Shaw Airmen Play Santa For 'Burned Out' Family

SHAW AFB, S. C. (TAC)

On Thursday, December 5, a fire of undetermined origin swept through the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Brown.

The frame house just off Route 76, near Shaw AFB, South Carolina, was completely destroyed along with the family's furniture, food stores and clothing. All that remained of their personal belongings were the clothes on their backs.

Through the kindness of friends and neighbors, the Browns and their seven children were moved to another house, but their lost clothing and other essentials could not be restored.

Soon their plight came to the attention of Lieutenants Claves Easter and Don Holman, pilots of the 20th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron at Shaw. The two officers took stock of the men within their organization, and decided that this family's problems could be at least partially solved by the 20th Squadron.

Easter and Holman then described the Browns' situation to squadron members and asked them to donate anything which might be useful.

Within a short time the squadron had collected many items of clothing including 20 pairs of shoes — dishes, pots and pans, sheets, pillow cases, blankets, and even toys for the children.

After everything had been collected, Lieutenant and Mrs. Easter packed the items and presented them to the Browns, along with sincere good wishes from the 20th Squadron's officers, airmen, and their families.

Congress Urged To Cut Solons From Alabama

NEW YORK
Alabama's vote on December 17 to liquidate Macon County because of its large Negro population warrants action by Congress "to reduce the number of representatives from Alabama," the NAACP declared here Thursday in a comment on the Alabama balloting.

Secretary Roy Wilkins labeled the Alabama vote "an open confession to the nation that Alabama will go to any length in order to prevent Negro citizens from enjoying their constitutional rights to vote" and said that while the manipulation of district lines "is well-known in American politics, for the first time in our history an entire county has been liquidated."

The Alabama amendment authorizes the legislature to divide Macon County and its large Negro population among neighboring counties. The amendment supporters, led by State Senator Sam Engelhardt, Jr., sponsor of the measure and executive secretary of the Alabama Association of Citizens Councils, seek to restrict the voting power of Negroes in Macon County. The county is predominantly Negro.
