Mrs. R Mattox . Winner of Auto In Beach Event

SWANSBORO—The Hurst Assembly building at the Hammocks Beach in Swansboro was filled to more-than-capacity on Saturday May 20, as the 17th Annual Hammocks Pilgrimage Celebration got underway.

Following the morning registration period, many persons received prizes; but the big prize was a Camaro Sport Coupe, won by Mrs. Ruth A. Mattox of the Riverdale Section of Craven County. Nine year old Daryl Vereen of Durham drew the lucky number 7894 with Mrs. Mattox's name. Mrs. Mattox was having much trouble with her car and did not make the pilgrimage; but her principal, W. W. Ryder, who sold her the ticket was present and took her the good news. Mrs. Mattox picked up her car in Raleigh last Friday.

Plaques from the Hammocks Beach Corporation were presented to Dr. J. W. Seabrook of Fayetteville and Dr. H. L. Trigg of Salisbury (in absentia) by Mrs. Juanita Corbin, a past president of the North Carolina Association of Classroom Teachers. The plaques were given in recognition of outstanding contributions and long services of these persons to the Hammocks Beach Program.

A standing ovation was given to Mrs. Gertrude Hurst, who in 1950 recommended that the Hammocks property be given to Negro Teachers of North Carolina by the donor, the late Dr. William Sharpe. In behalf of the Hammocks Beach Corporation, W. R. Collins presented Mrs. Hurst with a gift—a beautiful house coat, as a token of appreciation.

Greetings were brought by Mrs. Dorothy Jackson, outgoing president of the North Carolina Association of Classroom Teachers, and J. W. Broadhurst, representing secondary and other school administrators.

E. B. Palmer, executive secretary, NCTA spoke on the future of the Hammocks. He stated that extensive outside contacts for funds for Hammocks Expansion have been made; and urged the members to continue their contributions as outlined by the Hammocks Board.

Garden Time

By M. E. GARNER

N. C. State University
It will never do to leave the lady in distress, especially if she is a dear friend and a dedicated gardener. Many times I have helped her with rose problems, but this time her problem was of an entirely different nature.

We might say in the beginning, that, as is so frequently the case, she is over-planted with most everything and trying to do all the work herself. Her husband travels but is very helpful when he is home.

She had lost two or three Elaeagnus plants and was blaming moles for chewing their roots and girdling the stem at the base of the plants. I told her that moles could not possibly cause this type of damage and that I would drop by and see if we could determine the cause.

When I arrived she had dug two of the plants and, sure enough, the tender tissues had been chewed from the roots and the plants almost completely girdled at the base, just below soil level. She had mulched heavily with leaves so we began by probing around the plants.

It did not take long to locate tunnels made and used by mice. There are two kinds: field or meadow mice, and pine mice. Both of these can cause extensive damage to plants and, many times, the damage is not observed until it is too late.

I suggested that she get poisoned bait and place in the tunnels or runs. This can be done by carefully opening the top of the tunnel, placing the bait and recovering.

Mice control is a perennial problem with the apple grower. For a long time only poisoned baits were used—grain, apple or sweetpotato cubes. Since about 1955 the growers have used a poisoned ground spray which is much faster and more effective than the bait method. The material used for the ground spray is to hazardous for use by the home gardener—so baits are still best.
