REV. BROWN RETAINS LEAD

Swann Advances To Front Ranks; Williams 2nd

Rev. J. A. Brown of Durham continued to cling to the first place position this week in the Carolina Times Ministers Popularity Contest. The surprises of the week were the advancements made by Rev. W. L. Williams of Weldon, who took over the second place from Rev. Johnny W. Barnes of Durham, and that of Rev. M. C. Swann of Durham, who advanced to the third place in the standing of contestants. Another spectacular jump was that made by Rev. J. C. Gray of Durham, who advanced from 15th position last week to fifth place this week.

As the contest enters the fourth week, the balloting is expected to become even heavier than the past three weeks when tabulators in the Times office were forced to work far into the night to get all of the ballots tabulated by press time. With fifteen of the top contestants within throwing distance of each other, the contest manager would make no predictions as to who will be the winner of the three top prizes which are an airplane round trip to the Holy Land, first prize; an airplane round trip to Bermuda, the second prize, and an airplane round trip to New York, the third prize.

Winners of the three-top prizes are certain to be those contestants whose members and friends support them with bonus ballots or a one-year subscription to the Carolina Times. Regular ballots which appear in each issue of the Carolina Times count for only 1,000 points while the Bonus Ballots accompanied with a one-year subscription will count for 12,500 until the close of the second period March 31. After then a one-year subscription will count for 10,000 points. The number of points for additional years will be found on page 4-B in which the advertisement of the contest is published.

The relative standing of contestants for this week is as follows:

Rev. J. A. Brown	Durham	702,000
Rev. W. L. Williams	Weldon	694,500
Rev. M. C. Swann	Durham	682,500

City-Wide Revival To Commence In Durham on Monday, April 2

DR. McCAULEY
Dr. L. McCauley, Prominent Area Resident, Dies

RALEIGH — Funeral services for Lewyn Eugene McCauley, one of the area's most prominent citizens, were held here Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. McCauley died suddenly at Wake Memorial hospital early Sunday. He was 75.

Death was attributed to an acute abdominal obstruction. Dr. McCauley was stricken at his home at 8 North Tarboro road and taken to Wake Memorial late Saturday.

Relatives said he had spent a normal Saturday morning, observing his office hours and making calls early Saturday afternoon only moments before the fatal seizure.

Dr. McCauley's body were taken to Shaw University at noon Wednesday where he lay in state until the funeral service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 2:30.

The Rev. L. S. Penn, pastor, presided over the services at St. Paul's. Several high-ranking Episcopal churchmen, outstanding businessmen and civic leaders were present.

Mrs. Glenn died at her home on Wednesday, March 14. She was 83. She had suffered a lengthy illness. The deceased was a prominent member of the Bahama-Rougemont Community, where she spent most of her life. She taught in the public schools of the county for a number of years before retirement and was active in the religious life of the area.

Details for the first city-wide revival sponsored by the Durham Ministerial Alliance were released this week.

The event will be staged for two weeks, beginning April 2 and ending on April 13 at the St. Mark A. M. E. Zion Church.

The Rev. Dr. M. M. Peace, of Philadelphia, and several prominent ministers of Durham will be featured in the two weeks services.

Dr. Peace will be the main speaker for the two weeks.

Each night of the two weeks series, ministers from various Durham churches will take part in the devotional services. They will be assisted by choir members from their churches.

The devotions schedule and the names of Durham ministers who will participate are as follows:

Monday, April 2, Reverends George Tharrington, C. R. White, E. S. Hodge, Jr., E. T. Thompson and J. T. Jones.

Tuesday, April 3, Reverends R. L. Speaks, J. W. Smith, Q. L. Conyers, and C. T. Bellamy.

Wednesday, April 4, Reverends

Lincoln Hospital Gets $15,000 For Medical Education Program

A $10,000 grant from the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation and an award of $15,000 from The Duke Endowment have been received at Lincoln Hospital to develop a program of medical education, Frank W. Scott, Director, announced this week.

Earlier the Biddle Foundation awarded $10,000 to Lincoln's program of Nursing Education. "These grants," Scott said, were the result of a conference held earlier with local, state, and national medical and hospital authorities headed by Dr. W. C. Davison, retired dean of the Duke University Medical Center, and now consultant in Medical Education for the Duke Endowment, who is keenly interested in medical education programs for community hospitals.

The need for a program in medical education for the community hospitals grew out of the fact that small hospitals have found it difficult to compete with medical centers and governmental hospitals in recruiting and training interns and residents. Some small community hospitals have attempted to attract interns and residents by

Appeals Made To Governing Bodies in 2 Cities

Equal job opportunities and other non-discriminatory policies were called for this week by citizens groups representing the Negro communities in Raleigh and Greensboro.

Members of the Raleigh Citizens Association appeared before the Raleigh City Council on Monday to protest racial discrimination in city employment.

Representatives from the Greensboro branch of the NAACP asked the Guilford County Commissioners to hire qualified Negroes in county jobs; to integrate the county tax books; to integrate restroom facilities in county buildings, and to revise the county map to name each Negro school rather than designate it "Negro School."

Ralph Campbell, spokesman for the Raleigh group, submitted a report concerning a recent failure of a Negro woman to acquire a job with the city's

HECKLERS — A group of white teenagers who showed up on the second night of the theater demonstrations is pictured here across the street from the theater. They were kept under tight control by a cordon of city police who were stationed at the scene.

Durham Theatre Owner Uses Legal Device To Halt Mass Student Demonstrations by Local NAACP

A temporary injunction by a Superior Court judge here last week halting anti-segregation demonstrations by Youth and College Chapters of the NAACP might be used as a weapon for other segregationists, informed sources believe.

In a two-day demonstration last week, a group of students were successful in entering the theater with tickets purchased for them by white demonstrators. Others were held back by theater employees when they sought to enter.

Meanwhile, hundreds of students marched in line around the theater after their attempts to purchase tickets failed.

In his restraining order, Judge Hamilton Hobgood forbade the pickets from entering the theater building without permission of the manager, from interfering in any manner with ingress or egress to the theater of other persons; from continuing to line up at the ticket window after they have once been told that they would not be sold tickets; and from interfering in any manner whatsoever with the lawful operation of the theater.

He further instructed the sheriff of Durham to post the
