Over 5,000 Are Expected For Convention

GREENSBORO—More than 5,000 high school girls from throughout the State are expected to attend the annual convention of the N. C. Association of New Homemakers of America to be held here at A&T College on Saturday, April 2. Greensboro attorney, Mrs. Elretta M. Alexander, will deliver the main address at the morning session. Other speakers include: Dr. Warmoth T. Gibbs, president of the college and Herman Burnett, Burlington, State treasurer of the North Carolina Association of New Farmers of America. Nearly 100 of the visiting girls will be cited during the one day meet for outstanding achievement in various projects sponsored by the organization. Retiring State president, Frances Brown, Douglass High School, Leasville, will preside at the sessions. The convention is being handled under the supervision of Mrs. Marie C. Moffitt, Durham, area supervisor of Vocational Home Economics. Other State officers of the organization for 1959-60 include: Perry Hogan, Lincoln High School, Chapel Hill, vice president; Jennie Mallett, R. B. Dean High School, Maxton, secretary; Maxine Peeler, Beaufort County High School, Pantego, treasurer; Jean Kea, Coneville High School, Coneville, reporter; Brenda Long, J. H. Gunn High School, Charlotte parliamentary; Carolyn Williams, Olive Hill High School, Morganton, historian and Doris Greene, Morningside High School, Statesville, song leader.

HONORED — T. E. McKinney, center, dean, Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, N. C., and former dean at A and T College, was awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree by A & T at the recent annual convention of the National Association of Collegiate Deans and Registrars held in Greensboro, N. C. Dr. Warmoth T. Gibbs, A & T president, presents the degree as Edwin M. Thorpe, secretary to the organization and registrar at Florida A & M University, Tallahassee, Fla., himself a graduate of A & T, looks on from right.

Northern College Students Join Southern Protest In Increasing Numbers and With Varied Methods

NEW YORK — In a variety of ways great numbers of northern college students this week indicated overwhelming support of the South's Negro student demonstrators. Meanwhile, a number of NAACP college chapter leaders in the South, who have spearheaded the drive against segregated facilities, took leave from front-line activities to speak in distant cities on behalf of their cause. They addressed NAACP-sponsored rallies in Washington, New York, Columbia, Detroit, San Francisco and Hartford, Conn., as fellow students in many of the North's foremost institutions marched, prayed, staged sympathy "sit-ins," picketed and collected student defense funds. At Oberlin College in Ohio students collected over $2,000 for defense of the Nashville students. On far-North campuses such as Wheaton College at Norton Mass., students trooped through nearby towns collecting student aid funds. COLLEGE GIRLS DEMONSTRATE In Saratoga Springs, N. Y., about 20 Skidmore College faculty members joined 200 college girls in a demonstration against lunch counter discrimination in the South. Even medical students set aside their books and took protest placards. At New Haven, 35 Yale medical students, operating in four shifts, picketed three midtown chain stores. Meantime, Yale divinity students and faculty announced a "silent march" around the city's main square. NAACP Youth Secretary Herbert Wright, who has coordinated many of the student activities in the South, said, "The increased activity by college students has brought new NAACP membership and request for formation of new college chapters in such schools as Vassar, Bennington, and Brandeis University." While Vassar, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has no formal chapter, its student body led by a Negro undergraduate, Miss Marion Gray, staged widely publicized demonstrations at variety stores in that city. As if synchronized to act at the same time, college girls at Bennington and Smith Colleges launched similar protests. 300 PICKET IN NEW YORK In New York, 300 NAACP student leaders from New York University, Columbia, Cornell, and other institutions, picketed the city's main square.

Marriage Of Miss Johnson & Rep. Diggs Told

Dr. and Mrs. John W. Maxwell, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, announce the marriage of Mrs. Maxwell's daughter, Anna Katherine Johnson to The Hon. Charles C. Diggs, Jr. (D-Mich.), Member of Congress. Her father was the late Howard University Treasurer, V. D. Johnston. Following a whirlwind courtship, Miss Johnson and Rep. Diggs were married on Mar. 3, 1960 at Elkton, Md. Former Miss Johnson, 27, is a 1957 graduate of Yale University Law School and a Labor Department Lawyer, working in the Solicitor's Office in the Nation's Capital. Member of a prominent Washington, D. C. family, Mrs. Diggs, Jr., before attending Yale was graduated from Northfield School for Girls, at Northfield, Mass., and Barnard College, N. Y. Young Congressman Diggs, 37, now serving his third term in the U. S. House of Representatives, attended the University of Michigan, and Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., before his education was interrupted by serving in the Air Force during W. W. II. Following his discharge as a Lieutenant in 1954, he completed his education at Wayne State University, Detroit.

Congressman Diggs is the son of former Michigan State Senator Charles C. Diggs, Sr., and Mrs. Diggs of Detroit, Michigan. He is President of Detroit Metropolitan Mutual Assurance Company, operating in Michigan and Missouri, and Vice-President of Diggs Enterprises.

The couple will reside in the fashionable Capital Park Manor in the District of Columbia, during sessions of Congress, and at 505 E. Boston Blvd., in Detroit, Mich., after adjournment.

The Bank in Your Life

YOU and a home of your own

Ours is increasingly a nation of homeowners. In 1958 alone, nearly 1 million new one-family homes were built. And in 1958 alone, America's banks helped people buy homes of their own by making almost $7 billion in mortgage loans. Modest monthly payments on a low-cost bank mortgage loan increase the borrower's equity in his home monthly; bring him to full ownership quickly!
