

NAT'S BROTHER VISITS UNIVERSAL'S MOVIE SET — Ike Cole, popular pianist and singer, and brother of the late Nat "King" Cole, was a recent visitor on the set of Universal's "Banning," where he was greeted by a long friend of the Cole family, Robert Wagner. Wagner took time from his starring role in the film to chat with Cole, who is currently appearing in several Los Angeles night spots.

TELL OF TEACHING EXPERIENCE — Winston-Salem State College Students use Skit to Tell of their Student Teaching Experiences. L. to r. Miss Jo Ann Martin of Durham, Miss Doris J. Hintz of Grover and Miss Estelle Curry of Fort Wayne, Indiana putting on a skit during a post student teaching seminar for the benefit of other returning students and for students preparing to leave the campus for a period of student teaching. These young ladies did their student teaching at the Biddleville School in Charlotte. They were among 30 young people who finished their student teaching last Thursday. Twenty-six seniors left the campus Monday to begin an eight-week period of student teaching. The students will remain in the community where they will work for the eight-week period. They will be stationed in schools within a radius of 80 miles of the College.

Demonstration Women Named For State Honor

Twelve North Carolina Home Demonstration Club Women who best fulfilled the phrase, "as a leader—one serves," were honored as 1965 Leadership Achievement Award winners.

The awards, made each year to the two highest scoring leaders from each of six Extension districts, are sponsored by A and P.

Based on their efforts in Home Demonstration and 4-H Club work, the members are scored on their organizational work, project work and participation in the clubs programs. In addition, each woman writes a narrative describing the values received from her leader work.

From the East Central district, Mrs. Henry S. Walker, Rt. 1, Hillsborough, and Mrs. Silas Lucas, Lucama, are the leadership winners. An Orange County homemaker, Mrs. Walker is currently president of the state Organization of Home Demonstration Clubs. From Wilson County, Mrs. Lucas has been a Home Demonstration Club member for 30 years and has given her leadership unselfishly to local, county, district and state committees.

Mrs. J. McN. Gillis, Rt. 3, Fayetteville, was selected from the Southeastern district. In her narrative she pointed out that being a Home Demonstration Club member helped her increase her ability, knowledge and circle of friends. The other Southeastern winner is Mrs. Aldon Gurley, Rt. 2, Pikeville. This Wayne County homemaker has devoted much time to working with youth. She received a 25 year service pin as a 4-H leader and has been honored with the children of others. She has no children of her own.

A Bertie County woman, Mrs. S. Poe Fairless, Sr., Rt. 1, Colerain, and Mrs. Hazel W. Harris, Rt. 1, Belhaven, Hyde County, were named from the Northeastern District.

North Carolina Garden Time

By M. E. GARDNER
N. C. State University

What do you look for when selecting a Christmas tree? Which species do you like best? Do you prefer a North Carolina grown tree or an imported one?

First, what do you look for when selecting a tree? Perhaps the first thing you should look for is freshness. Many trees are cut too soon and transported long distances to market. Frequently the leaves have dried out and are shedding before you buy it. Such handling lowers both the quality and color of the plant. Fragrance is also reduced.

Which species do you like years and still is. It can be a favorite for many, many years and still is. It can be grown from the Coastal Plain through the Piedmont. Due to the natural compact habit of growth, it requires little or no shearing. The fragrance is excellent. It should be used fresh as it has a tendency to dry out quickly after cutting—probably best adapted for local retail sales.

Other species adapted to N.

C. are: Fraser Fir, White Pine, Scotch Pine and Norway Spruce. Of these species, Fraser Fir and White Pine are, presently, the most important for commercial production in the mountains of Western Carolina.

NOW COED—Three years ago Candy Geer put her sadness at President Kennedy's assassination to words in a 42-line poem. The Grosse Pointe, Mich., girl, then a 16-year-old high school student, is now a student at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. —AP Wirephoto.

Girl's Poem On Kennedy Has Paid Off

KALAMAZOO, Mich. The assassination of President John F. Kennedy three years ago today meant sadness for millions. But to Candy Geer, then a 16-year-old high school student, it meant more.

Candy, who had never written anything but a school composition or a letter, put her sadness into a 42-line poem that was published and has been read across the country.

Candy is a coed now at Western Michigan University, but she remembers well the events of November 1963.

"It struck me as odd the way the horses (that drew Kennedy's hearse) came up to the door of the White House. It was sort of like they were calling for him."

Candy also was moved by the television views of the president's son, John, then 3. So she wrote the poem through his eyes.

It reads in part: "Six white horses came today To take my daddy far away Mommy said I must be good And stand as big as daddy would..."

Routine Checkup— Ike Is Out

WASHINGTON Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower checked out of Walter Reed Army Hospital Monday after undergoing what a spokesman described as a routine physical checkup.

Eisenhower's health will be a factor in the decision on whether he makes a goodwill tour of Asia next spring.
