Two Raleigh Teams Lead In CIAA Statistics

Shaw University's Bears with 86 points per game on offense and St. Augustine's Falcons holding opponents to 56.5 on defense are team leaders in first 1958 basketball statistics released today by the CIAA News Service.

In this first release for games played through January 1, three of the loop's cagers were averaging better than 25 points per game. They are Bill Murphy (25.5) of Shaw, Ron Garner (25.2) of Morgan, and Al Stirrup (25.0) of St. Augustine's.

Other individual leaders are Ed Summons of Union, field goal percentage (72.7 per cent for 16 of 22 in four games; Stirrup of St. Augustine's free throw 91.7 per cent for 22 of 24 in two contests; Henry Fields of Elizabeth City in rebounds, grabbing 106 in five affairs for an average of 21 per tilt; and Wilbur Smith of Maryland, single game scouing leader, tallying 34 against Delaware via 15 field goals and four free throws.

At last year's end (1957), the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis estimated that 57,500 polio victims received March of Dimes aid during the year, of which about 53,000 were post-acute cases stricken a year or years ago. Help them to a life better than bare survival by giving to the 1958 March of Dimes.

NCC Thinclads To Face Nine Winter Events

North Carolina College's track team is slated to participate in nine indoor track meets during the next two months.

After their successful debut in the All Eastern South Atlantic AAU last week in Baltimore where Hal Moore won the 60 yard high hurdles, Neville Christian copped the 880 yard run and a mile relay team raced home ahead of Maryland, La Salle, and William and Mary, the NCC team competes at the Inquirer Games in Philadelphia on Friday January 24 and the Washington Star Games on Saturday night Jan. 25.

February meets for Coach L. T. Walker's harriers are, possibly, the Boston AA on Feb. 1; the Millrose Games on Feb. 8; the New York AC, Feb. 15, and the New York AAU on Feb. 22.

In March, the Eagles may enter the Knights of Columbus Games on March 8, the New York Pioneer Club games on March 15, and the Cleveland Knights of Columbus Games on March 21.

-Mrs. Coefield-

Hugh Fitzpatrick said that she could have died either from a blow on the head or from drowning.

He placed the time of the accident as about 7:30 or eight a.m. The spot where the automobile was discovered is some two miles east of Liberty where the victim was traveling to begin her week as teacher of home economics at the Randolph high school. She had worked at the school since 1932 and commuted on week-ends. The automobile was described as a "total loss."

For the past five years, according to her husband, Jesse Coefield of 1319 S. Alston Avenue in Durham, Mrs. Coefield made the twice weekly trips between Liberty and Durham, a distance of some 50 miles, alone.

Mrs. Coefield was the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Henderson H. Hawkins of Concord. She attended the public schools here and received the A.B. Degree from Barber-Scotta College. Last June she was awarded a Master's degree at North Carolina College.

She worked in a South Carolina school before accepting a position at the Morrison Training school at Hoffman. She held this post until 1952 when she began as teacher of home economics at Randolph high.

Mrs. Coefield was married Dec. 26, 1947 and took up residence in Durham where she lived until her death.

In addition to her husband and parents, she is survived by three brothers: James and Robert of Washington, D. C., and Samuel of Rocky Mount; one sister: Mrs. Drucilla Peace of Washington, D. C., and several nieces, nephews, aunts and uncles.

-Hearings-

In a delaying tactic, the attorneys for the city moved to continue the hearing because the clerk of the court had failed to notify the Governor and the Attorney General of the hearing. Attorneys for Evers produced copy of a letter in which they had, on their own, sent such notification to the Governor and Attorney General on Dec. 31, 1957.

The three judges assigned to the case—John D. Martin of Cincinnati, William E. Miller of Nashville, and Marion S. Boyd of Memphis—ruled that the hearing would go on with the clerk being ordered to send a notice to the Governor and Attorney General that the case would be heard on Jan. 11. In the event they wished to present evidence on that day, the case would be re-opened for them; if not, the record would consist of the testimony of the Jan. 6 hearing.

There was no dispute as to the facts. The only evidence the defendants offered was the testimony of the police that they might encounter some difficulty in keeping the peace were segregation abolished.

Some of the city's leading dignitaries are expected to take part in the program honoring the baseball star at Hillside, according to Mrs. L. I. Riddick, in charge of a committee planning the program.

Remarks will be made during the affair by Mayor pro tem Walter Biggs, L. E. Frasier, president of the Durham Business and Professional Chain, and E. C. Turner, president of the One O'Clock Luncheon Club.

Covington will be introduced by Carl Easterling, basketball coach at Hillside, and a presentation from Hillside students will be made by Bennie Booker, president of the school Student Council.

-Constitution-

The Committee's purpose and goals.

The constitution provides for operation of the organization along the general lines in which it has operated in the past. It requires two kinds of memberships, "personal" and "organizational." Personal membership is open to any individual in the community and organizational membership is restricted to persons selected by various civic, fraternal and other groups in the city.

The new document also sets out the composition of the executive committee. It restricts

Church Bible Class Holds Yearly Social

The annual party of the Soul Seekers Sunday School Class of Ebenezer Baptist Church was held Wednesday, January 8, at the home of Mrs. Helen Webb of 517 Farrell Boulevard.

A delicious dinner was served after which gifts were given to the members of the class revealing their prayer sisters and one prayer brother. Each member bought a present for his or her guest.

A welcome address was made by Mrs. Maerene Fisher, vice-president of the class, after which remarks were made by Mr. W. W. Barbee, Superintendent of the Sunday School.

Those present were: Mrs. Addie Barbee, president; Miss Vinia Williams, secretary; Mrs. Catherine Edwards, assistant secretary; Mrs. Bertha Snipe, Mrs. Barbara Jones, Miss Iola Massey, Mrs. Flossie Smith, Mrs. Ethel Jones, Mrs. Margaret Adams, Mrs. Essie Jetterles, Mrs. Addie Smith, Mrs. Emma Norwood, Mrs. Alice Luster, Mrs. Alice Davis, Mrs. Zelma Adams, and Mrs. Helen Webb, hostess.

that talk lays the groundwork for understanding," she said. "It is a very slow process—the process of getting to know each other throughout the world, but it has been advanced by the once per year three months meetings of delegates of the world."

"One of the very important things (the U.N. has accomplished) has been an increase in understanding among nations, a quality which comes about gradually but steadily." She listed as the outstanding successes scored by the world body was the formation of the temporary UN force in Korea, keeping the borders of Israel peaceful, and the lessening of tensions throughout the world.

She departed from her discussion of the U.N. to blame the late Sen. McCarthy's influence for the loss of U.S. prestige abroad and to assert that she didn't feel that Sen. Kennedy's religion would hurt him in the South as much as the late Al Smith's did in the South if the former becomes a candidate for a national office.
