NCTA to Give Joint Benefit Banquet at NCC

The North Carolina Teachers Association, assisted by the Mechanics and Farmers Bank, the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, and the North Carolina College of Durham, will sponsor a benefit banquet in Durham on Friday, January 28, at 7:30 in the cafeteria on the campus of North Carolina College.

The master effort of the NCTA is designed to raise funds to erect on the mainland of Hammocks Beach a chapel and garden in honor of the late Dr. William W. Sharpe, donor of the more than 4000 acres of choice land in 1950. Eight hundred and fifty acres of the land is now being developed for recreational purposes by the North Carolina State Parks Commission as the Hammocks Beach State Park. The chapel and garden will be placed on the mainland of the Hammocks property where more than 3000 acres are still available for development.

Admission to the banquet will be gained by a minimum pledge of $50, $75, $100 or more, with one-fourth of the amount pledged, presented in check with the banquet admission ticket, or reported earlier with the Acceptance Form, as shown in previous instructions.

The principals have been notified. Tickets have been forwarded in some cases. Any teacher and other persons interested in the Hammocks development may secure additional information by sending in a request for pledge forms at the NCTA headquarters office.

CIVIL RIGHTS VOLUNTEER SLAIN IN ALA.

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Samuel Young Jr., a 21-year-old student at Tuskegee Institute, was murdered here Tuesday by a white service station employee. The slaying of the young Negro civil rights volunteer touched off angry demonstrations by fellow college students.

Marvin Segrest, 67, has been charged with murder and held without bond. No date has been set for the preliminary hearing.

District Atty. Tom Young said he was told Segrest and Young, who was found in a rainy driveway along side a taxi stand shot in the face with a .38 caliber bullet, had a disagreement sometime before the shooting and the Negro left the station and returned.

Model Mothers Have Series of Xmas Parties

Starting on December 17, the Model Mothers had their first Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Mable F. Harris, 821 Lawson Street. Mrs. Reba Spaulding served as hostess for the occasion. The recreation room was beautifully decorated with poinsettias, candles, trees and other ornaments which added to the festive occasion. The regular order of business was dispensed with except for voting on a new slate of officers brought in by the nominating committee. The officers for the next two years are as follows: President, Mrs. Mable F. Harris; Vice President, Mrs. Geraldine Alston; Secretary, Mrs. Hattie Crews; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Ruby Philyaw; Treasurer, Mrs. Minnie T. Gilmer.

The members played various games after which they were served by the hostess. The table was beautifully decorated with Christmas flowers. There were assorted sandwiches carrying out the Christmas colors of red and green, candies, nuts, egg nog, cake and spiced tea. Everything was served buffet style.

While the members were being served, one of our guests, Miss Debbie Scarborough entertained us with a modern dance to the tune of "O Holy Night" which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Later in the evening, the members exchanged gifts to the delight of everyone. We were very happy to welcome back some of our old members. The members present were as follows: Mesdames Baldwin and daughter, Cora Blunt, Thelma Carrington, Hattie Crews, Minnie T. Gilmer, Mable F. Harris, Elizabeth Herndon, Althea Holmes, Betty Massenburg, Lottie Mason, Hortense McClinton, Lena Richardson, Pearlene Scarborough, Frances Schooler, Reba Spaulding, Anna Thornton, Naomi Thorpe, Nellie Toole and Lydia Wray.

On Tuesday evening, December 28, the Model Mothers entertained their children and guests from seventh grade to senior high at the Recreation Center. The young folk had a swinging good time. Punch, potato chips, corn chips and cheese-triv were served. Earlier on the same day, the younger children were entertained at the home of Mrs. Lottie Mason on Dunbar Street. All the guests were given gifts.

The series of parties came to a close Thursday evening, December 30, at the home of Mrs. Hattie Crews, 1835 S. Alston Ave., where the Model Mothers entertained their husbands. A variety of games were played and prizes were given to the winners of the games. Small tokens were also given to the husbands. Punch and nicknacks were served.

ALA. VOTERS TO SEEK INJUNCTION REQUIRING ELECTIONS NOV. 8, 1966

LOWNDES COUNTY, Ala.—A group of Lowndes County, Alabama, voters, all members of the newly formed Lowndes County Freedom Organization, will seek an injunction in U.S. District Court in Montgomery, the first of next week, requiring that a complete slate of county officials be elected in the general elections to be held November 8, 1966.

The complaint, filed in U. S. District Judge Johnson's court, charges that "the white population of that County (Lowndes), constituting a small minority of the total, by unlawful and unconstitutional means, has seized and retained all political power and has by such unlawful and unconstitutional means prevented the majority of the population, being the Negro people, from participating in any manner in the administration of County affairs or the selection of its government."

