Duke Opens To Negroes

Orange Pupils Integration Bid Denied Again

HILLSBORO—The Orange County school board for the second time turned down this week a request which would have integrated the White Cross elementary school here.

The board said here at its Monday night meeting it would be impossible to admit the 19 Negro students who applied for entrance because the school term was already in progress.

The board first denied the request on Feb. 9.

Duke University will admit Negro students to its graduate and professional schools for the first time beginning with the next school term in September.

This was the result of a resolution passed by the university's board of trustees Wednesday.

It read, in part, "qualified applications may be admitted to degree programs in the graduate school and professional schools of the university effective, Sept. 1, 1961, without regard to race, creed or national origin."

One of the richest and most famous schools in the South, Duke had not previously accepted Negro students, although a few had taken special summer institute courses. The school had admitted a number of non-Caucasian foreign students, however.

Ex-Con Crushes Skulls Of Three As They Sleep

Mass funeral services were conducted at Barbee's Chapel Church cemetery Wednesday afternoon for three members of a family whose skulls were crushed when a 48 year old ex-convict went on an ax-swinging rampage early Sunday.

The Rev. J. R. Manley, pastor of Chapel Hill's First Baptist Church, officiated at graveside rites for Miss Ruby Trice, 35, her 15 year old son, Bobby Louis Farrow, and Miss Trice's father, 67 year old Matthew Trice.

Their heads were bashed in with an axe as they slept in their beds in a two room frame house just outside Chapel Hill early Sunday morning by Charlie (Ponk) Cotton, 48, common-law husband to Miss Trice.

Miss Trice was dead when police arrived on the scene. Her son, Farrow, died in N. C. Memorial hospital Sunday afternoon, and the woman's father, Matthew Trice, died Tuesday at the hospital.

A throng of nearly 150 persons witnessed the triple funeral ceremonies conducted at Barbee's Chapel cemetery, located in Durham county near the Orange county line.

Orange County police officers said late this week that Cotton, who finally admitted the slaying after first trying to involve two other men, will be arraigned in a preliminary hearing in the next criminal term of the Hillsboro Recorder's Court.

He will be charged with first degree murder. He is being held in Orange County prison without bond.

Cotton went on his wild rampage early Sunday morning, between 1:30 and 2:30 a.m., police said.

"It was the most brutal murder I've investigated in my 30 years as a police officer," Orange deputy Sheriff Frank Maddrey told the TIMES Wednesday.

The Fish Peddler Returns

Tuesday of this week there occurred in Washington one of the most dramatic episodes in the annals of American history. It was the visit of President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana to this country. Greeted at the Washington National Airport by President Kennedy, who drove through a drizzling rain to extend a red carpet welcome to the head of the African Nation, Nkrumah later addressed the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Our minds go back to the year 1928 when Nkrumah, as a student in the United States, was peddling fish on the streets of Brooklyn, New York in an effort to earn enough money to continue his education in this country. The then poor African native had come to America to secure an education with the hope of returning to his native country to help it find its place among the leading nations of the world. Although Ghana cannot yet be said to have reached the status of a great power, in comparison with other nations of the world she is well on her way, and much credit must be given to the wise leadership of Nkrumah.

Attack on Mays Comes From Bigots, Says NAACP Secretary

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Kennedy was asked this week to disregard the opposition of Georgia Senators Richard B. Russell and Herman E. Talmadge to the possible appointment of Dr. Benjamin E. Mays to the U. S. Civil Rights Commission.

NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins said both Senators have spent their public life "in support of a system which has denied Negro Americans the enjoyment of their constitutional rights as citizens."

Wilkins added that "both men have made ruthless and unrelenting use of their station and powers to prevent the United States of America from acting to correct the iniquitous system which embitters 18 million Americans and embarrasses our nation before the free world."

Senators Russell and Talmadge have charged that Dr. Mays is "biased."

Wilkins countered by saying that Dr. Mays distinguished

No Money For Jim Crow Schools--NAACP

NEW YORK—NAACP members were urged this week to make known to Congress their objection to any Federal funds going to states where the school desegregation ruling is being defied. They are to make it plain that any Federal aid to education should provide for withholding of money from states and localities which refuse to desegregate.

Members were specifically called upon to urge their Congressmen and Senators "to support a bill amended to include this provision."

The directive was sent by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary, to the Association's 1,034 units in 45 states.
