as those of other sections of the country." Sen. Ervin of North Carolina said "It is a very effective refutation of the charge that southern jurors would not convict in a case involving the racial issue." It strengthens the case of those who are fighting for the retention of trial by jury.

Mrs. Speaks Will Direct Church Schools

Mrs. Janie A. Speaks, wife of Rev. R. L. Speaks of St. Mark A. M. E. Zion Church of Durham, has resigned her post as teacher in the Durham school system to become executive director of the St. Mark Nursery Kindergarten and director of the church's school of music.

Seventy-Nine Earn Places On Dean's List At Fayetteville State

FAYETTEVILLE The list of the students earning places on the Dean's list at Fayetteville State Teachers College was recently released by the school registrar. The list included 16 students from each of the freshman, sophomore and junior classes, 25 seniors and five special students.

In the opinion of many, the action was designed to prepare of the Pearsall Plan by federal courts. North Carolina state officials have watched closely the action of courts in striking down a similar plan which Virginia constructed for preventing integration.

C. L. Shuping, general counsel for the Patriots, warned the Greensboro board that "if this board tonight permits integration of one single colored boy to any branch of the school system of Greensboro, you shall be condemned, vilified, damned and cursed."

When he took over, there was little in the way of organized band activity at the school and it had virtually no equipment.

During his leadership, the band developed into a well-knit organization of top-flight scholastic musicians. In the twelve years in which the band was rated at the state clinic, it received only two ratings below the highest.

Hall is also credited with arousing an unprecedented interest among youngsters in instrumental music. In addition to leading the high school band, he taught instrumental music in the elementary schools.
