Frontiers For Private Colleges to be Explored In Talks During Inauguration for Hampton President

HAMPTON, Va.—New frontiers for higher education will be examined at a conference April 28 to be held with the inauguration of Dr. Jerome H. Holland, president of Hampton Institute.

Dr. Holland will be inaugurated in ceremonies to be held Saturday, April 28, making him the ninth president of the 83-year-old college on Virginia's lower peninsula.

At the all-day conference on Friday, leading educators, civic leaders and government officials will examine and discuss, "New Frontiers for America's Private Colleges."

During the conference the speakers will "seek to identify and examine frontier policies and practices which should be considered by America's private colleges as they prepare for bold and imaginative leadership in the years that lie ahead," according to Dr. Wm. H. Martin, dean of faculty and chairman of the inauguration committee.

Among the speakers will be Joseph W. Cohen, director, Inter-University Committee on the Superior Student, headquartered at the University of Colorado; Lester B. Granger, executive secretary, National Urban League and Frank P. Graham, U. S. representative to the United Nations for India and Pakistan.

At a banquet session Friday evening, Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College will give an address on "Future Role of the Negro Private College." Dr. Mays is also president of the United Negro College Fund which has 32 member colleges in the South, including Hampton Institute.

The inaugural exercises will be held Saturday morning at 10:30 a.m. with Dr. Holland delivering the inaugural address.

A former president of Delaware State College, Dover, from 1953-1960, Dr. Holland, 44, assumed the presidency of Hampton Institute July 1, 1960. He is a graduate of Cornell University where he earned the B.S. and the M.S. degrees. As an undergraduate, he was elected to both the junior and senior honorary societies, thereby opening the groups to membership for others of his race.

Hampton Institute is a four-year college of liberal and applied arts and sciences, teacher education and technology which awards the B.A., the B.S. and M.A. degrees. It is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and accredited also by the Department of Education of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Josten's Commissioned For Proctor Inaugural Medallion

GREENSBORO—President Samuel D. Proctor of A. and T. College will have his inauguration commemorated with a specially created medallion by the famed Josten's Jewelry Company.

As official jewelers to A. and T. College, the Owatonna, Minnesota, firm, employer of the largest Negro sales personnel in school jewelry, will present the medallion at special rites on Mar. 18.

Dr. Proctor, former president of Virginia Union University of Richmond, Va., will become the 5th president of the largest predominantly Negro agricultural and technical college in impressive ceremonies scheduled to attract some of the nation's top personalities in education, religion, industry, and public affairs.

The medallion was designed by A. M. Rivers, Jr., one of four Josten salesmen in this area. The others are Charles Stanbeck, J. E. Pittman, and Chester Scoggins.

In addition to A. and T. College, other predominantly Negro colleges which are serviced by Josten's are: Howard University, Virginia State College, Hampton Institute, Maryland State, North Carolina College, Saint Augustine's College, South Carolina State College, Morris Brown College, Tuskegee Institute, Tallahassee College, Alabama A. and M. College, Alabama State College, Johnson C. Smith University, Tennessee A. and I. State College, Knoxville College, Lane College, Central State College, Delaware State College, Arkansas A. and M. College, Elizabeth City State Teachers College. Josten's also services the N. C. Mutual Life Insurance Co.

12 NCC Faculty Members Have Danforth Grants

Twelve members of the North Carolina College faculty will pursue studies outside their own social fields next summer on a special $10,000 grant from the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri.

Selected by a faculty screening committee at the college, the grantees will concentrate in the humanities and liberal arts in accordance with provisions of the Danforth award.

The purpose of the award, according to Dean G. T. Kyle, chairman of the selection committee, is to "broaden and deepen the liberal arts preparation of our teachers."

The award winners include: Dr. Walter M. Brown, associate professor of education; Miss Celia Davidson, instructor in music; Miss Sarah M. Harper, assistant professor of home economics; W. B. Fletcher, assistant professor of art; Dr. J. S. Himes, professor of sociology; Mrs. Estelle Himes, assistant professor of French; Dr. J. N. Huzley, professor of economics; Culbert A. Jones, assistant professor of history; Richard H. Jones, instructor in music; Mrs. Willa Woods Lewis, instructor in physical education; Mrs. Arne E. Johnson, assistant professor of library science; and Dr. L. G. Newton, professor of political science.

