FOR GOVERNOR

Gastonia Publisher To Seek GOP Nomination

GASTONIA — In a surprise announcement, made late Saturday afternoon at Shelby, E. F. "Bud" Gallagher, prominent Gastonia publisher, said he would seek the Republican nomination for Governor.

Gallagher's announcement, made at the 10th Congressional District Republican convention was greeted with excitement and enthusiasm. Apparently no one at the convention, held at the Cleveland County Court House, knew of his plans or expected such an announcement. Vigorously active in politics before his announcement, Gallagher usually worked behind the scenes and habitually shunned publicity.

Gallagher, a Catholic, founded and heads up Good Will Publishers, Inc., which today is a multi-million dollar business complex operating in all fifty states and six foreign countries. Its divisions, subsidiaries and affiliated companies make Good Will one of the world's leading publishing and distributing organizations. Mr. Gallagher's organization produces non sectarian publications and beautifully illustrated family Bibles in both Catholic and Protestant editions.

In addition to being an extraordinarily successful businessman, with extensive holdings outside of the publishing field, Gallagher is also a respected author and historian. Working with the late historian and biographer N. B. Keyes, Gallagher won national acclaim for the writing of "Hope of The Nation — Our American Heritage." Excerpts from this award winning work will soon be published in paperback form.

By his leadership in charitable and civic affairs, Mr. Gallagher has put into practice the convictions and principles so forcefully expressed in his book. He helped organize the first Optimist Club in Gastonia and served for two years as District Governor of Optimist International.

A big, friendly man, 6'6", 200 lbs., he constantly gives of his time and talents to activities such as the Gaston Heart Association. He serves on the board of several educational and charitable institutions and also is a board member of the American Textbook Publisher Institute taking an active part in upgrading American textbooks and reference materials.

Evers Says Press Distorted Speech Made in Tenn.

JACKSON, Miss. — Remarks attributed to him in an address before the Nashville branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People misrepresented the meaning of what he said, Charles Evers, NAACP, field secretary for Mississippi, asserted here this week.

He was quoted by newspapers as having advocated violence in the Nashville address on Feb. 16. Evers disavowed any advocacy of violence.

What he said in that address, according to Evers' clarification statement, was as follows: "There are white extremists who do not understand the non-violent movement. And they will shoot into your home if you are."

Charlotte Branch MFB To Hold Anniversary

FBI Reported Investigating Deputy Sheriff's Brutal Attack on Negro

Reports being circulated in Durham and vicinity this week are to the effect that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has entered the case of the brutal beating of a Negro at Bahama on January 25 by two Durham deputy sheriffs as reported in the Carolina Times last week.

Although the source of the rumor is of a reliable nature the Carolina Times office was unable by press time to contact a representative of the Durham FBI office for a statement.

Edward Evans whose arm was reported to have been broken when he was struck with a night stick during the beating by Deputy Sheriff I. E. Jacobs, after being taken to the home of the officer by Jacobs and Deputy Sheriff Bill Jones, was interviewed by a committee of local citizens of Durham this week.

Evans is also reported to have been questioned by representatives of the FBI this week but he would make no verification of the fact to representatives of the Carolina Times when questioned on the matter. He stated, however, that he had been advised by his attorney to make no further statements to the press for publication other than the already made last week.

According to F. B. McKissick, attorney employed by Evans, no developments of importance have occurred in the matter since it was revealed in last week's issue of the Times.

CHARLOTTE — An art exhibit featuring the work of the Charlotte Mecklenburg elementary school children and an open house program with prizes will be featured at the second anniversary of the Mechanics and Farmers Branch Bank here on Sunday March 1 from 4 to 7 p. m.

Located at 101 Beatties Ford Road, the new branch has "exceeded our original anticipation of 2 million dollars in deposits for the 2 years of operation." According to John H. Wheeler, president of the parent Durham bank.

"The board of directors and the management are highly elated at the rate of growth of our bank," Wheeler said.

Indication of the bank's progress during 1963 was seen in a spectacular gain of 60 places in rank since one year ago, according to the American Banker's Year End Roll Call of the nation's 2700 largest banks. Mechanics and Farmers now stands in 2612th position, according to Upton E. Liptrott, president of American Bankers daily news paper.

Wheeler paid special tribute to the "enthusiasm and zeal of our dynamic Charlotte Mecklenburg management and staff."

Total assets for the Raleigh, Durham and Charlotte offices have climbed from some $10 and a half million in 1962 to more than $13 and a half million at the close of business in 1963.

Bank officials revealed that for the second time in two years, Mechanics and Farmers Bank had topped all other predominantly Negro operated banks. In runner-up spot for 1963 was Citizens Trust of Atlanta with assets of $12,574,000. Washington, D. C.'s Industrial Bank was in third place with assets of $12,573,000.

Miss Myrta Jean Lee, an elementary teacher in the Charlotte City School System, will direct the exhibit. Works will be on display at the bank from March 1 through March 6. This marks the second annual art exhibit to be held in the bank's lobby. Mrs. Esther Page Hill was in charge of the 1963 exhibit. Mr. Spears will coordinate anniversary activities.

Date Set For Attack on Acute Human Crippler

Polio will be dead for good if Durham and Orange County physicians have their way.

A plan to sweep the Durham Orange County area clean of any danger of a recurrence of the crippling disease was laid out Tuesday night the kickoff meeting of a two county campaign to get the new oral polio vaccine to residents of the entire region.

Dr. Will L. London, chairman of the Durham Orange County Medical Foundation sponsored drive, outlined a program that will turn the elementary schools of the area into feeding stations for the newly perfected two dose Trivalent vaccine on separate Sundays in March and May.

Speaking at the kickoff dinner at Schrafft's Country Inn, Dr. London explained that the local drive is part of a state-wide effort to give all citizens six weeks and older an opportunity to get this new and improved protection against the danger of polio.

He described how physician members of the Foundation will man feeding stations in elementary schools all over the two county area to administer the new vaccine, which is simply eaten on a sugar cube.

Dr. London pointed out that the vaccine is strongly recommended even for those who may have had previous injections of the Salk vaccine since it provides intestinal immunity as well as bloodstream protection against three different polio viruses.

"Our success in getting this valuable protection to the population depends on your cooperation," he told members of the news media and of representative health, school, professional and governmental organizations who were present as members of the drive's advisory board. The Durham pediatrician introduced Duke University football coach Bill Murray and his University of North Carolina coaching colleague, Jim Hickey, as information chairmen for the event.

Dr. London also introduced his Chapel Hill co-chairman Dr. Robert J. Senior and steering committee members, Dr. David Jones, Dr. Bailey Webb and Dr. W. J. Whatley, Jr.

Serving on the advisory board are Dr. O. L. Ader and Dr. O.