No More Standing Over Hot Irons

NEW YORK (CFN) — With the development of new technology and processes in the textile industry no-iron garments have exploded on the market during the past couple of years.

This permanently pressed apparel is creating a revolution in households throughout the country and eliminating the age-old drudgery of women standing over a hot iron hours after hours pressing clothes.

There are many permanently pressed products on the market, of many different names, qualities and processes. The safest way to be sure you are getting quality in permanently pressed garments is to purchase products manufactured by a nationally known company.

One company that has long been a leader in the development of new quality products is The Manhattan Shirt Company. This company has one of the largest selections of permanently pressed products in men's and women's wear in the industry.

In the Manhattan permanently pressed process all fabric is treated in advance—before it is cut. It is pre-cured and every square inch of the fabric is permanently pressed. Sewing, too, is an important factor in this process. The company uses a released tension stitching to prevent puckering. After the garment is sewn, special presses developed for Manhattan smooth the fabric again for enduring smoothness.

An example of this company's permanently pressed products is the 65% Kodol 35% fine cotton Dura-Wite men's shirt. With this shirt, you really can throw away your iron. It is not only permanently pressed but it is guaranteed in writing by the company to stay white. A big problem in perfecting permanently pressed white garments has been discoloration, but Manhattan's early experiments with stay white polyester blend fabrics enabled them to come up with a shirt which they guarantee to stay white for the life of the shirt or the company will replace it.

In both batiste and broadcloth, Dura-Wite stays permanently pressed and permanently white.

And, the same shirt comes in only one difference is that it is called Dura-Brite. You have a big choice of pastel fashion colors from which to choose.

12 in all. Here too, the color brightness is guaranteed to stay bright and it is made from the same 65% Kodol and 35% fine cotton blend. Dura-Wite and Dura-Brite are both long sleeve and half-sleeve styles. Just everything you could think of and want in a shirt is here.

"I hate ironing! I've always hated ironing. I'll never iron another shirt as long as I live," says comedienne Phyllis Diller. Permanently pressed fabrics in Manhattan men's dress and sport shirts are making it possible for women everywhere to "throw away their irons."

Manhattan also manufactures three other permanently pressed men's shirts. The Dura-Smooth of DuPont's polyester fiber comes in a wide range of plaids, stripes as well as solid colors and white. Then there is the Madaco shirt of 80% Dacron and 20% cotton. It combines permanent press with luxury in white, stripes and checks. Manhattan's only 100% Dacron tricort is the Skyway, a breeze to care for... just rinse it out and let it drip dry. As a matter of fact, it tends to dry faster than most lingerie fabrics because many designers like to use it in a delightfully sheer soft light weight. It comes in several weights but the light weight is a pet of many women.

Lingerie Fashion Lesson

By Gaile Dugas CFN Women's Editor

NEW YORK (CFN)—Kicky, young, elegant, sophisticated, innocent, and magnificent: these are the contradictory adjectives that describe the lingerie look for the holidays.

For no two lingerie designers have the same approach and this is wonderful. It means that you can have a ruffled robe, a straight toga gown, fluttering pleats, a tailored sleepshirt, a full-length shift that's narrow yet cut to show the curves.

Color? It dazzles, it flatters, it is smashing or subtle. Listen to one designer, Matej Sherko of Christian Dior.

"There's nothing faint or babyish about the color we're doing. I'm planning an earthy mocha brown over black and pleating it in holiday greens. I think the strong blue-green combinations are very important and next, pink and blue but good, clear colorings. We are doing both short and long length gowns and robes, some very full and some with a formless look that is almost slip shape."

Designer Eva Stillman sees it this way: "We like lots of color; a favorite is a rose pink and strong blue combination. The prints are smaller, not bold and big. We're using crepe a great deal, a crepe that is made of nylon with the crepe pebbled built right into the yarn itself so that it lasts. We're doing a toga in this crepe. Our colors are really great: shocking, emerald green and turquoise. I've even done a gown with a shocking pink top and an emerald green skirt. Nothing dull about that one!"

Colombian-born couturier Emma de Berge has some avant garde ideas about color:

"For the holidays and on into spring, I like an avocado green—I call it a rare green. Then I'm doing raspberry and the pinks but in mauve to grape shades that I think will be fun for winter. These colors are absolutely marvelous handled in the right way. I believe in a soft shaping of the body lines and very high styling. Since lingerie is such an important part of a woman's life."

Crepe, the fabric with the look and touch of a beautiful silk crepe, is a favorite of lingerie designers. Why? Because it has the classic, fluid drape and rich, soft feel of crepe. It falls straight

Crepe is the perfect fabric for slips since most fashions today are lined. All you need is a wispy little something next to your body. This light crepe, cut into delicious little demi-tasse or disco slips, is exactly right. No bulk at the waistline, only simple, beautiful cut in a fabric that is completely fluid.
