

EASTER MORNING

Through centuries recorded, the strength and the weakness of humanity has been off-tested.

In an era when great minds see a clear pathway to the moon and stars, men still seek to repair broken bridges along the road to world peace and brotherhood.

In jungle or desert, in the seats of power, or about the conference tables of the world, the greatest hope lies yet within the eternal shadow of one great human sacrifice.

And, peace may come when mankind need no longer be reminded that ...“God so loved the world, He gave His only begotten Son.”
