would be in Washington, but not as a singer. According to Mike Merrick, Mr. Belafonte's manager, "Harry is not, of course, proposing to sing, he's coming as a citizen and as a lover of his own dignity and liberty. Of course, as a Negro, he has his stake in this whole civil rights question. When they count the numbers, Mr. and Mrs. Belafonte will be among those who are tabulated." Belafonte is expected to make a further statement upon his return.

Plans for the program which will include prayer, scripture readings, music and addresses are being developed by the three co-chairmen, A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, A.L.-CIO; the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., president of the Southern Leaders Conference; and Mr. Wilkins.

In addition to songs by Miss Jackson, there will be a 700-voice community chorus under the direction of Warner Lawson of Howard University as well as hymn singing by the audience.

Meanwhile reports received here indicate a large turnout for this assembly which will commemorate the third anniversary of the Supreme Court's historic ruling in the public school segregation cases, call for enactment of pending civil rights legislation, protest recent anti-Negro violence and terror in the South, and pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, the Great Emancipator.

OMEGAS HONOR BISHOP LOVE AND ATTORNEY H. C. MOULTRIE

CHARLESTON, S. C.
The members of the Sixth District, Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, comprising North and South Carolina, in the final session of the annual meeting gave plaques to Bishop Edgar A. Love and Attorney H. Carl Moultrie, for service rendered the Fraternity.

Bishop Love was one of the founders of the Greek letter Fraternity and was cited for the service he has rendered during the life of the group. Attorney Moultrie was honored for the service he has rendered as the National Executive Secretary.

The citations were made at a fellowship breakfast, held in the cafeteria of the Buist School, held Sunday morning. Bishop Love was the principal speaker and told of how the Fraternity was founded by Frank Coleman, Oscar J. Cooper, Ernest Just and himself, amid obstacles on the campus of Howard University in 1911.

He told those present to be ever mindful of the fact that the Fraternity was founded to develop friendship among men who had become attached to each other by a common bond. He extolled the virtues of the Fraternity and asked that even though scholarship was one of the principles upon which it was founded, it should always be remembered that friendship was the cornerstone upon which it was built.

J. Alston Atkins, retiring District Representative, presented the plaques and extolled the work of both of the men. He lauded the work and the character of Bishop Love and told of the fine traits of business acumen that Attorney Moultrie had instilled into the members by his untiring efforts and been judgment. Both of the men thanked the Fraternity for its kind consideration and rededicated themselves to work harder.
