Durham Not Target For New Protests

Durham is not a target of new demonstrations against racial segregation to be staged this fall, it was disclosed this week.

Attorney Floyd B. McKissick, national CORE chairman, revealed at mid-week that other cities in North Carolina may be targets for the new type of demonstrations planned, but added that Durham was not among those chosen.

McKissick's disclosure brought a sigh of relief from several community leaders, many of whom had expressed over the initial announcement that Durham had been selected as a target for a new type of militant demonstrations this fall.

Reaction to the first announcement was sharp. Newspaper accounts said that Mayor Grabarek was the object of heavy criticism from many of his white colleagues who had opposed his efforts last spring in helping to prepare of desegregation of some Durham facilities.

The Mayor took a leading role in the negotiations which followed three days of mass demonstrations here and appointed a committee which effected desegregation at some restaurants and theaters.

Grabarek himself had expressed some shock at the announcement stating that the city had been selected as a target. He insisted that the city would not maintain students re-

'Bama Gov. Opposes School Integration

Two Enroll at Birmingham; Troops Called

BIRMINGHAM — Two Negro boys enrolled at a previously all-white school here Wednesday despite action by Alabama Governor Wallace which appeared designed to block integration of public schools ordered by federal courts here and in schools at three other Alabama cities.

The boys, brothers Dwight and Floyd Armstrong entered Graymont grammar school.

A mob gathered outside to taunt and jeer, but police managed to disperse it, and there were no reports of violence at this point.

Enrollment of the two boys marked the first time that an Alabama public school, below the college level, had been integrated.

However, Governor Wallace, who defied federal authorities last spring in the integration of the University of Alabama, acted to delay integration at three other cities.

He forced postponement of school openings at Tuskegee, Huntsville and Mobile. Two Negroes registered to enter the 12th grade at all-white Murphy school in Mobile on Wednesday, however.

In addition, three white couples entered a court action with the blessings of Gov. Wallace seeking to reverse the court-ordered integration on the grounds that it was unconstitutional.

Man Killed in the Aftermath of 2nd Bombing at Shores Home

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The home of a Negro leader was bombed for a second time and a Negro fatally shot in violence which erupted here as the aftermath of court ordered school integration.

The home of Attorney Arthur Shores was rocked by an explosion here early last night. It was the second time in less than three weeks that a bomb had been exploded in front of the home of Atty. Shores. He has been a leader in desegregation movements here.

Shortly after the blast, the streets in the area were filled by angry crowds of Negroes. When police lines met them head-on, the scene became one of confused rock throwing and shooting.

In the melee, two Negroes were shot, one fatally. The dead man, John Foley, 20 was shot through the neck. He died at University hospital shortly afterwards.

There was no information as to what kind of gun was used to fire the fatal shot. Nor was there any indication from police as to who fired the shots.

The identity of a second man who was shot was not made known. However, it was reported that he was not seriously wounded.

Scores of other persons were hurt when hit by rocks. Several policemen were reported injured in the rock throwing.

The explosion which touched off the melee was the second in less than three weeks at the Shores home. No one was hurt at the residence in either case. The Attorney, his wife and his 17 year old daughter were at home at the time of the blast.

It was also the second time that an angry crowd of Negroes had rushed into the streets around the home after the blast. Police lines were required to break up a similar crowd which filled the area around Shores home after the first explosion about three weeks ago.

There have been no reports of arrests in connection with the first blast. There was no information concerning suspects in the second explosion.

The explosion and its aftermath followed in the wake of controversy over court ordered desegregation at one school here. Governor Wallace has joined with a group of white citizens who are opposing the integration of the schools.

Stovall met Miss Hunter at a campus coffee shop last fall. Stovall quotes: "There was only one seat across from Charlayne and I sat there." We were seen together from then on around the school in my car, but you couldn't really call it dating because there is nothing much to do in Athens, the university town.

Mrs. Stovall recalled "Sometimes we'd go to Atlanta together. At that time some of the theaters and restaurants had been integrated in Atlanta and the city was fairly sophisticated." She added that they did not conceal their dating, but kept the marriage secret because of Stovall's plans to spend

Hillside and Merrick-Moore To Open High School Grid Season

By LINDSEY A. MERRITT

Coach Russell E. Blunt, his coaching staff and the 1963 edition of the Hillside High School Hornet gridgers will open their new gridiron season against the Durham County Merrick-Moore Tiger squad Friday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial Stadium.

The game will mark the third encounter between the two schools. Hillside's gridgers emerged victoriously in the 1961 and 1962 contests.

Merrick-Moore, coached by Harry "Chocker" Edmonds, will be starting their third season of grid wars, and should field a more seasoned team than in the past two years.

Both squads have had only two good weeks of practice, and even in that short period of time, injuries have played havoc with potentially good prospects for the 1963 year.

Edmonds' Tiger squad will also be weak in the vet department to try to turn the tide on a team which has been in the mire to try to turn the tide on the Hornets.

Both Hillside Mentor and Tiger Coach said that probable starters would not be named until early Friday.

Hillside and the Merrick-Moore Band will be on hand for half time entertainment.
