visiting Delaware State College. The Falcons overpowered Johnson C. Smith last week-end while the Delaware eleven was dealt a defeat by Kings College. Delaware is rebuilding this year and they haven't jelled as they should have. Saint Augustine started slow but have come on strong, winning five straight conference tilts. This week the Falcons should have no trouble winning their sixth straight and establishing themselves as the comeback team of the year. SAINT AUGUSTINE 20—DELAWARE 0.

Virginia State vs. Morgan State

THE HIGHEST SCORING MACHINE in the nation undoubtedly belongs to the Morgan State Bears. In their last two outings the Bears have picked up an amazing 129 points. For a team to score many points in two games makes one wonder what Eddie Hurt feeds his Bears. Thanksgiving Day the Bears could possibly set a record for the number of points scored in three consecutive games. However, the competition is their arch-rival the slightly tarnished Virginia State Trojans. When these two clash, you can throw the records out the window, because this is a tongue and leather battle. Last season the Bears were rolling along just dandy and the Trojans upset the appraiser. This year the team clash in Petersburg and once again the Bears are rolling. The Trojans don't have the horses this year. MORGAN 22—VIRGINIA STATE 8.

North Carolina College vs. N. C. A. & T. College

THE CAROLINA CLASSIC between North Carolina College's Eagles and North Carolina A. and T.'s Aggies always has its aspects. This year it's for the CIAA championship and a possible bowl bid to the winner. It's the conference's "Cinderella Kids" versus the team that was picked to win the conference championship in a walkway.

Herman Riddick's Eagles rebounded after their first loss of the season to Morris Brown and won seven straight games. A. and T. also rebounded after her first loss to win six games. A. and T. has played a heavier non-conference schedule than the Eagles and stand with one win against two losses to outside foes. The Eagles played three non-conference games won two and lost one. In the conference the Eagles and A&T have played three common foes. Maryland State, Morgan State and Virginia State. A. and T. defeated Maryland State 16-14, Virginia State 34-14 and Morgan State 20-2. North Carolina College defeated Maryland State 28-6, Morgan State 13-12 and Virginia State 33-0.

Both teams possess good ground and air attacks. A&T line is a step faster than NCC's, whereas NCC's backs are superior to the Aggies. The Eagles have struck for fifteen touchdown passes, which sounds like some pro teams. However, the Aggies threw four "home run" passes against Florida A&M—something many teams don't do. The team that makes the breaks is the team that's going to win. Figuring on the Eagles' seasoned backs and the stunning defeat that they received at the hands of the Aggies last year it makes them the natural with the most to win.

On the other hand A&T is hungry for a CIAA championship, not having won one since the days of "Red" Jackson which gives them an incentive to win. This is the game anywhere they play it doesn't matter, because with the Eagle's catling just raring to throw you have to string along with the men who go by air. In case you're wondering who, who it's the Eagles. NCC 26—NORTH CAROLINA A&T 20. —WINNER—TAKE THOSE AGGIES OFF OF ME!

Assistant Solicitor F. Odgen Parker, emphasized to the jury that "making punishment fit the crime" and the importance of the case to the public was important. He declared the character of Mrs. Strickland had not been impeached and urged the jury to return a verdict that would "protect the 70,000 people in the county".

Several other witnesses living in the area where the crime was allegedly happened testified that they heard nothing suspicious in the rear of the community building, where Mrs. Strickland said he was attacked.

Det. Capt. Archie Carter said that each of the defendants had admitted in his presence forcing relations upon Mrs. Strickland.

Sgt. William Campbell, however, said under cross-examination that in his presence, only one of the youths 22 year old David Lee Hicks admitted use of force.

Mrs. Strickland, first state witness when the trial opened last week, told the jury she had asked Hicks direction to the home of some friends of hers. She said he told her to take a short cut through a dark alley and it was there, she said, the Negroes seized her, dragged her to a nearby field grown up in oneysuckle vines and attacked her.

Dr. Talbot Parke, Goldsboro physician, also testified. He said in reply to defense questioning that bruises Mrs. Strickland had shown him were "not incompatible" with her story of being raped. Or, he said the bruises could have been as much as 12 years old, although he examined her four hours after the allegedly attack.

The other defendants in the case pleaded innocent.

Ervin

Ervin said that dynamiting, like murder is "an awful crime". "Murder is actually worse," said the senior senator, "but people aren't advocating that it become a federal crime."

He quoted a lawyer's maxim that "hard cases are the quicksand of the law".

