Norman Joyner Has Bear Fans Buzzing For 1967

RALEIGH — The Shaw University cagers are on their Christmas recess but Norman Joyner has the Bear fans buzzing and eagerly anticipating the "67" games. Joyner, called "Smokey" because of the way he burns nets, is a six feet senior guard from La Grange. As the team's captain, he has led Shaw to its split of four games with his 25.0 scoring average (53 per cent from the field) and 6.7 rebounds per game. His expert guidance is expected to lead Shaw to a winning season and a berth in the CIAA tournament. His greatest assets are his shooting and ball-handling.

The jumper from 20-30 feet out is his specialty. Driving for lay ups with a lot of twist-

Break 'em in Half

Sample Relates What Its Like To Be A Pro

NEW YORK—"I'll break them in half if I have to," says All-Pro cornerback Johnny Sample of the New York Jets, in summing up his personal approach to playing defense in pro football.

Sample, who has played with Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Washington in the Nat'l Football league, as well with the Jets in the American Football League, has been accused of being a dirty player.

Last season, when Sample was with Washington, he injured Del Shofner of the Giants by racing up behind him and jumping on him after Del had caught a sidelines pass and fallen.

Against San Diego this year, he was penalized for smashing hard into receiver Lance Alworth from behind illegally.

Ken Graham, Charger defensive back, says: "Sample's out there hurting guys just to intimidate them. One of these days, somebody is going to wise up and send a hatchet man after him."

Sample defends his style this way: "Every chance I get to intimidate a player, I'll do it," he says. "If I hit him a few times maybe next time the ball is thrown to him he'll take his eyes off it to find out where I am."

"I'll break them in half if I have to. The man on the field must be better than the man on the bench. If I can get him out of the game, the man on the bench has to come in. This helps win. This is the way I play. And this is the way I'm gonna keep playing," concludes Sample.

ing and turning maneuvers is another of his characteristics. Big things are expected from Joyner in the next two months.

1966 ORANGE BLOSSOM CLASSIC QUEENS. Kathalyne Sears, "Miss Alabama A&M College," rides at back and center of the Miami Coca-Cola Bottling Company float during the Orange Blossom Classic parade, witnessed by approximately 200,000 people in downtown Miami, Fla. Miss Sears, an Alabama A&M senior, was "hosted" by two members of her court, to the right, first attendant, Miss Betty Jean Dawson, and to the left and not seen, second attendant, Miss Betty Ann Davis. Five Miami Dade County high school princesses also shared the highly praised float with her. Standing directly in front of Miss Alabama A&M are, "Miss Northwestern," Carolyn Guest; "Miss Mays," Carolyn Harris; "Miss Booker T. Washington," Joyce Williams; "Miss George Washington Carver," Hannah Hunter, and "Miss North Dade," Bella Allen, to the left of Miss Mays. Entered by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Miami, the "Float of the Queens" is an annual feature of the pre-game festivities and parade. Along with the float for "Miss Florida A&M University," the Miami Coca-Cola Bottler's entry was seen by 28,000 fans in the Orange Bowl prior to the Classic.
