

Dr. Rose Butler Browne Honored By Durham County Teachers Group

Dr. Rose Butler Browne, chairman of the education department at North Carolina College, was honored as guest speaker and recipient of a beautiful set of luggage at the monthly meeting of the Durham County Teachers Association which was held at the Little River School the past week.

D. M. McCaskill, principal of Merrick Moore School, introduced the speaker and lauded her for her years of service to the teachers of this and other areas in their efforts to raise the quality of educational achievement.

He made special mention of the untiring efforts of Dr. Browne in aiding the county schools in meeting the requirements for accreditation by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

The elementary schools among Negroes were recently accepted as members of this educational association after fulfilling the standards of achievement as established by the Southern Association. The high schools were accredited in 1955.

Mrs. J. C. Locust, Little River School teacher, represented the teachers in expressing gratitude to Dr. Browne for her unselfish interest and devotion to their cause and to the cause of education in general. Mrs. Locust pointed out that many hours were spent by Dr. Browne in working with individuals and groups in preparation for self-improvement of the teachers and organization of classroom teaching. Mrs. Celestine of Pearisburg School then placed a beautiful string of beads around Mrs. Browne's neck as a gift from a special interest group. As guest speaker, Dr. Browne chose as her subject, "Life is Committal". To this point she commended the teachers for the dedication to the cause of education which she found existent among them during the years she had worked with them. She urged that this should never change because theirs is the highest calling in the utilization of human resources in the fulfillment of God's hopes for mankind.

Ways were pointed out by which teachers might be able to render maximum service to the growth of their children and to the more rapid advancement of our civilization.

The teachers, she said must continue to grow themselves, through an organized plan of self-improvement. Teachers must share their resources among themselves. They must have a heart full of compassion for each child and his problems. She must know and understand the children who are committed to her for guidance, growth, and direction. Children must be given an incentive to achieve and very often that incentive must come from the teachers.
