NMA President Hails Signing of Medicare Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dr. W. Montague Cobb of Washington, D. C., president of the National Medical Association, was one of the guests in the Presidential Party flown to Independence, Missouri, to witness the signing of the Medicare Bill by President Johnson on Friday, July 30, 1965.

There were about 33 Congressmen and other supporters of medicare in the group invited by President Johnson to attend the historic ceremony. President Johnson went to Independence, Missouri, to sign the Bill so as to be with former President Truman, under whom the medicare fight began nearly 20 years ago.

On departing at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, D. C., Dr. Cobb said the occasion was both thrilling and humbling. The new legislation, providing medicare for the elderly under social security, is one of the most momentous laws of our time, he said. President Truman had been an ardent advocate of national health insurance as proposed under the Wagner-Murray-Dingle Bill, first introduced during President Roosevelt's administration. On leaving office, President Truman had declared that he regarded the failure of the Congress to enact health insurance legislation as one of the disappointments of his administration.

President Kennedy received a delegation of NMA representatives at the White House on August 1, 1963, and expressed his appreciation of NMA's support and said that he failed to understand why the American Medical Association continued its opposition. President Johnson received a similar NMA delegation on August 4, 1964, at the White House. He also expressed his appreciation of the NMA's support on medicare and what the President was endeavoring to accomplish in eliminating racial discrimination from American life.

Ford Foundations Announces Arts Fellowships

NEW YORK—The Ford Foundation announced fellowship awards to thirteen persons under its program of administrative internships in the performing arts.

The program, initiated as a three-year effort in 1962, will be continued another two years through 1967. In its first three years, seventy-one awards were granted to provide on-the-job training for interns assigned to professional and community performing-arts organizations. The fellowships are intended to encourage the development and training of administrative and managerial personnel for professional theater, opera and ballet companies, and symphony orchestras.

A panel of professional managers aided the Foundation in the selection. Ten of the interns were chosen from among 114 candidates nominated in February at the Foundation's request by artistic directors, managers, administrators, and others in the fields of music and the theater.

Three previous recipients had their awards renewed. The current interns come from ten cities and towns in seven states. They will serve with artistic organizations in eight states and the District of Columbia.
