to leave the United States on June 28. He will study in the Institute for English speaking Teachers and Students at the University of Oslo. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell of Walnut Cove (NC).

-Park-

the team's plans.

They are pitcher Ted Richardson, catcher Wendell Antoine and infielder-outfielder Wycliffe Morton.

In the past, seating at the park has been handled on a strictly segregated basis at all Durham Bulls home games. A portion of the grandstand and a right field bleacher section has been reserved for Negroes.

The park is owned by the city but leased to the Bulls for their home games.

Several attempts in the past have been made to crack the segregation barrier at Durham Athletic park, to no avail. The most recent venture came some three years ago when a Negro group, attempted, through an exchange of correspondence with city and Durham Bulls officials, to negotiate the issue.

At that time, however, the group gave up the attempt after a long period and reported that the city and baseball club officials had "passed the buck" on the matter-and it had become lost in the switching back and forth of responsibility in the matter of seating.

Legal precedents have been set for sometime in the issue of segregation in municipally owned facilities. Some years ago, the Supreme Court ruled out segregation in public recreational facilities in a case involving Seashore Park at Norfolk, Va.

In North Carolina, two cases have been brought in recent months which have also followed the Supreme Court's ruling in the Norfolk case.

At Charlotte, a state judge ruled out segregation at the city owned golf course. Judge Susie Sharp of Superior Court issued the ruling almost a year ago.

In Greensboro, a case paralleling the one in Charlotte has all but been settled, from all indications, along the same lines.

Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes has told lawyers in the case that he will rule against segregation at the Greensboro Gillespie Park Golf Course.

Speculation this week ran largely in two directions. Some observers feel that Negroes will be admitted without hesitation to any seat they choose when the Bulls open their season here. However, others voiced the opinion that city and club officials will put up token resistance to the move toward abandoning segregation at the park.

The Bulls were slated to open against Greensboro Wednesday night.

-March-

NAACP leader said today, "is not a March-on-Washington in the sense of the 1941 movement inasmuch as it is not designed to exert pressure on the executive branch of the government."

An office for the Pilgrimage has been set up in the NAACP national headquarters, 20 West 40th Street, New York 18, N. Y., with Rev. Thomas Kilgore, Jr., pastor of Friendship Baptist Church in New York, as executive director. Rev. Kilgore will work under the supervision of the three co-chairmen. Additional working space has been set up in Montgomery, Ala., and in Harlem. Rev. Ralph Abernathy of Montgomery is southern director.

In a letter to all NAACP units, Wilkins called upon them to initiate steps to get a large delegation to make the trip to Washington on May 17. The aim is to get a minimum of 50,000 persons in the city for an open air meeting scheduled for the park area in front of the Lincoln Memorial. The branches were urged to mobilize all civil rights supporters in their respective communities and to make arrangements for transportation to the nation's capital city.

Daily Studies Of Bible Held At Shiloh Bapt.

A series of daily studies of the Bible will be conducted at the Shiloh Baptist church at Morrisville, it was announced this week by Rev. J. H. Jones, pastor of the church.

The studies will be held Monday through Friday nights, April 15-19.

Rev. J. W. Fleming will be guest lecturer and in charge of the study sessions.

In revealing the Bible study week, Rev. Jones stated,

"To give efficient, courageous, and helpful service to God and to man, one must know what to do, how to do, and when to do. This knowledge brings fullness of joy and satisfaction to the helper and the helped. You owe the enlightenment of your mind to yourself; you owe it to God."
