Bishop Jones Followers Make Bid for Peace

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Thousands of members from twenty states, scores of ministers and bishops converged on Philadelphia, Tuesday and Wednesday and held a dynamic and clearly audible meeting in support of embattled Orzo T. Jones, Sr., senior bishop of The Church of God in Christ.

This meeting marked the first massive effort on the part of followers of Bishop Jones to "restore peace and constitutional government to the church" after Bishop Jones was supposedly ousted by the church's executive committee at the 59th Annual Convocation in Memphis, November 8-18.

Some of the most outstanding men in the church came to Philadelphia to support Bishop Jones. Among them were Bishop R. E. Ranger, Bishop of Texas, Bishop McClellan of Buffalo, and Bishop Mason of Chicago. Ministers came from Michigan, Kansas, Illinois, Texas, Florida, Ohio, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. At one point during the exciting meeting, twenty-nine ministers from the state of New York held a special meeting to show their support for Bishop Jones.

On Tuesday evening, 1800 people crowded into Holy Temple at 60th and Callowhill St., spilling out onto the street and Sunday School room downstairs. Bishop Ranger, who chaired the conference and a staunch supporter of Bishop Jones, electrified the crowd and visiting dignitaries by showing that Bishop Jones was supposedly ousted by the executive committee which has no constitutional legality within the church.

Thursday morning Bishop Ranger along with Rev. O. T. Jones, Jr., son of the Bishop, and Rev. Sam P. Nesbitt, executive secretary to the Bishop, flew to Memphis to confer with Bishop Jones' legal counsel in that city. Rev. Nesbitt who is the son of the Bishop of Florida and who holds degrees in theology and law, held a press conference Wednesday afternoon at which time he compared the alleged ousting of Bishop Jones to the two women and one infant before the throne of Solomon.

GARDEN CUP AWARD WINNER

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Herring, Rt. 2, Rose Hill, won a cup for having an outstanding garden this year. Mrs. Judy H. Robinson, assistant home economics extension agent, Duplin County, observes.

The mother of 3, Mrs. Herring grew a total of 16 fruits and vegetables in her half acre garden. She said she planted collards, peas, tomatoes, corn, beans, white potatoes, sweet potatoes, cabbage, onions, watermelons and other produce "so her family would have the foods they needed to help meet their daily nutritional needs." In addition Mrs. Herring had enough fruits and vegetables to can and freeze to sell, and to share with neighbors who did not have gardens.

HOW GOOD A SHOPPER ARE YOU?

At least 500 homemakers in Perquimans County know how they rate as food shoppers, Mrs. Minnie B. Taylor, home economics extension agent, says.

While shopping at local supermarkets, these women received "report cards" which they could use to compare the items they bought with the foods their family members needed to improve or maintain health.

If she thought she could improve her shopping skills, a homemaker was encouraged to contact her home economics extension agent for advice on consumer problems.

SAVE TIME AND ENERGY

To save yourself time and energy, Mrs. Mary I. Parham, home economics extension agent, Greenville County, offers this tip: Select wash-and-wear fabrics, rather than those that require a lot of pressing.