Ervin, once a State Supreme Court Justice, added that "things that outrage us can cause us to place our constitutional rights in jeopardy, if we don't watch out".

The amendment approved by the NAACP Board would insert the words "residential, business" in the text of the measure. Almost two-thirds of the buildings maliciously dynamited since January, 1955 were homes, mostly of Negroes, it was pointed out.

Other organizations supporting legislation to curb dynamiting include the American Jewish Congress, AFL-CIO, and the Anti-Defamation League.

New interest in the measure was stimulated by the dynamiting of integrated schools in Jsaige, W. Va., and Clinton, Tenn., and synagogues in Atlanta, Ga., and Peoria, Ill.

Voters

(Continued from page 1) The NAACP spokesman analyzed the results of the election and warned that "you cannot wait until mid 1959 or the spring of 1960 to get citizens registered to vote."

In his address, delivered on Nov. 9, Mitchell called for a continuing drive to get voters registered. "Make plans now to select delegates to the Democratic national convention and to the Republican national convention," he urged. "When the civil rights platforms are being written make sure that there are some qualified, able and courageous pro-civil rights delegates from Louisiana who will help to write those platforms."

Following his talk, which was focused on the urbanization and industrialization of the South, his conclusions were thrown open to debate by some 100 persons attending the conference from a wide range of Southern public and private colleges, including several Negro universities.

Suggestions

He told of a situation in a piedmont North Carolina city in which a Negro medical technician was given a job working in close proximity with three white females.

The situation attracted so much attention a first that it actually impeded the work of the technician and his assistants. Soon, after the novelty had worn off, the presence of the Negro was accepted matter-of-factly by the other employees, Behrman revealed.

He emphasized, however, that white employers who hired Negroes would have to be pioneers and would have to know exactly what to expect at the outset.

In answer to what he termed the usual objections to his proposal that Negro employers hire white workers, he explained that such a move would not so much cut off job opportunities to Negroes but would rather by showing that integrated employee staffs will work in the South open up more opportunities from white employers.

A consultant on an employment project of the N. C. Human Relations Council, Behrman was in the city to take part in a equal opportunity in employment project sponsored by a unit of the Durham Committee on Negro Affairs.

Behrman is an advisor to the Human Relations Council's Employment on Merit program.

The DCNA's Economic Committee project so far has centered around the observance of "Equal Opportunity Days," held Wednesday. Speakers from the committee visited several schools in the city and county during the day, pointing out widening job opportunities available to Negroes.

Placards and films on the theme were also placed in the various public and private institutions earlier in the week leading up to the observance.

In addition, Mayor E. J. Evans issued a proclamation setting aside Wednesday as "Equal Opportunity Day."

F. B. McKissick and N. B. White was in charge of the Economic Committee's operations on the project.

Monroe has been the scene of considerable racial unrest for the past several months. A year ago, Ku Klux Klansmen staged a parade through the Negro section of town and reportedly fired on some Negro homes while under police escort.

Weeks later, Dr. Robert Perty, Negro physician and leading NAACP member, was arrested on charges of performing an abortion on a white woman.

Fla. Governor Praised For His Schools Stand

NEW ORLEANS, La. Governor LeRoy Collins of Florida, who said at West Palm Beach, it would be better to accept some integration than to close the public schools, has been commended by the SCEF.

In a telegram to Governor Collins, Aubrey W. Williams, SCEF President congratulated the Governor for "urging recognition of the realities of the South's dilemma which is that it must accept integration or close its schools, and that the last is unthinkable and the former is not half as bad as it is pictured.

Okla's Youth NAACP, Over 1800, Largest

NEW YORK With a membership of 1,818 the Oklahoma City NAACP youth council is now the largest youth unit in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Herbert L. Wright, the Association's youth secretary, reported today.

The council closed its annual membership drive this week. A total of $700 was raised for the Association's Freedom Fund. Six junior life members, at $100 each, were recruited. Mrs. Clara Luper, adult adviser to the council, credits Miss Areda Toliver, who brought in 355 members, as "the most outstanding worker" in the campaign.

Mass Tests For Cancer In Use

WASHINGTON, D. C. cerous changes in the lung tissue. A method for mass screening of population groups for incipient lung cancer will be tested by Veterans Administration and the American Cancer Society. The technique involves examination of sputum specimens, coughed up from the lungs, for abnormal lung cells that indicate early cancerous or precancerous changes in the lung tissue. In the joint VA-American Cancer Society study just getting underway, about 8,500 residents of six VA domiciliary homes will be screened twice a year by use of the sputum cell analysis method, plus chest x-ray films.
