Daughtry, a 6-3 junior from Nashville, Ga., led the Rams to the SEAC Tourney championship and the conference's regular season title. Averaging 21.8 points per game with 607 points in 28 contests, Daughtry will lead the Rams' bid for a berth in the NAIA Tournament at Kansas City March 13-18 when the "running, gunning" Rams engage Stillman College in a best-of-three series opening in Tuscaloosa, Ala., on Friday night in the NAIA District 6 Playoffs. The two teams return to Albany State for the second game of the series on Saturday night, and if necessary, a third game on Monday night (March 6th).

Six Negro Basketball Stars are Named to Look All America

NEW YORK—Six Negro, college stars have been named to Look Magazine's 10-man All America team, picked by the United States Basketball Writers Association.

The players chosen were: Lew Alcindor, UCLA; Jim Walker, Providence; Westley Unseld, Louisville; Mel Daniels, New Mexico; Elvin Hayes, Houston and Clem Haskins, Western Kentucky.

The selections, made by the writers' nine-man awards committee representing the eight NCAA districts, were announced today in the new issue of Look.

Others chosen for All America honors were: Bob Lloyd, Rutgers; Don May, Dayton; Larry Miller, North Carolina; Bob Vega, Duke.

The much acclaimed Alcindor is the only sophomore named to the team, which is comprised of four juniors and five seniors. Walker, one of the top scorers and best ball-handlers in the country, is the lone repeater of those picked. Unseld, a rugged 6' 8" rebounder is described as "Chairman of the Boards" in the article. Clem "The Gem" Haskins' effortless style gained national recognition for him on a three-year basis, despite the fact that an injury sidelined him a major part of this season.

The writers cited Hayes for his relatively unheralded defensive prowess ("he blocks as many as a dozen shots a game") as well as his obvious scoring talent. Daniels was also praised as a top performer at both ends of the court who was sure to go in the first round of the pro draft.

Albany State Star Named to Ga. All-State

ALBANY, Ga.—Mack Daughtry, Albany State College's electric 6-3 guard, was named Wednesday to the Atlanta Journal's College All-State Team. His selection marked the first time ever that a Negro has been accorded this honor.

Daughtry, a junior from Nashville, Ga., paced the "running, gunning" Rams to both the Southeastern Athletic Conference's regular season championship and the tournament title.

Included on the select five-man, all-Georgia team along with Daughtry were junior Jim Youngblood of Georgia, junior Phil Wagner of Georgia Tech, senior Bill Domen of Augusta College and junior Bryan Phillips of Valdosta State.

Hailed as the best prospect in Georgia by the Journal's selectors, Daughtry laid 21.7 points per game on the opposition in leading the Rams to a 23 and 5 season and into the District 6 NAIA Playoffs. As Bob Rainey, the Rams' pilot so picturesque put it: "Mack shows you a new move every game. . . He has all the tools to go to the Big Top (NBA)."

In 28 contests Mack has scored 607 points, and he's no hired gun. In gunning its way through the season and into the NAIA Playoffs, the Rams had six guys averaging in double figures.

District 26 NAIA Cage Play Begins

LYNCHBURG, Va. Lynchburg meets Appalachian State Teachers College of North Carolina in the opening round of the NAIA District 26 Basketball championships here Tuesday night.

Appalachian will carry a 20-7 record into the game against Lynchburg's Dixie Conference champs.

The Hornets are 16-9 — the best record for a Lynchburg team since 1961 — and have lost only once at home this season. The game is one of two NAIA District 26 clashes Tuesday night. The other matches Wolford, of Spartanburg, S. C., 19-8, against the Carolinas Conference regular-season champion, Guilford, 23-4, on the Guilford court.

hurdlers include Hayes Jones, Milt Campbell, Harrison Dillard, Jack Davis, Joel Shankle, and Bafer Johnson.

In 1956 he tied the world record in the 50, 60, and 60-yard high hurdles and also in that year at the Olympics in Melbourne, he established a new Olympic record in the 110-meter high hurdles with a clocking of 13.5, breaking the old record by two-tenths of a second. Calhoun placed first in 7 of 11 indoor meets he entered in 1959 and hit the tape first in 16 of 22 outdoor events.

Hurdle Event Named For Lee Calhoun

Olympic hurdler Lee Calhoun, former North Carolina College great, will be recognized for his many contributions to the cinder paths by the WTVD (Durham) Intercollegiate Track and Field Championships Committee.

When the second annual event is reeled off May 5 and 6 at Duke Stadium, the 120-yard high hurdles will be named "The Lee Calhoun 120-yard High Hurdles."

Calhoun, now associated with the Physical Education Department at Roosevelt High School in Gary, Indiana, was a standout track performer while attending North Carolina College from 1952 through 1957. Calhoun finished first in the 1960 Rome Olympics in the 110-meter high hurdles, with the sparkling time of 13.8. His achievements in track are long and lusty. While at NCC he contested in over 100 meets, usually coming away with the top prize in all the hurdling events.

And Calhoun ran with the best competition around. Some of the noted opposing
