New Facilities Will Expand CS Production

has purchased the Dutch Oven Backery facilities in Atlanta in what the president of the company describes as an additional move to expand capacity for the manufacturing and processing of food products.

Ernest F. Boyce, Colonial president, said the former Dutch Oven facilities wil! be used to greatly expand Colonial's production of speciality breads, pastries and other sweet baked goods with the ultimate objective of supplying the entire chain.

Colonial will continue to operate its present wholesale bakery in Atlanta and other bakeries in Charlotte, Norfolk and Cincinnati.

Earlier this month, Colonial nnounced that it will construct a highly automated plant designed to produce jams, jellies and other kindred products in Lexington, North Carolina. This plant is expected to be in production by mid-summer.

Mr. Boyce told stockholders recently that Colonial's food manufacturing and processing, operations "have become increasingly profitable over the past several years.'

The former Dutch Oven property in Atlanta consists of a 49 000-square - foot building completely equipped to produce wide variety of baked goods. The building is located on a four-acre tract of land on Stewart Avenue, S.W., near the Glenn Street intersection. Colonial acquired the entire property for cash. The plant will be part of Colonial's manufacturing department and will be under the immediate supervision of Charles R. Mills as plant manager.

Mr. Boyce said that in addition to providing expanded baking facilities, the newly acquired plant will permit Colonial to free additional space in its present food distribution center in East Point for further expansion of processing and packaging there.

Colonial presently is produc ing its own mayonnaise, salad dressing, mustard and a variety of sauces. In addition, it has complete coffee roasting and packaging plant and a tea plending and packaging plant. The company also packages its own rice and a variety of dried vegetables.

Colonial, which has general headquarters in Atlatna, operates supermarketers in the following states: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mary-land, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, and Virginia.

tion," "Most upbuilding," "Never anything like it before." These are some of the expressions of delegates, who attended the circuit convention of Jehovah's Witnesses held in Tarboro at Patillo High School, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 17-18.

C. G. Thompson, district supervisor delivered the main address to an audience of approximately 820 persons

"Why Does God Permit Wickedness," was the theme of Thompson's address.

In conclusion of his speech he stated: "You have a grand opportunity to show love for God who has made so many provisions for your benefit. You can make God's heart glad by upholding his side of the issue regarding man's integrity, by being firm in applying Bible principles in your home and anywhere else when confronted with wicked deeds, by proving yourselves unwavering in your devotion to Jehovah God
