

Science And Engineering To Be Featured At A&T High School Day

GREENSBORO—The new and greater opportunities in the fields of science and engineering will be featured at the annual High School Senior Day to be held at A&T College on Saturday, October 26.

Special displays and demonstrations on amazing recent scientific developments and newer engineering techniques have been arranged for the high school youngsters who will be guests of the college for a full day. Lately engineered combat equipment will be demonstrated by Army ROTC cadets and Air Force ROTC cadets will show new equipment required in the "jet age".

William A. Gamble, dean of men and chairman of arrangements for the event, said this week that more than 6,000 High School seniors are expected to attend.

The program for the day, which gets underway promptly at 9:00 o'clock calls for a tour of shops, laboratories and classrooms where technical and scientific training is conducted; educational films, a concert by the famed A&T College Marching Band and the football game, to be played in the afternoon between the Aggies and Winston-Salem Teachers College.

The youngsters will have opportunity to visit students at the college, their hometowners and friends to discover, at first hand, how they study, learn and live.

The visitors will be guest of the students at luncheon and dinner.

ARTIST JOINS CITY LEAGUE

GREENSBORO—History was made here last week when James C. McMillan, art instructor at Bennett College, was invited by the Greensboro Artists' League to exhibit some of his works at an outdoor showing.

McMillan, a graduate of Howard and Catholic universities, who has also studied and exhibited in Paris, France, showed his "Christ," an oil painting, two pastel portraits, a pencil portrait, a Partisan landscape, and several still life pieces.

It seems we could have launched an earth satellite in 1955 but our experts weren't convinced—or maybe even aware—of the psychological advantage of being first in the race to outer space.
