

Smith's Program Geared to Help Grads Fit Into Changing World

With an eye toward preparing students for the changing world of today, Johnson C. Smith University's program is geared to fit its graduates into many major areas of endeavor.

Since 1867, Johnson C. Smith University has been a vanguard of higher education, graduating more than 4,000 persons in its 93 years of service. These graduates have been assimilated into the leadership of our country as college presidents, doctors, lawyers, ministers, teachers, and in many other fields.

EXPANDING NECESSARY

The present enrollment has outgrown the facilities of the college. Dr. R. P. Perry, president of the institution, says that, "In order to meet the demands of the present and future enrollment, it is necessary for the institution to do some expanding."

Preliminary work has already begun on the construction of a new gymnasium which is scheduled for occupancy in December of this year. Included in the program of expansion in the early future is the erection of a girls' dormitory, the enlargement of the Science Hall, and the renovation of Smith and Berry Halls for young men.

This is the beginning of a long-range plan of expansion designed to increase the physical plant as well as to step up academic efficiency.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR WORK

In keeping with the basic philosophy that the influence and the obligation of the educational institution should extend beyond the formal classroom, Johnson C. Smith University carries on a series of extra-curricular activities during the school year.

Some of these activities include institutes on health, family life, public and human relations. In addition, community classes are offered free of charge in order to enhance the relationship between the college and the community.

LIBERAL ARTS BASE

While basically a liberal arts college for teachers, ministers, social workers, religious workers and other related vocations, the university also prepares persons for other professions.

Many of the country's doctors, lawyers, dentists and engineers have done their graduate study here. In addition, students have left Johnson C. Smith University to earn doctoral degrees in several areas, and some have served the country in the diplomatic service.

Florida Sit-In Leader to Talk To Publishers

A college student, who chose jail rather than probation in the Florida sit-in strike, will address Negro newspaper publishers at their annual convention in Chicago, June 23, 24 and 25.

This announcement was made by William O. Walker, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association. The speaker will be Miss Barbara Braxton, formerly a senior at Florida A & M University.

Miss Braxton was arrested February 20, 1960 during a student demonstration in Tallahassee, Fla. She was found guilty of "disturbing the peace and public tranquility," and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

She was offered probation if she would promise not to take part in any further demonstrations. She refused and served her sentence.

Latest Developments in U. S. Race Issue to be Aired at Fisk

NASHVILLE, Tennessee — The new and crucial developments in race relations in the United States will undergo detailed analysis and discussion at a meeting of several of the nation's top experts to be held at Fisk University June 20 through July 2 in the 17th Annual Race Relations Institute.

Sponsored by the Board of Home Missions of the Congregational and Christian Churches, with the cooperation of Fisk University, the institute is expected to involve 120 participants from 20 states in the effort to draw practical lessons for effective leadership action in race relations throughout the country.

"As we enter the decade of the 60's, following ten years of the most far-reaching progress in American race relations, we face the seeming paradox of the issues of race and minority being more urgent and more demanding than ever before; this makes it extremely important that religious, educational and civic leaders in local communities throughout the nation be prepared and informed in facing the new challenges and opportunities now at hand," Dr. Herman H. Long, Director of the Institute, pointed out in explaining the purpose of the institute.

He cited the student sit-in demonstrations, the increased demand of Negroes in the South for full voting rights, the additional initiative provided by the Federal Government in recent civil rights legislation, the re-appearance of anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic propaganda, and the continued increase in the size of the Puerto Rican population on the mainland as significant factors of the inter-group relations situation in this new decade.
