By M. E. GARDNER
N. C. State University
"Open House" for high school students will be held on Saturday, October 30, at N. C. State University by the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences. This will be the 7th annual "Open House," the purpose being to give students an opportunity to consider "Careers Ahead."

The challenge of today in the field of higher education is the training of young people to assume roles of leadership in our ever-changing economic and social environment. These roles of leadership might very well include job opportunities which do not even exist at the present time.

Since the inception of this program, more emphasis each year has been placed upon the fundamentals, or what we may call the basic principles involved leading to a better understanding of the biological, physical and social sciences; and the unlimited career opportunities available to the well trained mind.

Attention will be focused upon: the significance of progress being made in unlocking the secrets of genetics; equipment used for studying the structure and functions of microorganisms; a computer performing statistical operations; the role of the engineer in developing equipment to improve the production, processing and harvesting of food and fiber crops.

The use of radio-istopes in studying the uptake of plant nutrients, the role of the plant and animal breeder in crop and livestock improvement; the use of growth regulators; the introduction of carbon dioxide into growth chambers to improve certain plant processes; the study of the effect light and temperature have on plant responses; irradiation of seeds.

In addition to the conducted tours to observe some of the experiments I have outlined, there will be visits to residence halls and other places of interest on the campus. Visitors will also have opportunity to learn about admission requirements, availability of scholarships and other forms of financial aid.

This year for the first time committees are working in all of the 100 counties. Get in touch with your county extension chairman or your high school principal for additional information and group travel plans.

PUFFED UP PARTY FARE WITH DANISH BLUE CHEESE

Try puffing up your pride as a cook by serving a simple dish of Egg puffs with Danish blue cheese. These heavenly, cloudlike delicacies can be served as snacks to go along with beverages or cocktails, as an interesting breadstuff to accompany tossed green or fruit salads. Or add some hot green vegetables such as green beans or spinach to serve along with the egg puffs for a nice luncheon item.

Use two slices of trimmed bread per serving, or, if you want to use only one slice, top with crumbled cheese and spoon on the meringue... just remember to cut down on the amount of eggs and milk you need. The richness and creamy texture of the blue cheese gives this dish a wonderful flavor.

EGG PUFFS WITH DANISH BLUE CHEESE

6-12 slices white bread 1 to 1½ cups Danish Blue Cheese, crumbled
4 eggs, separated Salt
1 tablespoon sherry flavoring ½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons sugar 1 teaspoon flavoring
2 cups milk

Trim crusts from bread slices. Beat egg yolks with flavoring and sugar until light yellow in color, and beat in milk. Place bread slices in deep platter and pour the egg-yolk mixture over them. Set slices aside, to soak for a few minutes. Line a large pan or baking sheet with unglazed paper. Use a broad spatula to aid in careful transfer of bread soaked slices to lined baking sheet. Sprinkle or scatter crumbled Danish blue cheese over top of bread slices. Carefully cover each slice with second slice of bread. With spoon or spatula top each sandwiched serving with stiff meringue made by beating the egg whites with salt and adding sugar gradually, and the flavoring, until it is well mixed and not granular. Place baking sheet in a preheated 350° moderate oven, immediately turn heat control down to 275°, and continue to bake for 45 to 60 minutes. Cut into slices, wedges or triangles, or serve whole at once with a tossed green or fruit salad, and with beverages. This dish makes a good supper or luncheon item served with a hot green vegetable such as green beans or spinach, or with broiled tomatoes. Serves 6.

Former N. C. Gov. Turns First Earth At Triangle Site

RALEIGH — Former Governor Luther H. Hodges, Chairman of the Research Triangle Foundation, and IBM vice-president Paul W. Knaplund broke ground September 23rd for the company's multimillion dollar facility to be built at Research Triangle Park.

Individual manufacturing, development engineering and administrative buildings will be erected on the 369-acre tract, located about 12 miles west of this city.

The brief ceremony followed a breakfast for 50 business leaders and state and local officials, at which IBM demonstrated one of the products it will manufacture locally.

In the demonstration, computer information was exchanged between Edcott, New York, the location of IBM's earliest manufacturing facility, and Raleigh Durham where the company's newest plant will be built.

The product, an IBM 1050 data communication system, transmits and receives information in a variety of forms commonly used by business—printed copy, punched cards, edge-punched documents, and paper tape.

Dixie Acquittal of Tom Coleman Proves Need of Federal Move

NEW YORK—The acquittal of Tom Coleman, charged with the killing of Jonathan Daniels, the young white seminary student in Hayneville, Ala., demonstrates anew the need for Federal action "to assure that justice will be done when American citizens are assaulted, bombed and murdered in reprisal for their civil rights actions," John A. Morsell, assistant executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said here, recently.

The NAACP, he said, has drafted legislation providing for identification of victims of hate violence and is seeking to have it introduced in Congress. The full text of Dr. Morsell's statement follows:

The monstrous farce just played out in Hayneville, Alabama, must convince even the most reluctant doubters that, under conditions prevailing now and for the indefinite future, punishment cannot be secured in the Deep South for crimes committed by white persons against Negroes or against whites working actively for racial justice. This situation, incredible to the rest of the world, has become an intolerable burden for this nation to bear as it seeks to ensure the rule of law in all aspects of the national life. The real verdict in Hayneville was a blanket license to kill, issued gratis to every Alabama bigot who declares open season on Negroes and their white friends.

If belief in justice through law and the courts is to have any chance of survival, some means must be found to assure that justice will be done when American citizens are assaulted, bombed and murdered in reprisal for their civil rights actions. If the constitution has to be changed, let us change it so that the Federal courts and unbiased juries may sit in judgment wherever the states cannot or will not honor the law.

