

Former Durhamite Delegate To Conference In Geneva

MRS. VERNON

Mrs. Gloria Garrett Vernon to Represent Labor Dept. at Meet

When Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz named comely Gloria G. Vernon as the Department of Labor's Representative to the United States Delegation to the Trade Negotiations Conference now in session in Geneva, Switzerland, it marked the first time the Department of Labor has selected a woman as its Representative. It is also the first time a Negro has been named to the Delegation.

Mrs. Vernon, who succeeds Herman Travis as Representative, is from the Labor Department's International Labor Bureau where she has served as an International Economist in the Division of Foreign Economic Policy. She was recommended for her appointment by Assistant Secretary of Labor for International Affairs, Geo. L-P Weaver, who is high in praise for her abilities.

Weaver states: "It has given me great pride and satisfaction to make this recommendation and sanction this appointment, although I am reluctant to lose Mrs. Vernon from our immediate staff here at the Labor Department in the Bureau of International Affairs. She has exhibited remarkable initiative and ability since coming to this Bureau from the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions in 1963."

Mrs. Vernon assumed her new post at Geneva in mid-January and will remain until the end of the present sessions which are likely to continue without interruptions for another year.

A native of Durham, she and her three brothers are children of Dr. and Mrs. York D. Garrett, well-known in Durham.

She attended Public Schools in Durham and later graduated from Howard University with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1946. She has done considerable graduate work at Howard University and at North Carolina College in Durham. See TRADE page 2A

Himes Sees Negro's Struggle As Helpful to Both Racial Groups

Dr. Joseph S. Himes, chairman of the Department of Sociology at North Carolina College, said in an address Friday, April 8, the fact "that Negroes and whites struggle through realistic conflict for justice or freedom or equality tends to clarify these values for both."

Speaking as president of the Southern Sociological Society at the group's annual meeting in New Orleans, Dr. Himes defined "realistic conflict" as "rationally determined means used to achieve culturally approved ends." He listed "legal redress, political pressure, and mass action," as meeting these criteria in the Negro's struggle.

Himes qualified the contention that Negro aggression reduces interracial communication. "Such a view of conflict," he declared, envisages Negroes and whites as hostile camps eyeing each other across a no man's land of antagonism and separation.

"It is true," he agreed, "that racial conflict tends to interrupt and reduce traditional communication between Negroes and whites. But traditional interracial communication assumes that communicators occupy fixed positions of superiority and inferiority, precludes the consideration of certain significant issues, and confines permitted interchanges to a rigid and sterile etiquette."

The first Negro president of the SSS since the late Dr. Charles Johnson served in the 1930's, Himes said, "One consequence of realistic racial conflict, then, is to bring the core values of the society into sharp focus and national attention. People are exhorted, even forced," he added, "to think about the basic societal tenets and to consider their meaning and applications and attend these meetings."

Former W-Salem Alderman Is Candidate for Legislature

WINSTON-SALEM — William R. Crawford, a former Winston-Salem Alderman, will seek one of the five Forsyth County Seats in the N. C. House of Representatives. He announced his candidacy last month. Currently there are no Negroes in the N. C. Legislature.

Crawford, 55, is seeking the Democratic Party's nomination. He was defeated in two previous attempts to gain a House seat.

He won one of the three democratic nominations in 1964 but lost in the general election. In 1962, he finished fourth in the race for the three seats in the democratic primary.

He was the second Negro to serve on the Board of Alderman and the first in recent years to win the democratic nomination for a seat in the general assembly. He was elected as alderman in 1951 and served 10 years.

In a prepared statement at his press conference, held recently, Crawford said that he feels a duty to run for office because he has benefited from the gains of the past and want to contribute his abilities now. He said he thinks that there

He endorsed the establishment of Good Neighbor Councils and Interracial Goodwill Committees. "Good Race Relations" See SEEKS page 2A
