Miss Afrika Hayes to Return as Soloist in "Requiem" at St. Philips

Miss Afrika Hayes, former instructor of voice at North Carolina College and a concert singer, will be one of the featured soloists for a presentation of Gabriel Faures "Requiem," to be presented in Durham on Sunday evening, Oct. 13.

The work will be heard at St. Philip's Episcopal Church at 403 East Main street at eight p. m.

It will be sung by the combined choirs of the St. Philip's Episcopal and Asbury Methodist Churches. David Pizzaro, member of the North Carolina College music faculty and choir-master at St. Philip's, will conduct the presentation.

Miss Hayes will sing the soprano solos for the production. Janis Klavins, well known concert performer in this area, will sing the baritone solo.

William Johnston will accompany the chorus at the organ.

Miss Hayes, who was a member of the NCC music faculty for the past several years, is currently a member of the Brooklyn Heights Opera Association in New York.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—The U.S. Fifth Circuit of Appeals this week ordered six Mississippi public transportation companies to end racial discrimination within their vehicles and their terminals.

It also marks the first time that the six carriers have been brought under specific court order to cease their jim crow practices.

Some of the carriers have been guilty of maintaining dual waiting rooms even though segregation policies and signs have been removed.