At the very least, a system of Federal indemnification of the victims of this violence, with reimbursement to be borne by the offending localities, would bring a glimmering of hope to those who must place their safety on the line whenever they assert their rights as citizens. Legislation to this effect has been developed by the NAACP and it is hoped that it can be successfully introduced in the United States Congress at the earliest possible time.

Personally Yours

... answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. I'm afraid my shoulders will droop from carrying heavy books to and from classes and leaning over my desk every day. Do you know of anything I can do to prevent round shoulders?

A. Books won't round your shoulders—but bad posture will! Stand straight, sit straight, and, until it's a habit, think straight. This exercise will help: Lie flat on your back on the floor with both arms out to the sides. Begin arching your back, as if a string were pulling your chest to the sky with no help from your elbows. Let your head slide as you go until the top of it touches the floor; the rest of your weight should be on your hips and heels. Count to three, slide back down on your back, and repeat five times, gradually increasing to ten. And, after homework, put one of the books on your head and walk around the room two or three times.

Q. People are always asking me to repeat things I say. I thought I spoke clearly, but now I'm beginning to wonder. Do you have any suggestions?

A. This is a fun problem to solve! You can do it alone or with friends. Read aloud from some of your favorite books or magazines. Or, make a group project of it and get together with others to read scenes from plays. Concentrate on speaking clearly and distinctly without slurring words together. Make sure you pronounce every syllable. You'll find yourself speaking slower. Speak in a well modulated tone—not so soft that people have to strain to hear you, but not so loud that it is unpleasant.

Q. Silverware confuses me. I mean, when I'm faced with more than just a knife, fork and spoon, I fumble and bumble. Help!

A. Here's an easy-to-remember rule for silverware etiquette. Begin with the implement farthest from the plate for the first course and continue in the order toward the plate in the order the utensils are set with later courses. Even if you forget which utensil is which, don't worry. Most likely, no one else will notice if you accidentally use the wrong one. Just enjoy your dinner and your dinner companions!

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR WIFE OF DR. DANIELS IN PETERSBURG

PETERSBURG, Va. — Funeral services for Mrs. Blanche Taylor Daniel, wife of Virginia State College President Robert P. Daniel, were conducted from the Gillfield Baptist Church in Petersburg last week.

The Reverend Grady W. Powell, pastor of the Gillfield Church, officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. A. J. White, pastor, Zion Baptist Church, and Virginia State College personnel, Rev. H. E. Braxton, College Minister; Rev. Otha Harris, Associate College Minister; Rev. E. F. S. Davies, professor of philosophy; and Rev. Dr. Harry W. Roberts, professor of sociology.

A Vocal Ensemble of Virginia State College Choir members, directed by Willis C. Patterson, participated in the services, and Clarence E. Whiteman, college organist. Active Pallbearers included Dr. L. B. Brooks, Provost, Norfolk Division of Virginia State College; Dr. J. Rupert Picott, Executive Secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association; and Virginia State College staff members A. T. Harris, R. R. McDaniel, S. G. Singleton, J. C. Nelson W. S. Cooper, and J. B. Sanders. Honorary Pallbearers were Alpha Kappa Sorority, The Links, Inc., Sigma Pi Phi Fraternity, Treble Clef and Book Lovers Club, and the Virginia State College faculty (Petersburg and Norfolk). Interment was at Blandford Cemetery.

Miss Robinson is joining the Embassy staff as personal secretary to James S. Lanigan, Commercial Attache. "I am looking forward to my new job because I have always wanted to work in a foreign country," said Miss Robinson.

The attractive young Detroit takes a great deal of skill and experience with her to the new job. She attended Detroit's High School of Commerce, Highland Park Junior College, and the Elsa Cooper School of Court Reporting. In addition to her experience on Capitol Hill, Miss Robinson worked at the Lafayette Clinic in Detroit and in the Sales Promotion Department of the Chrysler Corporation. She was the only secretary to accompany the fifteen Congressmen who went to Selma, Alabama in February to investigate the racial crisis during which Nobel Prize winner Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was jailed. "Shirley's skill as a court reporter was invaluable to us in recording the racial bigotry and discrimination suffered by Negro Americans in Selma," stated Cong. Conyers.

SAYS HEART ATTACKS TOP GUN ACCIDENTS AMONG N.C. HUNTERS

CHAPEL HILL—North Carolina's hunting season is here again, but with a little bit of forethought, it need not be open season on hunters.

Among the hazards of hunting is accidental death from a gunshot—one's own gun, or that of another hunter. Not so dramatic, but at least three times as prevalent, is the tragedy of heart attack deaths.

Unlike the deer, who can only try to outrun their stalkers, hunters can take certain precautions to avoid falling prey to the risks of the hunt. Here are some recommendations from the North Carolina Heart Association to help bring hunter back alive.

First, do ask yourself this question: Do I have the heart to hunt? It's not sentiment or ethics the state heart group is concerned about here, but the condition of your heart.

Deer hunting often demands a level of energy output which may be triple or quadruple the level at which most part-time hunters operate during the rest of the year. Extremes of weather, change of altitude, rough terrain and the stress of the chase can levy a heavy tax on the heart's capacity.

In a unique series of experiments, the Minnesota Heart Association recently measured the heart stress on a deer hunter "who not only gets his deer, but who drags it out of snowy woods single-handed." It was too much, they found, for 11 percent of a pre-screened group of men over 40 who had no evidence of heart trouble. The men who underwent the tests had previously been examined and found to have apparently normal hearts. It's obvious, therefore, that the hazards to an unexamined cross-section of hunters over 40 would be higher.

Accordingly, the most important word from the North Carolina Heart agency is:

Have a complete physical examination before you plan your hunting trip. Then your doctor can, if necessary suggest ways in which you can pace yourself, get your deer and at the same time minimize the strains on your heart.
