Bishop Jones pointed out, however, that not all Negroes nor whites are prepared today to make an immediate start in moving toward the goal of complete political freedom for the race, and he criticized paternalistic and sociological approaches to the problems.

"The trouble with most people's notion about freedom is that it is too individual. A dozen Negroes, none hundred Negroes, nor a thousand Negroes, specially favored instruments in the white man's hand to keep between 17 and 18 millions of black men quiet will never emancipate the race.

"Liberty is a boat we're all in. A leak anywhere will sink it," he said.

Bishop Jones took issue with the approach which considered the Negro "a problem to America. There are no social programs...I like to think of such as conditions to be lived through instead of puzzles to be worked out.

"We don't want to be studied as a case, nor pitied nor helped in such a spirit. We want a square deal, equal opportunity or just desert," the Methodist prelate said.

Despite the handicaps which from the outset surrounded the Negro in his struggle for complete American citizenship, Bishop Jones asserted that the race has made rapid strides in advancing toward the goal of full freedom and cited several examples of individual achievements in many avenues of American life.

Although the Negro has done well in America, he stated, he has strayed from his true African background training in virtue, honesty, industry and religious faith.

"If this man you call black in a white America will be himself and live his own life in the light of his illustrious ancestors as a 20th century man adjusting himself among other people in God's world big enough and rich enough for all God's children, he will enjoy in the years to come a freedom not purchased by the shedding of blood but will come in the natural course of human events.

The Bishop was introduced by Rev. R. L. Speaks, pastor of St. Mark A.M.E. Zion church in Durham.

The program was sponsored by the Durham Ministerial Alliance, Rev. E. T. Browne served as chairman.

Christmas Tips
That drive you take next week to spend Christmas with family or friends will be easier and more fun if you do a little planning now. Here are a few tips for holiday motor-visits.

First, about the gifts. This is especially important if you take children and if you leave home on Christmas eve. You'll probably want to take things the children can open Christmas morning. Wrap the gifts now and pack them in a carton. You can slide it into the trunk at the last minute. This will save time and avoid damage that can occur if gifts are tumbled in.

If you make the round trip on Christmas day, the children will probably open their gifts before you leave home. They will want to take some of their own things with them. Let them take small gifts that take little space in the car and that they can enjoy and share at someone else's house.

Second, about the car. You'll probably leave it outside if you go for an overnight visit. If there's a chance of cold weather, be sure the car is ready.

Three of the sixteen teen-age popular music ensembles to perform at the "America's Greatest Teen-Age Recording Stars All In Person" Show at Raleigh Memorial Auditorium next Thursday are pictured here. The currently popular hit, "Let's Go To The Hop," is the most notable success of "Danny and the Juniors," an aggregation of native Philadelphians.

North Carolina College Harriers Turn In Sparkling Performances In Warm Up Events During Holidays

North Carolina College's track team, which got in its first licks in preparation for the winter season during the school's Christmas holiday break, opens its winter season in earnest on the week-end of January 11 at the Southeastern AAU meet in Baltimore.

Four of the Maroon and Gray cindersmen who live in the East took part in three different events scheduled over the school holiday period.

Perhaps the outstanding performance was turned in by Carl Hawthorne, freshman harrier, who posted the best time in the AAU regional five miles cross country handicap at Philadelphia on Dec. 23.

Tallahassee Newspaper Takes Note Of Good Year For Florida A. & M.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — "A Great Year For FAMU" was the subject of the lead editorial in The Tallahassee Democrat local, afternoon, daily news paper, Monday, December 16.

The editorial called attention to Florida A. & M.'s winning the national football championship the previous Saturday evening, the accomplishments of alumna Althea Gibson and Willie Gallimore's success in professional football and the famous university marching band.

The Democrat also points out that while these accomplishments are fine, a much more significant accomplishment has gone almost unnoticed—the admittance of the university into full membership into the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools...Good teaching and a sound curriculum can make it an institution of higher

Eagles Snare Top Schoolboy Hurdler In East

George Hearn, formerly of Lower Herion High School, Andover, Pa., and now a freshman at North Carolina College, Durham, is listed in the December "Track and Field News" as the top high school hurdler of 1957.

Hearn's official time was 13.9. His nearest rivals were Wally Larson of Medford, Ore., and Billy Wells of Casa Grande, Ariz.

NCC Track Coach L. T. Walker, noted for his work with 1956 Olympic hurdles champion Lee Calhoun, hasn't entered Hearn in any of the indoor meets of the season, because he doesn't feel he is quite ready.

"Hearn has the potentialities of a truly great hurdler," Walker says.

Calhoun, recently recipient of a temporary ban from AAU competition, worked out with Hearn at NCC during the fall.

The Olympic champion is expected to reenter outdoor competition this summer.

Williams told police this week that two men whom he met at a grill on East Market Street Sunday night robbed him of $789.80, including six of his wanted $100 bills. Williams said the two men got into his car on the pretext of visiting someone who "owed them money, then when they arrived at a secluded spot, stuck a pistol at his head and another at his ribs and asked for his money with the admonition, "dead men tell no tales."

Police were still searching for the two hold-up men at mid-week.

