BOOK TELLS FACTS OF LIFE ABROAD
If you wear eyeglasses and are going to Turkey for a lengthy stay, better bring an extra pair. There are no facilities there for grinding lenses . . .
In Switzerland there are a few baby foods but there isn't much variety. American imports are expensive so it's best to take along a blender and prepare your own . . .
If "Rover" comes down with a tummy ache in Baghdad, he will really have it made. Veterinarians in that city make calls just like doctors for humans . . .
These are random examples of the information in the new edition of "Living Abroad," one of a New Horizons series published by Pan American Airways. The 828-page hard cover book is written by Eleanor Beers Pierce, published by Pan Am through its worldwide offices, travel agents and by direct mail. The book is also available at most bookstores through Doubleday and Company.
The current issue provides detailed information and expert advice on living in 90 countries. The author draws upon her own experiences in world travel with her engineer husband and also on up-to-date information collected from hundreds of American women living abroad.
The book is organized so that it provides for each country a description of the environment and people, then continues with a detailed breakdown of travel tips, entry regulations, communications, currency and banking, child life, adult wardrobes and toiletries and 15 other basic aspects of living abroad.
Additional sections in the new edition include coverage of Jordan, Afghanistan, Saint Vincent, Samoa, Tahiti, Canary Islands and Cayman Islands.
Copies may be ordered by mail postpaid by writing to Pan American Airways, P. O. Box 11430, or may be purchased at Pan Am ticket offices throughout the world. The cost is $4.95 per copy.

FREEDOM TROPHY—In recognition of the part they played in starting, in 1960, the now famed sit-in demonstrations by college students, A. and T. College and the four students who initiated the revolt were honored with the presentation of a Freedom Trophy.
The giant loving cup, given by the New York City Freedom National Bank, was presented to the college by Jackie Robinson, the former baseball great who delivered the main address last Sunday at the annual A. and T. Men's Day observance.

NEIGHBORHOOD COUNCIL PLANS EXPANSION; TO MEET MONDAY

David W. Stith, Chairman of the Hillside Park Neighborhood Council, announced this week that plans have been completed to expand the size and operation of the Neighborhood Council to include an additional 250 families. The new expanded Neighborhood Council will include all families South of the Railroad on Otis Street, South to Pilot Street, and West to Roxboro Road.
Stith stated that "it has been shown through informal meetings with representatives from the new areas, that our problems are too similar in nature not to combine our efforts toward a common goal."
Stith went on to point out that the new Council will continue to work toward the completion of its 1965 projects. Some of these projects include: proper police and fire protection, signals on railroad crossings, and paving of all streets in the area. Among the many new projects for 1966 will be a renewed request for a recreation site in or near the neighborhood.

GOODMAN

LOCAL BAHAI'S TO OBSERVE RELIGION DAY

"Religion Comes of Age" is the theme of a World Religion Day observance scheduled by the Baha'is of Durham Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in the lounge of the North Carolina College Home Economics Building.
George Goodman, director of public affairs, radio station WLJB, New York City, along with three other participants—Rabbi M. Berger of Beth-El Synagogue; the Rev. Henry Elkins, director of the NCC United Campus Christian Ministry; and Dr. Adolph Furth of the St. Augustine's College faculty will appear as panelists.
The program will direct attention to "the oneness of mankind and the fundamental oneness of religion."
was served buffet style.
Later in the evening, gifts were exchanged with invited guests and secret pals revealed created quite an exciting evening.
Guests and members present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Hester, Mesdames Helen Clay, Maggie B. Marshall, Minnie Jones, Ora Hariston, Cora Brown, Nannie Tomlin, Anna James, Lillian Alston, Bertha Harris, Susie Martin, Misses Jennie Fuller, Lillian Cole and Rubie Tilley.

World's Most Expensive Portable Drill?

