12th Annual "Mr. G's" Swing School Set For Hillside Auditorium

The Twelfth Annual "Mr. G's" Swing School, a musical production depicting a typical classroom scene set to rhythmic rhyme, will be staged in the Hillside High School auditorium on Tuesday night, April 11, at 8 p.m.

Senior co-ed Claudine Daye will portray the role of Miss Brown, the swing school teacher, as she carries her twenty-eight pupils through their paces in "reading rit'ing, and rith'metic" all set to music.

William Stewart will be cast as a special examiner for the swing student body.

As usual, four other big musical production numbers, with song and dance routine, will be staged by some 118 Hillside students.

Twenty-two coeds will be presented in special girls' precision dance line, which includes practically all the latest modern dance steps that are now popular with radio, TV, and movie personalities.

Barbara Eaton, senior, will render the beautiful soprano selection, "Let Yourself Go," while the dancers go through their routine. Another production number, a fairy tale, will feature forty-three members of the cast as they portray the all-time favorite "Cinderella."

Jeanette Walker as the princess and Larry Spann as Prince Charmless, will head the cast for the fairy tale number which will also feature Marie Shaw, Doris Johnston, Valjean Jones, John Faulkner, Dwight Midgett, and Thomas Smith in lead roles.

Twelve couples will be featured in the traditional "senior waltz" and will dance to the tune of "An

In loving remembrance of my husband, James Branch who departed this life, Saturday, November 12, 1960.

Just four months and three days Today as I wonder over the past You come to me so fresh and gay You will ever, ever last.

How I miss you, loved one, how I miss you. The time is so sad to me. If I could see and tell you, How happy I would be. My home is sad without you. Your shadow of life is cast. I will never forget you loved one, As often I think of the past.

Temptation and hard trials You said in life would come If I'd be true and sincere I would meet you in the great beyond. You are absent from your home—Your vacancy can't be filled I often study and promise To be submissive to my Father's will. Loved one all through sorrow and sadness as All thru life we go I'll never forget your instruction, saying You must be pure to go. As often you did advise me, Not to let temptation overthrow I labor under that impression As through life I onward go.

Your life you lived and practiced Was so wholesome and so pure It constrained me every day I loved one, To be honest and to be true. We have met many conflicts Trials and combat too I think of your dear teaching and I am determined to go through I think how you bore Your afflictions though you suffered much I know How you said you left me that evening In this world of pain and woe.

Goodbye, goodbye to you dear loved one. Though tears in my eyes I have I will never forget that happy Union in our home You used to share. Written by Mrs. Katie Branch, wife