Two of the grantees, Dr. and Mrs. Himes, will attend the Inter-American University at Saltillo, Mexico. Professor Himes to concentrate in Spanish language and literature, and Mrs. Himes to take courses in music and folk dancing.

Bennett College To Conduct 3rd Math Institute

GREENSBORO—For the third successive year, Bennett College will conduct a Summer Institute in Science and Mathematics for high ability secondary school students.

Dr. J. H. Sayles, who will again serve as director, announced this week that the institute, to be held from June 18 through July 28, has been made possible by a grant of $23,835 from the National Science Foundation, of Washington, D. C.

Enrollment for this year's institute will be limited to 80 boys and girls of high ability and special talent who are members of this year's graduating class or who are rising juniors and seniors with outstanding academic records.

Dr. Sayles explained that students who have attended previous institutes here or elsewhere are eligible to apply but pointed out that because of the restricted enrollment, applications should be made early.

In addition to members of the Bennett faculty, a number of visiting professors and lecturers will be available. The institute aims to give the students an increased understanding of mathematics, biology, chemistry and physics. There will be a number of field trips.

Students will be required to bear one-half of the cost of their room, board, and travel. The foundation will bear all other expenses. Applications should be addressed to Dr. Sayles at the college.

Frank Robinson Tells His Story to Ohio Grand Jury

CINCINNATI, Ohio—Frank Robinson, star outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds, told his version of a restaurant incident before a Hamilton County Grand Jury Tuesday.

The Grand Jury is pondering evidence in the case in which Robinson is charged with threatening restaurant cook Arthur Meeser with a gun on the morning of Feb. 9.

National League President Warren Giles said he would await the outcome of the Hamilton County proceedings before acting on the matter.

NSF Gives NCC $15,000.00 For Science Institute

The National Science Foundation has awarded North Carolina College $14,677 to support its third annual summer institute for high school students with outstanding promise in science and mathematics.

The announcement was made this week by President Alfonso Elder.

As in previous years, the institute will be conducted by Dr. J. S. Lee, chairman of the department of biology, and will be staffed by NCC professors of science and mathematics.

To be conducted in conjunction with the NCC Summer School, the six weeks program for high school juniors and seniors will run from June 12 to July 22, 1961. Dr. J. H. Taylor is Summer School director.

Successful applicants will pay a nominal fee of $41.75 to cover the cost of room, board, tuition, and supplies for the six week period. Limited aid is available for needy students of exceptional ability.

Dr. Lee said the major objectives of the program are "to stimulate the scientific interest and enthusiasm of talented high school juniors and seniors, and to give them broad training in fundamental concepts of the basic sciences of biology, chemistry, and mathematics."

Easter Florist Workshop Held In Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES—Easter Florist Workshop of the North Carolina Florist Association at Southern Pines.

Easter was the theme. It was quite a show featuring the modern trend in corsage work and other Easter trimmings and decorations.

The members of the N. C. Florist are super anxious to serve their customers with the best and latest in this field, so they go all out to make this dream come true.

However, they are not stopping at that, but being aware of the ever changing world and its demand for youth improvement, they are planning a "Help Youth Project."

The group is quite proud of the progress and of the new member. Mrs. Reid of Reid's Florist, Fayetteville, N. C., joined at this meeting. Others visiting during the session were Morticians, H. L. Keerns, Ralph Watson, both of Southern Pines and O. N. Pharr of Carthage High School. The three gave very inspiring and encouraging remarks.

After work and business, the group enjoyed a social and some very tasty eats.

Duke Power Promotes Hicks To Secretary

MIAMI, Fla.—A Philip Randolph member of the AFL-CIO executive council and president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, clashed again with AFL-CIO President George Meany over the progress of organized labor in eliminating racial discrimination.

Randolph, long a foe of racial bias, urged the Council to expel unions which fail to end racial discrimination within their ranks in six months.

The proposal was pushed aside for a much weaker action which affirmed the organization's opposition to racial discrimination.

Randolph charged Meany with soft-pedaling on the race issue.

John D. Hicks, assistant general counsel for Duke Power Company, was named secretary for the company at a meeting of the Board of Directors this week.

He succeeds P. B. Heatt of New York who has resigned as secretary but continues as a director of the company and as chairman of its Finance Committee.

Hicks 37, is a native of Charlotte and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy and from Yale University Law School.

Following six years' active duty with the regular Navy and as a Naval fighter pilot, Hicks was associated with Helms and Mulliss,

Attorneys, prior to joining Duke Power Company's legal department in March 1957.