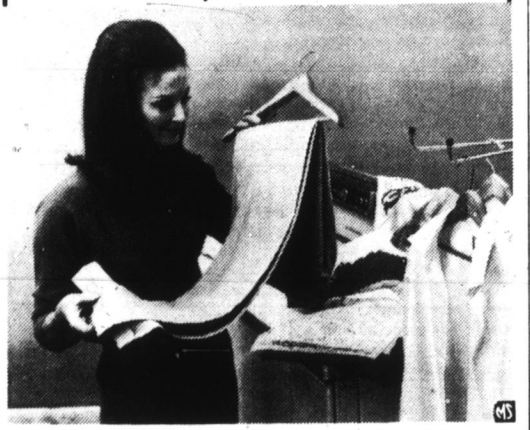

GENEVA, ILL.—Owners of fine sporting weapons will appreciate the anniversary gift recently given to the president of an electric tool manufacturing company. It is the most expensive home workshop drill ever made and sells for $250.00.
Gunsmith-engraved like a fine rifle or shotgun, the drill's standard polished aluminum case is fully embellished with the traditional flourishes and arabesques so familiar to shooting buffs. Engraving of the drill was done by the Handicapped Engravers Institute of Chicago.
Like most unusual ideas, the inspiration for the gift has spawned others. Employees of Portable Electric Tools, Inc. were seeking a unique gift to present to Portable's president, John L. Baker, on the company's 20th Anniversary. This special model of one of the company's most successful products was the result.
Baker was so pleased with the gift, and it attracted so much interest, that Portable's marketing vice-president decided to place an additional but limited number of the drills in selected prestige stores throughout the country. Standard models of the product, the Shopmate Model 1838 3/4" single speed drill, sell for about $25.00.
Only 20 of the hand-engraved drills will be produced. Each will be delivered in a walnut case lined with jewelers cloth. A specially-engraved plaque giving the name of the owner, or occasion will be affixed to the cover. Because of the intricate hand-work involved, no two drills can be identical and each will carry a special serial number.

PRESIDENTS—THEIR LADIES
Dr. James E. Cheek, president of the A. and T. College, and Mrs. Dowdy, at left, hosted Dr. James E. Cheek, president of Shaw University, and Mrs. Cheek, at right, when Dr. Cheek last week delivered the main address at the annual banquet sponsored by the A. and T. Problem Laundry—No Problem Any More

The makers of today's washing wonders claim they have solved almost every laundry problem. And they can prove it.
Yet many women still have trouble in laundering the new fibers and fabrics which require special treatment.
The Lever Homemaking Center has come up with some timely tips for washing these non-run-of-the-mill items, which make up about 10 percent of the family laundry.
Permanent press (sometimes called durable press) is a new garment treatment, and very important in men's shirts and slacks, as well as women's blouses and skirts. It means that the whole garment has been shape-set so as to need no further ironing after wear and laundering.
With proper laundering, the built-in creases and pleats will last and last and the proper laundering here means warm or cool water with a detergent such as new Cold Water Surf. No hot water! They look better when tumble-dried in an automatic dryer, although they can be drip-dried if necessary.
Plastic items (washable lamp shade covers, baby's panties, rainwear, shower curtains, place mats, tablecloths, etc.) also prefer the cool treatment. Spot clean them, if necessary, then launder in cool water with Cold Water Surf. Air dry them, or use the wash and wear or cool setting on your automatic dryer.
The important thing to remember, the experts say, is that none of these items like rough treatment—and that heat and hot water tend to wrinkle synthetic fibers and melt plastics.
This cool (and gentle) treatment is one of the special boons of Cold Water Surf. In addition, it is wonderfully versatile: it is just as efficient in hot water for regular laundry, and highly soluble—which makes it ideal for hand laundry. Hot or cold!

Festive Snack Idea

Everybody loves French fries! Party guests can help themselves using an ice cream cone as a handy, portable container. Toast frozen French fries in the oven with butter and salt. Serve in a big bowl with grated Parmesan cheese on the side and catchup for dipping.
Thirst-quenching drinks of Sparkling 7-Up Limelight Punch can be poured from a pitcher. Easy for refills.
Sparkling 7-Up Limelight Punch
2 cans (6 oz. each) frozen limeade concentrate, thawed
2 cups orange juice, chilled
8 bottles (7 oz. each) 7-Up, chilled
Combine all ingredients in a pitcher. Place ice cubes in glasses and pour in punch. Garnish with lime slices. Makes about 12 (6 oz.) servings.

60th Wedding Anniversary

The Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Foushee, former residents of Chatham County and now of Chapel Hill, was held Monday, December 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foushee.
John Foushee and Lula Snipes were married on December 27, 1905, near Bynum. Their only daughter, Marjorie and six sons were in attendance Monday. The sons are Marion, Robert, Garland and Clyde of Chapel Hill; Samuel of Durham and Warren R. of Charlotte. Warren R. Foushee is the former pastor of the St. Joseph C. M. E. Church on Rosemary Street, Chapel Hill. The daughter-in-laws present were Mrs. Flora Fouché of Durham, Mrs. Ossie M. Foushee and Lina Foushee of Chapel Hill and Mrs. Sylvia B. Foushee of Charlotte. Also present was their grandson, Warren Raymond Foushee, Jr. of Charlotte.
The friends who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Farrington, Mrs. Susie Weaver and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Mason, Mrs. Betty King, Ralph Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Andrews. The guest and family were served a great variety of food and coffee.
