Birmingham is Setting for 14th Meet of Southern Beauty Congress

Birmingham, Ala. — "Advancement Through Education" is the theme of Southern Beauty Congress' 14th annual conference and show to be held here in Birmingham, the "Majic City of the South," beginning Sunday, August 2 through Wednesday, August 5, at the newly air-conditioned Masonic Temple Auditorium, 1630 North 4th Avenue.

It is the South's oldest beauty culture workshop and exhibition. According to Ruth J. Jackson, Chairman of the Conference — one of the best educational and enlightening program ever planned for practicing beauticians, teachers and instructors in the field of beauty culture has been arranged for this year's meeting.

"Beauty culture is one of the most lucrative and challenging means of earning a decent living. Incomewise, it ranks with banking, the steel industry, and many other enterprises and professions," Mrs. Jackson said.

The practice of beauty culture requires just as much skill and imagination as in the practice of law, in teaching school, in being a doctor, a dentist, or any other occupation recognized as a profession, Mrs. Jackson explained.

"The general public has for too long looked down on the beauty operator. But is one of a few professions which offer full employment, financial security and independence all year 'round," Mrs. Jackson asserted.
