New Beauty Glasses Flip Their Lens

NEW YORK (CFN)—The eye-makers may just be the canniest, coolest, most cunning of all the beauty innovators.

Because not only do they invent the most luscious, limpid and lavish shadings for the eye. They have even come up with magnifying glasses—"the better to see you with, my dear!"

The eye-makers evidently discovered that 20-20 vision isn't an everyday gift of the gods. In fact, 80% of women over 30 are farsighted. Even girls who don't wear glasses can use a little help on the close-ups for eye make-up.

So the dressing table has a fascinating new accessory—Eye Specs. Glasses hinged from the bottom to flip over you.

Mild, medium or extra strength, Revlon's Eye Makeup Glasses let you see what you're doing—while you're doing it.

Putting on false eyelashes? The flip-down lens makes it easy to fasten on a fringe. (While you watch.) Lengthen or thicken your lashes with those great swirl-on make-up wands. Shape and shade your eyebrows. You can brush on eye-shadow—or make great line-for-line copies of the model eyes you've seen in magazines.

All of it, looking through one lens—while you flip down the other.

And bring into clear and close-up focus, the eye you're making up. You can see your eye—in all stages of make-up, magnified at a glance. (There's even a midjet screw driver for personal adjustment of these very special spectacles to your bone structure and the span of your temples.)

Check your flip-top glasses and focus on the eye-type you belong to!

Wide-Open Eyes. (Wide spaces between the eyebrow and crease of lid.) For these, brush a basic shadow shade from inner corner of eye—up and across the lid. Leave space under the brow for a soft highlight shade. Separate the two shades with a long, curved line.

Natural Eyes. (Medium space between eyebrow and crease of lid.) Brush a basic shadow shade over the lid and under the brow. Accent just under the arch of the brow with a highlight shade. Draw a slight "S" curve to separate the two shades.

Small Eyes. (Narrow space between eyebrow and crease of lid.) Brush a basic shadow shade over the lid and under the brow. Highlight just under the outer arch of the brow with a highlight shade. Draw a slight "S" curve down to separate the two shades.

Hoods Go To Her Head

Every girl loves a hood on her coat and designers go to the top to please these important young fashionables. This winter, stores feature many charming coats with warmth-giving coverups.

National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry advises mothers that there's no need for girls to sacrifice warmth for beauty these days. Coats emphasize both and collections are keyed to snow, ice and wind. Not one of these fashions will look wilted after wintering the weather, either, because the board selects fashions that are quality wise.
