Talks On Africa Color Co-ed Week Theme At NCC

A concert featuring Mrs. Marie Goodman Hunter, Richmond, Va., soprano, climaxed the 12th annual co-ed week-end at North Carolina College recently.

The concert, in McDougald gymnasium, followed the annual co-ed supper and citations to NCC's outstanding young women who have excelled in academic, service and leadership ability.

With "African women and Afro-American Women Create Channels for Friendship and Mutual Help" as their theme, the co-eds had as their special guests during the week-end three outstanding African women who participated as panelists during the observance.

This year's celebration by the Women's Student Government Association at NCC was under the direction of Dean Louise M. Lathan and Mrs. Helen Hammond, assistant to the Dean.

Miss Parthenia McCall, president of the Women's Student Government, presided over a symposium which used the co-ed weekend theme as its topic.

Mrs. James Robinson, secretary of Operation "Crossroads Africa, Inc." was chief consultant. Mrs. Olu Hollist, Nigeria; Mrs. Ebon Ifeowu, Nigeria; and Mrs. Alex Quaison-Sakey, Ghana, served as panelists.

Two charm workshops were conducted by Mrs. Ophelia DeVore Carter, president of the DeVore charm school of New York, Miss Alma John, R.N., consultant for personal products corporation, of New York, and Miss E'Allyne Perkins, regional manager of Daggett and Ramey, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Lee Is Hostess To Volkamania Literary Club

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Ora Sneed Lee was hostess to the Volkamania Literary Club at her home on Grant Street.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Cora Russell. After the brief business session, members engaged, for a few minutes, in the discussion of news of current interest after which the president presented Mrs. Lu Sybil Taylor, who reviewed the book "To Kill A Mocking Bird" (which will be reviewed in this column next week) by Harper Lee.

At the close of the formal meeting the following members, Mesdames Cora Russell, Lydia Merrick, Roxie Rowland, Julia Lucas, Mildred Amey, Geneva Cheek, Lu Sybil Taylor, Mamie Geer, Misses Lucy Royster and Hattie Jenkins, enjoyed the social hour, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Lee served their guests a very delicious dinner.

Mrs. Natsuko James Lectures

At their regular meeting on Monday, March 6th at 8:30, the members of the Year Round Garden Club heard Mrs. Natsuko James give an illustrated talk on "Flowers of Japan." Mrs. James was introduced to the club by the president, Mrs. Marie Speigner.

Mrs. James, a native of Japan, lives with her husband and two sons on Weaver Street.

From the vivid description of the flowers and gardens given by Mrs. James, Japan is a place of natural beauty. This talk was enhanced by pictures of Japanese flowers.

At the end of the lecture Mrs. James made a lovely flower arrangement. She used red camellias, known as the rose of Japan, and aspidistra. She said all young ladies in Japan are taught flower arrangement.

Mrs. Flossie Torain, as hostess, served a delicious repast.

The Garden Gate was opened by Mrs. Plassie Harris and closed by Mrs. Lessie Morrow.

Members attending this meeting were: Mesdames Madge Hargroves, Eugena Simmons, Marie Speigner, Rosa Suitt, Katie Love, Lillian Farrington, Gertrude Long, Allie Dick, Lena Gates, Mary Green, Plassie Harris, Josephine Knox, Emma Randolph, Hattie Meadows, Gazella Lipscomb, Fannie McLean, Loraine Thorpe and Alma Bennett.
