Low Moderate Income Families To Be Helped by New Measure

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Opportunities are better for low and moderate income rural families to obtain the new or improved housing they need to continue living in the nation's small rural communities, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman announced recently.

Secretary Freeman said the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act, signed into law Nov. 3 by President Johnson, makes it possible for a broader range of rural families to qualify for assistance under expanded rural housing loan authorities of the Farmers Home Administration.

The new legislation, Freeman continued, makes more mortgage credit available in rural areas to low and moderate income families by removing the $300 million annual ceiling on new loans insured by the USDA's Farmers Home Administration.

"A new day is dawning for low and moderate income families living in our rural areas," the Secretary said. "With this new legislation, great strides will be made in closing the gap between mortgage credit available in rural areas and that available to families in our urban centers."

Here are other changes in the rural housing loan program administered by the Farmers Home Administration:

- Many rural families who had to go the long route of planning, contracting and building a house can now buy newly constructed buildings. Before the new legislation, these families could only purchase previously occupied buildings.
- Qualified low-income rural families can now obtain housing credit from Farmers Home Administration on the basis of a cosigner. Previously, only those rural persons 62 years and older qualified for this assistance.
- The new legislation increases from $1,000 to $1,500 the maximum amount of assistance the agency can make for emergency repairs or improvements to owner-occupied rural houses or to farm service buildings. This credit is not designed to upgrade a building but only to remove hazards to the health and safety of the family and the community.
- Rural families on the verge of losing their homes through foreclosure may save their homes if a sound basis can be developed by FHA to refinance their debts.

Toy Fire Engines Get Doggy Look

There's a doggy, new look to toy fire engines for Christmas, 1966. A long-time favorite with American youngsters, these fire trucks, built to scale of automobile-gauge steel and finished with real truck paint, have been given ultra-modern styling that hints at what tomorrow's real fire equipment will look like.

SIX RULES FOR EASY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Why get involved in that knockabout scramble chasing from store to store when with a simple plan all your most discriminating friends may be happily gifted and none of the Christmas Magic lost for you in the process.

Here's how the miracle may be accomplished. 1. Start now; 2. Select a category; 3. Make up your list of names; 4. Think carefully and decide upon something within that category for each and every giftee; 5. Pick an hour which is less likely to be crowded; and 6, in one visit to one store, do all your Christmas shopping! It's possible!

You can run the gamut, taste-wise and price-wise too, at your favorite toiletries counter.

Just for instance, wouldn't Mom like a fragrance-matched set of spray cologne and dusting powder, scented with a rare desert flower? Dad or Uncle Joe would surely be impressed with a handsome red kit of good grooming accessories with a famous historical sailing ship on the cover. Aunt Mame could capture the mood of a gay escapade with a gift of bubbling bath crystals.

Your true love will love a men's cologne or after-shave with an old spicy scent or perhaps spice with lime added. There's even a shaving mug for Gramps with his favorite shaving soap and a seagling motif. Small boys (girls, too) love that crazy, foamy soap that squirts out wildly and molds into animals or other shapes. The can has a Santa Claus head and other, wackier, puppet tops.

For ten thin dimes each there are all kinds of stocking stuffers, grab bag or party favors for those in your friendship garden like stick cologne, bath crystals, hand lotion, talc, shower soap-on-a-rope, et al. Yes, a toiletries gift for kith and kin will do you proud; keep the budget down, and leave plenty of time to sing the Christmas carols and hang the mistletoe.