Va. Threatens Court

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The State of Virginia warned the U. S. Supreme Court that it would close schools of Prince Edward County unless the court rules in its favor in an appeal filed by the state from a Circuit Court ruling ordering a "prompt and reasonable start" toward integration of the schools.

The state is asking the Supreme Court to set aside the Fourth Circuit Court's ruling setting a deadline for the start of school desegregation in Prince Edward County, one of the five localities involved in the historic May, 1954 decision.

Barber Clips Neck

REIDSVILLE — A 45 year old barber has been charged with murder after he gone comparatively unnoticed. It is the acceptance of Florida A. & M. to full membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities. This means FAMU has come of age academically and now enjoys accreditation ranking with the Florida State University and the University of Florida.

The spectacle of football and band music can publicize an institution and build an esprit de corps on its campus but only scholarship, good teaching and a sound curriculum can make it an institution of higher learning.

It is an enviable university that can attain athletic and academic stature together. Tallahassee and the whole state have every reason to be proud of Florida A&M University.

Price said, "I'd hate to say what we will do right now," when asked if he would seek a motion to delay.

Speculation has been that Moore's attorneys would motion for delay on grounds of insufficient time to prepare the defense.

Solicitor Harvey Lupton declined this week to say if he would ask for the death penalty in Moore's case.

Moore signed a statement which agreed substantially with one filed with police by the rape victim. He has been held since arrest Dec. 13 without bond.

He is accused of raping Mrs. Al Deporter, 25 year old wife of Wake Forest College assistant basketball coach, at knife point.

Judge Allen Gwynn of Reidsville has been assigned to the court sessions here for the next six months and will probably hear the case.

Solicitor Lupton is being assisted in prosecution of the case by J. Earl McMichael of Winston-Salem and W. F. Mitchell of Raleigh, attorneys for Mrs. DePorter.

There is some speculation that Moore might enter a plea of guilty which carries with it an automatic sentence of life imprisonment.

clipped a man's neck with his barber shears. James Cardwell, 33, died after Reubin Williamson allegedly stabbed him in the neck with his barber shears last Monday.

Williamson said he was trying to get Cardwell to leave the shop, finally forcibly ejected him whereupon Cardwell returned and made a threatening gesture, thrusting his hands into his pockets. Williamson said he thought Cardwell was going to attack him and he struck out with his shears, stabbing the man in the neck. Cardwell, bleeding freely, walked across slumped to the ground where he was picked up by Williamson and rushed to a hospital. He died a short while later.

Death Edict Appealed

RALEIGH — An appeal was filed with the State Supreme Court Monday in the case of John D. McKnight, Jr., 29 year old deaf mute who is scheduled to die in the gas chamber for murdering a white woman in Nash County last March. McKnight was convicted last August in the slaying of Mrs. Myra Brown of Manning.

The court will probably hear the appeal during the week of March 6.

When Driver Turns Teacher
Know someone who wants to learn to drive? The best tip is to take a driver-training course taught by professionals. They know the best techniques of teaching and they know the local traffic laws. Records prove that professionally trained drivers have fewer accidents than those who learn by catch-as-catch can methods.

But if professional teaching can't be arranged, an experienced driver can substitute.

Here are some tips on teaching — in case you decide to try. First, check your state motor vehicle laws. Some states require learners' permits for beginners and some specify hours when beginners are allowed on the roads. Teach only in daylight and in good weather. Never take a beginner out at night or in stormy weather.

Use quiet, back roads, avoiding congested areas. Be sure your car is in good operating condition. Any Shell station will be glad to service it for you. A beginner will have enough problems without having to handle a balky car.

When teaching parallel parking, practice behind an imaginary car. When your student makes mistakes, be patient. Anger or nervousness can upset him.

Be sure your student learns the motor vehicle laws — as well as driving techniques. Literature, usually obtainable from state motor vehicle departments, is helpful for this purpose.

The Council of Bishops has no jurisdiction in the matter. Only the General Conference can receive the reports and pass upon them. Consequently, the suspension of Bishop Nichols will hold until 1960, or in an Extra Session.

In the meantime, Bishop R. R. Wright, President of the Council of Bishops will supervise the 18th Episcopal District over which Bishop Nichols presided, following his removal from Florida, and suspension.

Hillside Home Has Facade Breathtaking As The View

An example of a successful blending of home and site, is this hillside version by Designer Don Scholz. Presenting to the street an interesting contemporary one-story facade, this home becomes excitingly different when approached from the rear. Double insulating glass, extending from floor to roof peak, open up the entire end of the spacious beamed living room to the outside. A dramatic balcony extending the length of the family kitchen and living room further enhance the effect of open spaciousness.

Indoors, the home is equally as refreshing in appearance and utility. The family-kitchen, popular gathering place, is spacious and efficient in layout. The living-dining expanse gives room for luxury with its massive fireplace. The bedrooms are private and quiet in their own secluded area.

The master bedroom has its own private, modern bath, and the other bedrooms share a similar bathroom that is conveniently accessible from the living area. Extending from the large foyer (big enough to be completely furnished) is the stairway to the spacious downstairs recreation room. New vistas for outdoor-in-door living and eating, open up here with the fireplace and sliding glass door wall.

For complete information on this exceptional home design, write to Don Scholz Design Associates, Dept. 102, 3601 N. Westwood, Toledo 7, Ohio.
