Sunday, May 1

WHEN Charles A. Beard, the famous historian, was asked if he could summarize the lessons of history in a single volume, he said he could do it in four sentences:

1. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad with power.
2. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small.
3. The bee fertilizes the flower it robs.
4. When it is dark enough, you can see the stars.

Checks Play It Cool!

Suits are checking out for warm weather as speedily as you can say "OOT." Collections are keyed to summer action and attraction around the town, the world—or on your vacation. New color mergers give them a freshly minted look — gentled lined make them more feminine.

According to National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry, "Women have discovered that chic summer suits make them feel insulated against warm weather, less weary and wilted. And who doesn't know the importance of fashion psychology! One needn't major in that subject to note the summer appeal of this crisply checked rayon and silk suit. It's a short-sleeved, airy charmer dashed with leather belt and buttons.

Black and white, cognac and white, navy and white. Sizes: Misses' 6-16. Junior 5-15. About $25. Available in major stores.

Personally Yours

... answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. My cousin is coming to stay with us this summer. She lives 1,000 miles away and we've never met, so I don't know her at all. I've never shared my room before, and I'm worried about getting along with her. What should I do?

A. You still have time to become pen pals before you're roommates! Get acquainted and right away by writing her a letter. Tell her your interests and ask what hers are. You'll probably find that you like a number of the same things. When she arrives, discuss your likes and dislikes together, and compromise on your differences. If she likes folk-rock and you prefer classical music, agree to play favorite records when the other girl is away. If she likes to play tennis and you prefer swimming introduce her to someone who plays tennis. Just remember, she doesn't know you either, and may be just as concerned as you are about being friends!

Q. I discovered a disaster area when I tried on my swim suit for the first time since last year. How can I whittle down my middle so I can wear a two-piece suit this summer?

A. Stretch, twist and bend! And NOW is the time to start your exercises. Here are three that will show results: Raise your arms to the ceiling and reach first with the right arm, then the left, to stretch both sides. Repeat eight times. Next, lower both arms to a straight up position. Leading with your right arm, twist the upper part of your body to the right as far as it will go. Now the left, keeping the lower part of your body straight. Repeat eight times. For a finale, scatter twelve Kleenex tissues around your room. Bend from the waist to pick up each tissue. Exercises every night equal a shapely midriff by summer!

Q. We're having a girl-ask-boy dance at school next month. I know who I want to ask, but I don't know when to ask him or what I should do the night of the party. Does he still pick me up, or what?

A. Lucky you! Knowing who you want to ask is the most important step. Now, get together with the other girls to decide when you're going to invite the boys. A week in advance is right for most parties, but you can ask a little sooner for a big dance. When it's turnout night, you should arrange transportation — and some place to go afterwards, if curfews allow it. Maybe you and your friends can plan an after-dance party at someone's house. Have fun!
