

"MISS ALABAMA OF ELKSDOM"
—A freshman coed at Alabama State College, Montgomery, Miss. Georgia Cabbie, won the title of "Miss Alabama of Elksdom" at recent convention of the Alabama Association of Elks, meeting at Huntsville, Ala. Above the beautiful and talented winner, center, is crowned by Miss Willa Frances

Mother and Daughter to Receive Degrees Together at Elizabeth City

ELIZABETH CITY—When Mrs. Mary McCloud Long of Elizabeth City, receives the bachelor of Science degree in May from Elizabeth City State College, it will be the culmination of a long-cherished ambition and an example of persistence in the achievement of a set goal.

Her graduation will also be significant in the fact that she will graduate with her youngest daughter, Miss Jayne Long.

Mrs. Long, the mother of six children and grandmother of three, interrupted her college career many times in the process of rearing her family. She said she was encouraged and inspired to continue by the cooperation of her late husband, Walter R. Long, who was a printer. He made it possible for her to attend several summer sessions.

Three daughters and a son attended this college. Two daughters, Joyce and Justina of the class of 1954, are teachers in the public school of New Brunswick, N. J. Her son Elton Long is a caterer in Philadelphia, Pa., and daughter Mrs. Gloria Overton, a house wife in Winston-Salem. Her youngest son, Donald is a student at P. W. Moore Junior High School, Elizabeth City.

Both Mrs. Long and her daughter Jayne graduated elementary Education majors and completed student teaching requirements last semester. Mrs. Long was at Mission Anderson, Belcross, and Jayne at C. B. Brown School, Winton.

A widow since 1961, Mrs. Long enrolled for a regular student in 1962. She is employed on campus as a part-time assistant in the Lighthouse College Center (the Student Union). Mrs. Long said she is looking forward to a career in teaching and hopes to be located in the Elizabeth City area.

Is there anything quite like that feeling of being overwhelmed upon entering a movie theater after looking at a small TV screen for 2 or 3 years? Every job done well is a standing advertisement for the company that did it.

Some people seem to go to seed mentally before they have reached physical maturity.

By always expecting the worst, I find each day turns out better than I expected.

Action Being Taken In Bias Food Distribution

WASHINGTON—Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman today reported that "prompt and vigorous actions by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the cooperation of State and local agencies has resulted in correcting several instances of discrimination in the distribution of USDA-donated foods to needy families in Arkansas, Georgia and Mississippi.

The discriminatory practices prohibited by the regulations for the Direct Distribution Program, and to see that any such practices are promptly identified and corrected. As part of this effort USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service is carrying on a continuous review of State and local food donation programs to assure full compliance with the Civil Rights Act.

The Department's Office of the Inspector General found that on three occasions in recent months supplies of such items as rolled wheat, dry milk and cheese were exhausted before all recipients had been served, with the result that substantially higher percentages of white recipients than Negroes received the commodities.

"We are assured by the Georgia Department of Education, the State distributing agency in this case, that needy families in Bleckley County may now call for their donated foods on a non-segregated basis on either of the two days the distribution center is operated. In addition, in a month in which there is insufficient supply of any food for all recipients at the prescribed distribution rate, it will either be withheld from distribution or the quantity available will be prorated to all recipients," Secretary Freeman said.

He added that similar assurances of corrective action have been obtained in Phillips and St. Francis Counties, Arkansas, and Lauderdale and Warren Counties, in Mississippi, where certain discriminatory practices were found by USDA personnel.

The Secretary said a concerned effort is being made by the Department to ensure that State and local agencies are fully aware of

At the same time, he said that every complaint of alleged discrimination in Federal food assistance programs is investigated thoroughly.

In the distribution of foods to needy families, USDA regulations prohibit such practice as separate lines, separate days of distribution, separate entrances for white and Negro recipients, and varying rates of distribution based on race.

Secretary Freeman cited that most recent example of Bleckley County, Ga., where monthly distribution of USDA foods was made on successive days to white and Negro recipients. Investigation by
