Greenberg told the TIMES that he is not seeking 26 acres for the center, but that the shopping and parking areas will take up approximately 18 acres.

He said that the construction of the center to be located on Fayetteville Road at Mutual Heights, is "strictly a neighborhood project."

He added that if the Urban Renewal center ever becomes a reality, it will not be ready for use until at least 1965. He intends to have his center completed and ready for use by September, 1961. He said that 60-75 per cent of the key personnel at the center will be colored.

Wilkins Says Many Tactics Needed in Fight for Freedom

JACKSON, Miss.—Roy Wilkins told an NAACP mass meeting here this week that the fight for freedom demands many and varied tactics, all working toward the same goal.

All responsible methods, the NAACP Executive Secretary told the jam-packed crowd of 2,000, complement each other. They go hand-in-hand, he said. The audience was described by veteran observers as an unprecedented cross-section of the local Negro community.

Praising the "personal and powerful moral protest against injustice" of the Freedom Riders, Secretary Wilkins said NAACP experience points out that "shock troops are necessary."

"We know that sacrifice is necessary. We know that testing and challenging are necessary," he told the responsive audience.

However, "we know that solid, basic legal moves are necessary if there is to be a foundation for other action," he said.

"Affirmative action by judicial, legislative and executive means is indispensable. This is still a nation of law."

Wilkins said that Negroes must not fall into the pitfall of internal discord nor should they allow the South's lawless elements to tempt them to downgrade the fundamental importance of legal and legislative processes.

The NAACP will not throw roadblocks in the way of other organizations "just because we do not agree with them down to the smallest detail on plans and procedures," he said.

"We believe, for example, that the way to test a law is to set up a test case, including arrest if need be, carry it through the courts and get a determination," he said.

"We do not believe you can test a law and get it thrown out by staying in jail. For after one spends 30 or 40 days in jail, the law is still on the statute books and still constitutes a support for segregation."

"But we of the NAACP do not sneer at those who choose to stay in jail, for they are thus registering a personal and powerful moral protest against injustice."

Wilkins pointed out that "when the original Freedom Bus Ride was launched by James L. Farmer, national director of CORE, he conferred in the NAACP national office on the itinerary."

"It was their project, but we alerted NAACP units in every state and at every stop. The Ride
