cause of his NAACP work.
Whether you recognize it or not, you have become quite a figure in the community in this desegregation issue, the A and T president said, according to Edmonds. I have to look out for the interest of this school, Dr. Gibbs told him.
Edmonds said he then asked him if he were under pressure, and Dr. Gibbs replied that he had received two or three anonymous telephone calls.
The former dean who was elevated to the A and T College presidency two years ago then replied, according to Edmonds, I'm afraid of what might happen. I have to look out for this institution and the 400 people working here, and I must anticipate trouble.
Edmonds also told the TIMES that the NAACP had received no cooperation from A and T college in his two years as president of the organization. He said that Dr. Gibbs permitted a petition signed by 700 students requesting formation of a chapter at the college to die on his desk last year.
He also stated that the college refused to permit the gymnasium to be used for a program which was to have been addressed by Dr. Martin L. King of Montgomery, Ala.
Edmonds has been the key figure in recent appeals in Greensboro for ending segregation. Last summer, his leadership in attempting to desegregate the city-owned swimming pools led to the City Council's decision this fall to abandon public support for them.

Also, the organization has urged Bennett and A and T students to not attend the segregated movie houses.
Edmonds is being temporarily replaced in the Foundation work by Supt. Brown. Authoritative sources report that loss of the job with the Foundation will cost Edmonds from $1,500 to $2,000 per year.
The Bennett College professor is a native of San Antonio, Tex., is married and has four daughters, 16, 14, 12 and five years old.

"Our Association," he asserted, "expects to join others in pressing for additional legislation in the Congress and trusts that the Administration will see the wisdom of giving official support to the effort."

Also at the same Council meeting, held last September in Washington, D. C., the Bishops refused to grant a request from the church's senior Bishop S. L. Greene that a special general conference of the church be called next year to review the action restoring Bishop Nichols to duty.
Nichols' blast at Bishop Wright this week stemmed from an action in St. Louis, Mo. last week when Bishop Wright attempted to vacate the opinion of the church's Judicial Council which had confirmed the action of the Bishops' committee reinstating Nichols.

"It has become increasingly apparent that Bishop R. R. Wright, because of his well known infirmities is no longer capable of serving the AME Church without first thinking of his own personal hatred and self-aggrandizement," Bishop Nichols' statement to the press this week said.
"As an octogenarian, Bishop Wright's long career of service to the church has apparently come to an end; at least in an active capacity. The signs of senility so obvious in his determination to wreck the church are tragic. No longer can we tolerate what amounts to usurpation of authority to carry on his personal, and I hasten to add, unilateral feud with me.
"I feel compelled to warn my colleagues, in fact the entire Church, that we will suffer irreparable damage if we continue to permit selfish attitudes and personal vendettas to hinder our progress."

Choir.
The children that were so fortunate in having such a big package to visit them were: Althea Miller, 941 Taff Street; Calvin Weeks, 1434 Derry St.; Eugene Green, 713 Ridge Ave.; Sandra Lawrence, 604 N. Claremont Ave.; James Switzer, 514

N. Greenwood; Kelvin Payne, 1205 Hamlin Street; Nontress Scriven, 700 Powell Street; Maxine Brown, 1430 Flich Street; Robert L. Hanes and Melvin Lewis, 805 Crowder St.
Captain L. E. Ervin said: "I was well pleased at the way things went. The children seemed well pleased; the choir sang beautifully; the operation was a complete success."
Fire chief Dixon and Assistant Chief L.C. Williams, were on for brief periods to assist in the program.
The idea of "Operation Christmas Cheer," originated with in the Fire Department at No. 1 Station, and was accepted by the department, receiving some of the finest cooperation from the 13 member crew of No. 4 Station, which is managed by Captain L. E. Ervin, commanding officer, Lt. R. O. Black, Sgt. W. J. Carter, Sgt. R. L. Grier, Firemen J. F. Meredith, J. R. Thomas, R. S. Newlin, Evans Jones, W. D. Brown, L. L. Sellers, P. T. Hairston, R. H. Wright and Hixon were charged with selling dilaudid and pantapin; Hipps was charged with selling an ounce of loose marijuana; Little, with selling 99 marijuana cigarettes for $125 and Mrs. Cox, charged with selling dilaudid.
Hixon's arrest led to inventory of narcotic's supply at Paterson Drug Store as he was employed there.
Hipps, at the time of arrest, had marijuana in his possession. An ounce of loose marijuana and an estimated 50 grains was found in two separate bags inside a suitcase at the Hipps' residence, for which Hipps told police he paid $50. He stood to make $450 profit from that supply.

The two cars seized were owned by Hipps and Hixon. If it is proved that the pair had used the cars in dope peddling, the court will confiscate them.

"We believe, however, that the Governors lacked a full understanding of our methods and accomplishments when they stated that the President's Committee has too low a budget and is too limited in its objectives," General Ryan said.
When President Eisenhower established the Committee he charged the contracting agencies of the Government with primary responsibility for enforcement of the nondiscrimination policy.
"These agencies employ approximately 5,000 contracting and compliance officers whose duties include the investigation of complaints filed with the Committee, the conduct of reviews of the compliance of Government contractors, and the furtherance of the Committee's educational programs among these business and industrial leaders," General Ryan said.
"The Committee serves as a recommendatory and consultative body to the contracting agencies and, since it may call on these contracting agencies for field work, requires a far smaller budget than it would if it were working alone."
The Committee has increased its expenditures whenever it believed that such increases would contribute directly to the program of eliminating racial and religious discrimination. It has increased its staff in a similar, carefully-planned manner, as it has needed the services of more people, the Executive Vice Chairman reported.

A. & T. Beats Hampton Five

GREENSBORO
The A&T College Aggies took an easy 84-67 win, over Hampton Institute, but dropped 58-54 engagement to Bluefield State College in the first week of basketball competition.

In the opening contest, held here at the Charles Moore Gymnasium on last Saturday Dec. 7), the Aggies hopped on Hampton for two quick field goals immediately following the opening whistle and were never overhauled.

Nearly 3,000 spectators thrilled to the spectacular shooting of Joe Howell, Aggie playmaker who scored exactly one-third of his team's points, 28 in all. His
